

"I wrote to Dr. Pierce for his advice."

The lady, from whose letter we quote, got what she wrote for, and is a well woman to-day as a result of following Dr. Pierce's advice and using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the medicine which makes weak women strong and sick women well. "Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. Sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I can truthfully say that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a wonderful medicine and deserves the praise given it," writes Mrs. Emma Spooner, of Lakeview, Montclair Co., Mich., Box 288. "I was sick four months, and the medicine prescribed by the doctors did me no good. Finally I wrote to Dr. Pierce for his advice. He answered in a very kind letter instructing me what to do. I followed his advice and to-day am a well woman, thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

AS RED MEN DIE.

By E. Pauline Johnson.

"Captive! Is there a hell to him like this? A taunt more galling than the Huron's hiss?"

"Captive! But never conquered; Mohawk brave stoops not to be to any man a slave; Least, to the puny tribe his soul abhors. The tribe whose wigwams sprinkle Simcoe's shores.

With scowling brow he stands and courage high. Watching with haughty and defiant eye His captors, as they counsel o'er his fate, Or strive his boldness to imitate; Then fling they unto him the choice: 'Will thou Walk o'er the bed of fire that waits thee now— Walk with uncovered feet upon the coals. Until thou reach the ghostly Land of Souls.

And, with thy Mohawk death-song, please our ear? Or wilt thou with the women rest thee here?' His eyes flash like an eagle's, and his hands clench at the insult. Like a god he stands, 'Prepare the fire!' he scornfully demands.

"The path of coals outstretches, white with heat, A forest fir's length—ready for his feet, Unflinching as a rock he steps along The burning mass, and sings his wild war song.

Sings as he sang when he used to roam Throughout the forest of his southern home.

Where, down the Genesee, the water roars, Where gentle Mohawa purls between its shores, Songs that of exploit and prowess tell; Songs of the Iroquois invincible.

Up the long trail of fire he boasting goes, Dancing a war dance to defy his foes. His flesh is scorched, his muscles burn and shrink.

But still he dances to death's awful brink. The eagle plume that crests his haughty head,

Will never droop until his heart is dead. Slower and slower yet his footstep swings, Wilder and wilder still his death-song rings.

Fiercer and fiercer thro' the forest bounds His voice that leaps to happier hunting grounds.

One savage yell—then, loyal to his race, He bends to death—but never to disgrace."

THE GREEK CHURCH IN CANADA.

Missionary in Montreal at Last Finds a Resting Place.

The gorgeous ceremonial of the Orthodox Greek Church is at length being presented in Montreal in a place more in keeping with its majesty and the traditions of its history than has been the case in the past. A back room in the store of some Syrian or Greek merchant has sufficed for the ten years of the church's history in Montreal to accommodate the few worshippers who have gathered for the celebration of its mass, more mystic and occult than that of the Catholic Church of Rome, and to listen to the ministrations of Father George, the aged Syrian priest, formerly secretary to one of the patriarchs of the East, who cannot speak a word of either French or English, but is, according to his adherents, a powerful orator in the language of Antioch. But that is all changed.

A Picturesque Congregation.

On the first Sunday in April, almost under the shadow of Notre Dame, where five thousand of the flock of Leo the Thirteenth were gathered in honor of Saint George, in a big upstairs hall on the same street, scarcely furnished as yet with more than a few benches, but with the sanctuary duly veiled almost from the sight of the congregation by a heavy rood screen, and on the walls a few of the pictures that here replace the prohibited images, the faithful came for the dedication of their new church. The congregation was not large. There are only some 200 of the orthodox in Montreal, nearly all Syrians, and many of them do business on Sundays as well as on other days of the week. Among those that did attend were a good many children who received the rite of communion with their elders, according to Eastern fashion. With their dark faces, their brilliant, intensely black eyes, and the gorgeous coloring of the costumes they affected, they were easily the most picturesque congregation in the metropolis.

Father George.

Father George has worked long and hard for this attainment. In the eyes of all the orthodox of Montreal, and of hundreds of traveling Syrians in the peddling business, who visit Montreal once or twice a year, he represents the whole church. They know of no superior to him, and it is, indeed, doubtful if he knows of any himself. The Bishop of San Francisco, who petitioned Parliament for incorporation as head of the Greeks of Canada last summer, and failed to secure his object, has a nominal headship over the church on this continent, but actually Father George is a missionary "in partibus infidelium," and leads his flock as he likes. He is a superbly typical priest, who may be seen around the church at almost any time, hearing confession or superintending the carpenters. In either event, wearing his long cassock, and his round high hat, with a projecting flange round the top, and in the latter case, probably smoking furiously at a cigarette of Turkish tobacco, "made in Montreal." His nearest colleagues are in the far Northwest, where among the other curious sects, there is quite a large representation of Syrians and Greeks.

A Dear Kiss.

For snatching a kiss in the street from a nursemaid, a young man of Cork has been sent to prison for three months.

It takes hard rubbing to get cooked starch into a fabric because cooking starch increases the size of its particles or cells fourfold.

Celluloid Starch soaks into the fabric in its raw state, fills the little spaces and is then enlarged by the heat of the iron—making the surface perfectly smooth and leaving the fabric thoroughly stiffened.

It gives greater beauty and longer life to your linen.

Your grocer can supply it if you insist.

Thumbs and Mechanics.

Two men got into an argument the other day over the expansion of steam in a cylinder. "Why," said one, "you don't know anything about machinery and the principles of mechanics. Your thumbs are not shaped right." He then went on to explain that a man with long, thin thumbs did not have a mechanical turn, while those with thick thumbs, broad at the ends, were natural born machinists. "I never believed in physiognomy," he said, "but I do believe in thumbs."

A Limit to Scorn.

"I have the profoundest contempt for money," said the impractical person. "That," replied the friend, "is a very nonsensical assertion. Of course you are entitled to your own economic theories. But you are just as much annoyed as anybody else if you accept a counterfeit half dollar."—Washington Star.

Why He Was There.

Teacher—I notice that you are never able to answer any of the questions. How is this, little boy?

Willie Dullboy—Well, if I knew, dad wouldn't go to the trouble of sending me here.

The Victims.

"Did Ayreka take in a partner when he started his newest get rich scheme?"

"No; only the people who bought the stock."

Enemies.
