souls, or who wish to hear the gospel from the lips of a clergyman of the Sister church.

MR. COLLINS BANQUETTED.

Members of St. Patrick's Literary and Debating Society Say Farewell to One of Their Number.

Mr. W. P. Collins who left here this morning for St. John, with other members of the Trans-continental railway staff was given a farewell banquet last evening by the members of St. Patrick's Literary and Debating Society.

The happy function took place at the rooms of the society on Regent street and was attended by all the members of the society. Mr. J. Val Magee, president of the society, presided over the gathering having on his right the guest of the evening.

After a toast to the King had been honored the president proposed the toast to "Our Guest" and in doing so paid a warm tribute to the gentleman in whose honor the banquet was held. He said that while only a member of the society a comparatively short time, Mr. Collins had been in the society's affairs endeared himself to one and all of the members, and that while the gathering present were enjoying themselves at the enjoyment was marked at the prospect that one of their most valued members and personal friends was about to take his departure. He knew he expressed the sentiments of the society when he said he regretted him every success in his new home.

After drinking the toast the gathering sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." In responding Mr. Collins who was much moved, thanked the members for the expression of their kindly feelings. He said that when he entered the society he had been received with a kindness which had not abated as the months rolled on, and which none could appreciate better than himself. He regretted leaving the city as it meant severing his connection with this society, but duty called him away. During the months of the coming winter as Friday night came around his mind would come back to this room where he had spent so many pleasant evenings and he would be here in spirit. In conclusion he expressed his thanks to the members one and all and wished them all that would make them really and truly happy.

The toast "Our Society" was proposed by Mr. Jennings and responded to by the president who traced the history and progress of the society and referred to the strong debates and excellent papers which had been before the society during the past year.

Toasts were also drunk in honor of the learned professions, educational interests, Dominion and local governments, commercial interests, the ladies and the press, and speeches were made in reply by Messrs. J. T. Jennings, W. J. Shea, J. P. McPeake, J. L. Neville, J. A. Donohoe, L. Theriault, (U. N. B.), J. A. Hughes and P. J. Hughes, after which an hour was spent in speeches, songs and stories and the gathering broke up by joining hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Mr. Edwin T. McKnight, a native of King's Co., N. B., a graduate of the U. N. B., and a former principal of the Charlotte street school in this city, was elected a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in Tuesday's election. He was one of the Republican candidates in Ward 21 of Suffolk County, his constituency being part of the city of Boston and the vote stood:
