MISS FRENCH'S CASE.

It looks as if Miss French, the young lady who is seeking admission to the bar of New Brunswick, will have to evoke the assistance of the legislature, before she can attain her end, and there is no doubt that body will gallantly come to her rescue if the judges decline to interpret the present law in her favor. The learned attorney general, under whose advice the legislature acts on questions of law, has already championed the young lady's cause before the baristers' society and may be safely acquainted to see her safely through the House, if it is necessary to have recourse to that body.

The objections to Miss French's admission under existing law seem trivial indeed, and can easily be brushed aside. The kind of garb she must wear in court, the possibility of a woman becoming Chief Justice and other things urged are not very material to the issue. The time to have intervened for the prevention of a lady lawyer practising in this province was when Miss French started in her studies. To disqualify her now would be a most unfair attack on individual rights, which the legislature would not be long in resenting. Possibly there is no such intention. Likely the court only wants the thing done straight, according to the law and the regulations thereunder, and will be well satisfied if Miss French is ultimately permitted to practice her profession in New Brunswick.

They have prohibition in Maine, but the following despatch from Saco indicates that thirsty souls in that state do not go dry. S. M. Schner, a junk dealer of that city, says he purchased in Saco and Biddeford and shipped to Boston in October 3,600 jugs which had contained liquor. He estimated at 7,000 the total number of jugs returned to Boston by freight and express from there last month.

"Onlooker" the well informed special writer of the New Freeman, seems quite convinced that there is decidedly something in the report that the St. John Sun will likely be purchased by Liberals. He says an expert from Halifax has been looking over the Sun's plant to make an estimate of its value and compare it with the price asked by the present proprietors.

"Fools rush in where angels fear to tread." Some three or four men were offered the Tory candidature in Leduc for the Alberta legislature, but recognizing the hopelessness of the campaign declined the sacrifice. Our much esteemed friend, Mr. Simonds, however, took the candidature and was badly beaten.

In a sermon bristling with facts, and rich in historical reference, Rev. J. H. MacDonald, today in the Herald, discourses on National Prosperity, as evidenced in the conditions in Canada.

The latest returns from the Alberta elections show the return of twenty-one Liberals and only four Conservatives. It was a famous victory.

The possibility of the Sun getting into Liberal hands has sent a thrill of terror through the Tory party in New Brunswick.

The court stenographers may feel badly when they learn that they are not officials but mere servants of the court.

Hearst offers $10,000 for the conviction of Tammany's boss, on a charge of dishonest election methods.

The spectacle of a lady lawyer appearing in court with vest coat and white tie would be appalling.

CHILD RUN OVER.

Mona Robinson, the adopted daughter of Mrs. Thomas Robinson, of Margerville, aged twelve years, fell from Mr. A. A. Treadwell's sloven wagon a few days ago and was quite seriously injured. The wagon was loaded with straw and one of the wheels passed over the child's abdomen. Fortunately no bones were broken.

COLORED BOYS IN BAD SCRAPE.

Harry Nash and Joseph Gorman in Jail Charged with Obstructing I. C. R. Track.

Two colored boys, named Joseph Gorman and Harry Nash, aged respectively thirteen and fourteen years are in jail here on the serious charge of placing obstructions upon the Intercolonial Railway track. They were arrested at their homes, a short distance above Marysville this morning, by I. C. R. Policeman Noble of Campbellton and Policeman George Rideout of Fredericton, on a warrant issued by Police Magistrate Marsh. The officers reached the city at noon with their prisoners and took them before Police Magistrate Marsh, who remanded them to jail until Tuesday afternoon for examination.

The offence for which the boys are now under arrest, was committed on the afternoon of Wednesday last, near the Nashwaak bridge, two miles above Marysville.

A workman named Cameron, employed at Gibson's mill, while on his way home shortly after darkness had set in, discovered two sleepers and a number of stones piled upon the track. He promptly removed the obstructions and the next day reported the matter to the railway authorities.

Policeman Noble was ordered from Campbellton to investigate and was not long in getting on the track of the perpetrators of the outrage. He called at the homes of Nash and Gorman and learned from them that they had obstructed the track, and afterwards concealed themselves in the bushes near by to await results. They confessed that their object was to wreck the train, but they did not think they had done anything wrong.

Policeman Noble came to the city last evening and swore warrants for the boys with the result already stated.

It transpires that the obstructions were placed on the track just after the freight from Loggieville had passed on its way to this city. A special, in charge of Conductor Hobben, was due at Marysville about seven o'clock that evening, and had not the obstructions been discovered and removed, would certainly have been sent over a thirty foot embankment and probably into the river.

The offence with which the colored youths is charged is a very serious one, the maximum punishment being life imprisonment.

TO THE PRODIGALS.

Suggested on Reading the Election Returns from Alberta.

(With apologies to Martin Butler and other 20th century poets. May be sung to tune of Bluebell, The Good Old Summer Time, Annie Laurie or any old thing.)

Come away Dicky Bennett
From the wild, wicked west,
Come home to New Brunswick
And here take a rest
They have treated you shamefully,
In elections just run,
Trampling down your ambition
As if it were fun,
With all your great talents and
electoral skill,
They have snatched you
And endorsed young Autonomy Bill.

Then come home Dicky Bennett
There's a place for you here,
And a welcome awaits you,
Quite safe from the jeer
That rings through Alberta,
Resonant and clear
Bring "Rip" Simonds with you
Away from the leers
Of the wild western country,
The mocks and the cheers
Of Liberals who triumph.

And are quite unconcerned
That both you and "Rippy"
Are indignantly spurned,
In the great Liberal triumph
You and Rip have no part
And the tell tale returns
Must be breaking your heart.
There's room in New Brunswick,
For men of your grit,
And Calgary has served on you notice to quit,
Pack up your hot air stuff,
'Twill serve you well here,
Where Tories acknowledge
They have little to cheer.

Then come home Dicky Bennett
And Rip Simonds too
The East will applaud you
From the Cape to the Soo,
Ungrateful the west

In declining to woo
Such high-minded patriots,
Of the bright Tory hue,
Leave Doukhobours, Norwegians and
Galicians all
Come back to your ain land
And retrieve your great fall,
We've sympathy yet
For outcast and distressed,
And will heartily welcome you home from the west.

The Prodigal of old after herding
with swine
Made haste to get back
To those of his kind,
He'd been up against fate
And was downed in the strife
And was glad to return to a civilized life,
Now Dicky and "Rippy" in the very same class
Make haste to emerge from the tall prairie grass,
In which you have hidden,
Since electors descends
Made both of you look like twice 30 cents.
