THE ANGLICAN SYNOD.

Warm Discussion Over Proposed Appendix to the Prayer Book.

DEAN PARTRIDGE DEFENDS BISHOP KINGDON FROM CRITICISM.

Quebec, Sept. 13.—Yesterday afternoon a very important and interesting question came up in the Anglican Synod on the report of the committee on the appendix to the prayer book, of which the Bishop of Fredericton is chairman. The report was presented by Archdeacon Pentreath of Vancouver. It was proposed that the appendix be approved and be in tentative use for the next three years, subject then to be further approved at the next Synod. Dean Davis of Huron seconded the motion. Mr. Jenkins moved in amendment that the proposed appendix be referred back to the committee, with instructions to receive other suggestions, and that such appendix may compiling an appendix. In most cases it was found that the prayer book was ample. When it was decided to amend the liturgy it should be from the ancient liturgies of the church.

Rev. Canon Vonifland said that he did not feel competent to discuss the question owing to the short time the proposed service had been in his hands.

Archdeacon Newes supposed that if this matter was referred back it would be to the same committee. The committee was appointed to prepare an appendix, and had done so. It was spoken of as though the chairman, the Bishop of Fredericton, was prepared to take the responsibility for the appendix. He was no more responsible than other members of the committee. It was complained that the appendix had not been put out, and now it is complained that it is put out. He spoke of a criticism of a prayer in the book made by Rev. Dyson Hague, which was quite as applicable to the collect for All Saints' Day. He spoke as a member of the committee.

Canon Craig thought the committee should have at least credit for having carried out what it was instructed to do. At the same time he could not approve of the appendix.

Dr. Worrell did not believe any appendix was going to be satisfactory. He did not think this was fair and square way of dealing with the matter. There had been altogether too severe criticism of the committee. The whole question as to a revision of the prayer book should be referred back to the committee.

Canon Richardson said that the only thing in the past that had saved the English Church was the book of Common Prayer. He said the appendix had been subject to unjust and unfair criticism, and the reason it was criticized was because it was drawn up to appeal to many minds.

Dean Partridge felt very much obliged to those who had a few kind words to say for that unfortunate committee. The work of the committee had been treated in a most disrespectful manner. Bishop Kingdon had been severely criticized by men over whom in the knowledge of liturgical services he stood head and shoulders. The language used was not that which should have been used in an assembly of Christian gentlemen.

Rev. Canon Walsh agreed with Dean Partridge in all that he said. He believed that the Synod had changed its mind, because what was given today to the house was not what was asked for. It really seemed that the Synod did not know what it wanted. If it did it should give precise directions.

Canon Clinton of Vancouver, praised the appendix.

The first matter of importance at the morning session was dealing with the admission into the Synod of delegates from the diocese of Caledonia. They have occupied seats in the house, and the Bishop of Caledonia, Dr. DuVernet, has had a seat with the other bishops. But it was only this morning that, by resolution of the house, concurring with a similar resolution of the house of bishops, it was granted admission. The diocese of Caledonia, it may be explained, embraces the northern part of British Columbia. It was never within the jurisdiction of the Church of Canada and, as was pointed out by Archdeacon Collinson, the late bishop considered that he owed allegiance to the Archbishop of Canterbury. Indeed, it was this view that partly led to his resignation. The archdeacon expressed his great satisfaction that by the action of the house Caledonia was in the other dioceses of Canada.

Canon Richardson read the report of the committee on the observance of the Lord's Day, which deplores the growing laxity in the observance of the Sabbath and commended the work of the Lord's Day Alliance. If the alliance had taken extreme measures at times, all the more reason for the sober influence of the Church of England to be in its councils. It was recommended that the support of the church be given to the work of the alliance, that the synod express its approval of the dominion act, which will be worthy in its provision of a Christian act.

HIGHEST BRIDGE.

Structure Over the Zambesi River Formally Opened.

Victoria Falls, Zambesi River, East Africa, Sept. 12.—The bridge over the Zambesi River was formally opened today in the presence of the visiting members of the British association. Professor Darwin made the opening speech. He commented on the remarkable achievement which permitted a party travelling in electric lighted saloon cars to visit a place which heroic explorers had spent months of fruitless endeavors to reach.

At the conclusion of his speech Prof. Darwin touched an electric button which fused a wire stretched across the track of the bridge and an engine decorated with Union Jacks passed over.

The bridge over the Zambesi River, the highest in the world, was linked up at 7 a. m. April 1 of the present year. This completing another link in the Cape-to-Cairo railway. The bridge is of cantilever style, is 420 feet above the river at low water and crosses over the gorge at Victoria Falls. The bridge was built by an English company.

A young married man by the name of Sherry was instantly killed at Springhill, N. S., Monday afternoon. He with a companion was going down the mine when they heard the empty boxes following. His companion slipped aside into one of the safety posts but Sherry kept on, thinking he had time to reach one beyond, but was caught and about thirty empty coal boxes passed over him, mangle him fearfully. He was a Scotchman recently arrived and leaves a wife and one child.
