THE SCHOOL QUESTION.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Makes Effective Speech in Moving Adoption of Educational Clause Autonomy Bill.

PEOPLE OF THE WEST CONTENT WITH PROPOSED MEASURE.

Another Division in Which Tory Party Split.

Ottawa, June 29.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in moving the adoption of the educational section of the autonomy bill, gave a careful review of the whole question. "The Conservative party," he explained, has taken the position upon this question that the government are invading provincial rights. When I say this though I make a mistake because it happened that on this subject the opposition has no policy it is not too much to say that it is an assembly of contradictory opinion without any single idea upon which to rally. "When Mr. Borden spoke upon the second reading of the bill he was careful to state that he voiced his own views, that the Conservative party had no policy upon this important question. Subsequently one important section of the opposition took the ground that the government proposals in this matter invaded provincial rights. The simple answer, the categorical answer to this assertion is that in matters of education there is no such thing as absolute provincial rights. I make that statement deliberately. "Turning to the British North America act the premier reminded the House that in each province the local legislature was given exclusive authority on sixteen different subjects. Among these, however, was no mention of education. "The British North America act itself declared that it was framed not to apply not only to 4 original provinces of the new union but with a view to the eventual admission into the confederation of other parts of British North America. Such was the policy of the fathers of confederation. Liberals and Conservatives alike. Such is the policy of the Liberal party still, but what has become of the traditions of the Conservative party in this respect? "If Sir John A. McDonald were to revisit parliament today would he recognize the men who had departed so far from the principles that were laid down thirty-eight years ago? "My honorable friend's (Borden's) position is that the provinces come in with their legislative authority, with their school legislation, and that we are bound by law to apply that school system. That is all I myself ever contended. We are bound to apply the system they now enjoy, and to make the school system that now exists in the Northwest absolute and beyond the purview of the local legislature. That is to say, we are bound to apply the principles of the confederation. "After fourteen years," said Sir Wilfrid, "the law is the same in 1905 as it was in 1892. The views of the minority were not pressed further."

They did not go to the courts and the law was not disallowed. They accepted loyally this condition of things. "They took their part in working out the law, although they thought they had been deprived of an important right. "On the whole, the act has worked satisfactory. At all events we have the opinion of Mr. Haultain that if he were dictator he would not change the present law. It is satisfactory to the Protestants, and, as I understand from an interview in the press in which Bishop Legal of Alberta was reported to have said that so far as it went, though not an ideal system, he was satisfied with it, it is accepted by the Catholics. Therefore, we have the opinion on both sides that the law, though supposed to be an invasion of the rights of the minority, is, on the whole, accepted as satisfactory and with a desire to work it out for the common welfare of the country. What, then, was to be done under the circumstances? Here is a law as it is today, and as it has been for fourteen years. "I do not want to have any privileges that are not granted any other class of subjects, but only the privileges and rights that are given in the B. N. A. act. On this ground I appeal to all Liberals from all provinces whether from the centre or the extremities, whether from Ontario or Quebec, whether from the west or the Maritime Provinces, to show that we are a united body, to show and to prove that we have but one policy for all the provinces, and that we do not claim for one province one thing, and another thing for another province, (cheers), but that is all things we shall realize that to carry on the government of this country, and in building up a nation we must be prepared to make sacrifices. We must be prepared to give up something, even of our legitimate pretensions, and show by both precept and example that we put Canada first, (Canada last, and Canada forever." (Cheers). "Mr. Borden's amendment that clause 16 of the bill be stricken out, and that the provisions of clause 93 of the British North America act of 1867 shall apply to the said province in so far as the same are applicable under the terms thereof. "Mr. Borden's sub-amendment was defeated by a vote of 87 to 37. Among those who voted against the amendment of the opposition were F. D. Monk, J. G. H. Bergeron, Brabazon, Paquet and Leonard. Claud Macdonell of Toronto, did not vote with or against his leader. "The section was under discussion when the house adjourned and Mr. Bourassa said that he had an amendment to move."

CAN'T HAVE BABY.

Digby Authorities Refused Elmer Young's Request.

Digby, N. S., June 29.—The crown authorities are still at work on the Plympton murder case. Detective Power arrived here yesterday via the Halifax express to endeavor to unravel several mysterious points in connection with the case. "Elmer Young tried to get baby Elma yesterday morning, but the authorities decided to let it remain at the alms house until after the trial in September. Young left Digby on the west bound express. He told your correspondent, however, that he did not intend going direct to Boston, but would stop off the train en route to Yarmouth. "Marie Ward left for Boston yesterday, but Hattie Hatfield remains in town. She says she would not travel with a man like Young, since she has been acquainted with the facts brought out in Monday's examination. She says that she had a quarrel with him at one o'clock yesterday morning, Mrs. S. .... 89 53 terday morning."
