Paper Making and the Egyptians.

The art of paper making is almost prehistoric. It is believed that the Egyptians invented the first crude process. This is shown in the name itself, which is derived from the word papyrus, a reed which grows in Egypt and other warm countries.

The ancient Egyptians made their primitive paper from this plant by taking the smooth, fibrous layer between the rough outer bark and the inner flesh of the reed. This they dried and glued together in long rolls, which served as a means to convey their thoughts in hieroglyphics. This process has been so improved upon during the succeeding ages that today the most perfect paper can be made from the meanest substances.

Caged Birds Live Longest.

Many people declaim against the cruelty of keeping birds in cages, but it is a well proved truth that cage birds live about six times as long as a wild bird, and the bird invariably becomes so fond of its owner and its surroundings that when the cage is thrown open it will not fly away. It suffers so little from solitude that if a prospective mate is introduced it hits her on the head at first for her impudence in daring to intrude into a private apartment.

Asparagus and Cucumber.

The flavor of asparagus is due to aspartic acid and that of the cucumber from a peculiar poisonous ingredient called fungin, which is found in many species of fungi.

How Some Peoples Count.

The Bushmen and Brazilian Wood Indians cannot count beyond two. The Botocudos of Central Africa have a word for "one," but anything beyond is "many." Among the natives of Ellice's island the word for "ten" means "all" — all the fingers.

An Ancient Penny.

Dated 1707 and weighing an ounce a copper penny has been turned up by the plow at Breckles, Norfolk, England.

Pretty Hard Water.

"They say that the English language is the most difficult of any for a foreigner to acquire," said the lady who was pouring the tea, "especially on account of its many idiomatic perplexities. I have a neighbor, a dear little girl, who would say the same if she were able to express her opinions in words.

"The other day I said to her, 'Is the water where you live hard or soft, Jennie?' Quick as a wink came the surprising answer:

"'Oh, I guess it's awfully hard, for I spilt some on a lamp chimney last night and it broke all to pieces.'"—New York Times.

Asking too Much.

"Yes," said Tanglefoot Jim, "we had to send that preacher chap away."

"What was the matter?" asked the tenderfoot.

"W'y, he was too ambitious. He talked about givin' up whisky, an' we stood fer it. He talked about givin' up swearin', an' we stood fer that. But when he talked about givin' up shootin' we jest natcherly had to tell him to move along. A feller's got to have some excitement when he comes up to town from the ranch."—Chicago Post.

Up to the Old Tricks.

"These college boys beat me," said St. Peter as he locked the gate for the night.

"What's the matter now?" queried the man who was being fitted with a pair of wings.

"Why, I let in a batch awhile ago, and they no sooner got in than they began to pitch quoits with their balos."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Cruel Man.

"Before marriage you always gave in to me when I cried."

"Well, I've learned to swim since then."—Toronto Moon.

The Proper Treatment for Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is usually two or three months before he has fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, for in many cases in which Chamberlain's Pain Balm has been promptly and freely applied, a complete cure has been effected in less than one week's time, and in some cases within three days. For sale by all druggists.
