DR. PUGSLEY'S MESSAGE

To the Liberal Convention of King's and Albert.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley was not able to attend the Liberal convention at Hampton yesterday, but sent the following message:

Edmundston, N. B., Sep. 29. James Donville, Hampton, N. B.:

I regret very much that public business here prevents my attending the Liberal convention for Kings and Albert. I would like to be present to meet with our friends, including those from Albert, who are now for the first time meeting with the Liberals of Kings in convention. I need not say that I trust the utmost harmony will prevail among the representatives of the united constituencies, because I feel sure that this will be the case and that the candidate who may be selected will have the heartiest support of all.

Under the wise and progressive administration which Canada has enjoyed during the past eight years, it has advanced with marvelous rapidity. Great, however, as has been the progress during the past eight years, the next few years are likely under the same administration to witness even greater developments. They will be important years in the history of New Brunswick as well as of the rest of Canada, and the minister should have the best and brightest men whom the constituencies can send to parliament to strengthen his hands in his endeavor to give to the province which he represents the greatest possible benefit from the great public undertakings which the government has inaugurated and in the working out of his policy regarding the transportation and other important questions.

FAMOUS INVENTOR DEAD.

Straight Pull Rifle James P. Lee's Great Triumph.

James P. Lee, whose death took place at New Haven, Conn., recently was spending the winter there, and it was not generally known in Galt that he was seriously ill. The distinguished inventor only returned to Galt five years ago, after a long residence in the United States and Europe. His name will be inseparably connected with the improvements in small arms, his inventions being the basis of most of the recently-adopted weapons.

He was born in Hawick, Scotland, and came to Galt with his father, George Lee, when a boy of five years. Apprenticed to his father, he became an expert watchmaker, but, being an ardent sportsman, he early became interested in firearms. When at Jansville, W. Va., in 1854, he first began his study of guns, bringing out an idea he did not perfect for many years later, when it appeared in the Lee straight pull rifle, which was first used in active service during the Spanish-American war.

The first magazine gun which Mr. Lee invented was purchased for the American navy, where it has been in use since. In the seventies Mr. Lee went into the manufacture of rifles, carbines and sporting rifles in Milwaukee, and later had his inventions handled by the Remington Arms Company.

In the early eighties he went to England and laid his rifle before the British army authorities, who took it up and furnished the whole army with Lee-Enfields. The Government afterwards adopted a new bore for the rifle barrel, changing the name of the weapon to the Lee-Enfield.

Mr. Lee was 73 years of age, and had been a sufferer from an accident which befell him when a youth. By the accidental discharge of a gun he was shot in the heel, and he carried many of the grains for over 50 years, until the discovery of the X-ray machine.

Reserve Force.

Billyuns—Young man, you seem to lack energy. Mopely—You are mistaken, sir. I am a veritable reservoir of energy awaiting a crisis.

Prosperity is a great teacher; adversity is a greater. Possession pampers the mind; privation trains and strengthens it.

Church Creches.

In London and several other cities and towns in England the idea of creches in connection with churches has been adopted with splendid results. It is found that parents go to church together more frequently than would otherwise be the case, and that there is increased interest in the general work of the church. One of the class-rooms of the churches is used as a creche, and those in charge are the younger women of the congregations, who undertake the work in order to relieve the mothers.

AN IMPORTANT LETTER.

A CUSTOMER has written the E. B. Eddy Company as follows:

"DEAR SIR,—As regards the use of Eddy's Impervious Sheathing, I was recommended to try it for lining bedroom Walls of my summer cottage and by using white mouldings with it, the effect is pretty, and it has answered admirably for the past 5 years. I also used it to cover the walls externally of my ice house and painted the same a light olive color, and it has weathered the storm, snow and ice for the same period, and is now in good condition. I most willingly recommend its use"
