AGAINST PENSIONS.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth's condemnation of the pension system in principle and practice, uttered at his first meeting in the North York bye-election campaign in which he is the Liberal candidate seeking endorsement as postmaster-general, may possibly be taken as an indication of the early repeal of the law granting pensions to cabinet ministers after five years service, holding a portfolio.

It is scarcely probable that a responsible minister of the crown would make a deliverance of that kind unless he believed himself in agreement with his colleagues on the question, and unless the government had decided to reconsider the pension question and propose its abolition, which would be popular throughout the country.

Mr. Aylesworth could scarcely hold his portfolio if he were in disagreement with his leader and colleagues on so important a question, and he is not the kind of a man who would consent to enter the ministry in disguise and immediately thereafter denounce a principle and a practice if he did not feel pretty well assured that both would be discarded by the government.

A CORDIAL RECEPTION.

Prince Louis of Battenberg is having a good time in the United States. At Washington yesterday he was received by the president to whom he presented a personal introduction from King Edward and had a chance to dance with some of the pretty girls at the British embassy ball.

When the Prince strikes New York, next week, there will be a hot time. The entertainment of him and his gallant officers will be on a huge scale in Gotham.

All this fuss and display is not alone on account of the presence of a live prince, although our American friends delight in honoring royalty, but are in a measure evidence of the cordial relations existing between Great Britain and the United States.

Prince Louis is a diplomat as well as an admiral, and the Admiralty made a wise choice when they selected him to command the squadron to visit America.

Usually in a court of law, strong

Usually in a court of law, strong language is used by opposing counsel towards each other or is directed at witnesses, but in a British Columbia case the judge took a hand, denouncing the lawyers engaged in the case, and telling the jury to pay no attention to what they had said in their addresses.

The presiding judge was Hon. Aulay Morrison a former M. P., raised to the bench last year, and his remarks are thus summarized from the Vancouver World:

"Dismiss all that counsel on either side has said to you," was the very direct instruction to the jury in the Golden case, given by his lordship, Mr. Justice Morrison, on Wednesday afternoon, when delivering his charge.

The trial of Joseph Golden, charged with forging a post-office order, was prolific in incidents. The greatest sensation of the day came, however, when his lordship proceeded to address the jury. Beginning with the deputy attorney-general and passing on to counsel for the defence, the learned judge commented in very severe terms upon their conduct during the hearing. Taking up the thread of the story told by the witnesses, he punctuated almost every paragraph with a further reference to one or other counsel, not always of a very complimentary nature, and concluded with an exhortation to the jury that they should not allow any feelings evoked by counsel for the defence to prejudice their minds against the prisoner.

"It is a matter for regret," said his lordship, "that in charging you I must deprecate the conduct of counsel on both sides in this case. The deputy attorney-general had no business to point to the prisoner in the box say that there was no doubt that he was one of a gang of forgers. That is a matter for you to determine and not for counsel to say. Counsel for the accused had also indulged in statements which he might easily have refrained from making use of, and he was quite unjustified in his attack on the learned deputy attorney-general. Such statements serve to no good purpose, but serve only to take your minds away from the real things you have to consider. They might, although I trust not in this case, have some influence upon a jury.

"Counsel for the accused also said that since Powers had been convicted for uttering a forged document no one else could be convicted for the same offence. Such a statement, gentlemen, is simply a reflection on your intelligence, as well as well as my own. I want to caution you against listening to counsel on either side. Pay no attention to what you have heard. I would also say pay no attention to anything I may say—that is, so far as the facts are concerned. You are the judges. You have heard the witnesses. It is for you to say whether you believe them or not. Ignore absolutely every word counsel on either side has said. Neither the length nor the vociferousness of an address should have the slightest effect upon you. Counsel refer to each other and reciprocate this and that, but you should not consider that at all."

Concluding, he said that he felt that he ought to apologize for addressing them at such length, but he must give them one more caution. Juries sometimes resented the manner in which counsel for the defence conducted their cases. They much remember, however, that it was the prisoner and not the counsel who was on trial and they must be careful not to allow anything counsel had said or done to prejudice them against the man in the dock.

The stealings of Bank Manager Brown at Hamilton, Ont., it is said amounted to $130,000. He was a very high roller on a salary of $2,000, carrying heavy life insurance and sporting like a millionaire.

BURIED IN ONE GRAVE.

Gagetown Man and Wife Followed Each Other Closely to the Beyond.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Howard, of Gagetown, who died within twenty-four hours of each other—the latter on Tuesday and the former on Wednesday of this week, left three sons and three daughters. Mr. Howard was 77 years of age and his wife was 81. They had resided at Gagetown for thirty years and won the respect of the whole community.

Of their sons one is a resident of Boston, a second in Eastport, Me., and the third is Edward, who is employed with the James Pender Co. in St. John. There are two daughters at home and one in Portland, Me. A brother, Mr. Howard lives in Woodstock. There are also living twelve grand children of the worthy couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard were buried Thursday in the Gagetown cemetery a double funeral, at which many attended, being held.

AMONG THE CURLERS.

Annual Meeting on Tuesday Evening—New Room Painted and Furnished.

The annual meeting of the Fredericton curling club will be held at the rink on Tuesday evening next for the election of officers and the transaction of other important business incidental to the opening of the season.

The club members will meet for the first time in their elegant new room finished last spring over the ante-rooms, and recently newly painted and furnished. It is probable that there will be some important revision of the bye-laws. A new president is to be elected this year, President Hawthorne's term having expired, and the probable choice is causing considerable interest among the members.

The club is stronger in membership and financially than ever before, and a very successful season is anticipated.

HEALTH RECORD.

Number of Cases of Contagious Diseases Reported During the Year.

From a statement prepared by Mr. R. H. Phillips, health inspector, it is shown that there were 112 cases of typhoid fever reported in Fredericton during the year ending October 31st. The number of diphtheria cases was 22, chicken-pox 5, and measles 23. The following table shows the number of cases reported each month.

BITS OF NEWS.

Timothy Lynch has caused a writ to be issued against the Wm. Richards Co., for $4,000.

It is officially announced that King Edward has appointed Colonel Sir Claude MacDonald, minister of Great Britain at Tokio, and former minister at Peking, to be first ambassador to Japan.

The Allan mail steamer Bavarian, which left Quebec Friday evening for Liverpool, ran ashore at Wye Rock, just off Grosse Ile quarantine station. It is said she has received some damage. Assistance will be sent immediately.

The secretary of state has not yet dealt with the dispute between the two Grand Falls power companies. There is an impression that the companies will get together and in that event there will be no necessity for Hon. Mr. Scott to exercise his authority.

A fatal accident occurred Friday at Lormville, Quebec, on the level crossing of the Grand Trunk Railway. A light engine struck a rig containing three people. Two were killed, sons of Herbert Hawes and H. H. Clark. The third boy, named Shores, is probably fatally injured.

Hon. R. L. Borden, leader of the opposition, will be banquetted at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Thursday, Dec. 14. The banquet will be under the auspices of the Borden Club, and is estimated that Borden will defend the increase of indemnity to members of parliament.

It was announced Friday by the district attorney's office that Edward G. Cunliffe, the express robber, would be sentenced on Saturday, Nov. 11. Cunliffe, who pleaded guilty to two charges of larceny, can be sentenced only to six years in the penitentiary, three years each on the two counts of larceny, one for $100,000 and one for $1,000.

HONORED BY THE PRINCE.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gillespie Invited To New York Ball for Prince Louis of Battenberg.

St. John Times.—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gillespie of this city have received an invitation to the grand ball to be given in New York in honor of Prince Louis of Battenberg.

As far as known Mrs. Gillespie is the only lady from the Maritime Provinces to whom such an honor has been accorded.

Mrs. Gillespie met Prince Louis at the reception in St. John and again at the state ball at Fredericton, where his serene highness danced three times with the St. John lady. It is understood that the invitation to the New York ball was personally extended by Prince Louis.

MRS. RAYMOND'S DEATH.

Mrs. George L. Raymond, mother of Mrs. C. H. Lugin, of Victoria, B. C., formerly of this city, and grandmother of Hon. W. P. Jones, solicitor general, died at Olympia, Washington State, Tuesday, aged 85 years.
