PRINCE AT WASHINGTON.

A Round of Festivities in Honor of His Serene Highness of Battenberg.

PRESENTED AUTOGRAPH LETTER FROM KING TO PRESIDENT.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Rear Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg was received by the president and Mrs. Roosevelt at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. The prince was the bearer of a personal message of good will from King Edward to President Roosevelt and was presented to the president by Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador. The presentation was made the occasion for a brilliant reception.

Last night the British ambassador and Lady Durand gave a state dinner to their distinguished house guest followed by a large reception and ball.

Save for the absence of military honors, Prince Louis' entry to the capital yesterday has been invested with as much ceremony as that which made memorable the greeting to Prince Henry of Prussia several years ago. Yesterday was the busiest day that he has spent since his arrival at Annapolis Wednesday.

Shortly after eight o'clock in the morning, the prince, his personal staff and officers of his squadron at Annapolis repaired aboard the Yankton, tender of the North Atlantic fleet. Half an hour later the Yankton weighed anchor, and started up the harbor. The prince, after chatting gaily with the flag officers, joined the junior officers in the ward room.

Admiral Sands greeted the prince at the naval academy boat landing and escorted the party to carriages which took them across the town to the special train that was waiting at the Baltimore & Ohio station to convey the party to Washington reaching here at 11:31 a. m. ROOSEVELT'S HEARTY GREETING.

Shortly before 3 o'clock in the afternoon Prince Louis and Sir Mortimer Durand arrived at the White House. The party was met at the main entrance by the president's military and naval aides and escorted to the Blue Room, where a distinguished company awaited their arrival. In a few moments the great carved wood doors swung open and the president and Mrs. Roosevelt entered. The prince was presented by Sir Mortimer Durand and the former immediately delivered the royal message to the president. The prince then presented the members of his staff and the commanding officers of his squadron.

Both the president and Mrs. Roosevelt were markedly cordial and heartily in their welcome, the president expressing the hope that every moment of the visit of the British squadron in American waters would prove enjoyable to them. The president and the prince then entered into an earnest talk about the various problems of a modern navy.

The reception lasted about an hour. Secretary Bonaparte left the reception early and returned to the navy department to assemble the chiefs of bureaus of the department in his reception room to await the official call of the prince. They were kept waiting for more than an hour, the prince through a misunderstanding having returned to the embassy from the White House. When he finally arrived, accompanied by his personal staff, he apologized quite frankly to the secretary and the chiefs of the bureaus and expressed his keen regret at the incident.

Thirty-six guests made up the company at the dinner given in honor of the prince by the ambassador and Lady Durand, which included besides the prince and the officers of his party and the embassy staff, the secretary of state and Mrs. Root, the admiral of the navy and Mrs. Dewey, the lieutenant general of the army and Mrs. Chaffee, the commander-in-chief of the North Atlantic fleet and Mrs. Evans, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Davis, Rear Admiral Brownson, the assistant secretary of state and Mrs. Bacon and assistant secretary of war and Mrs. Oliver.

Three hundred additional guests were invited at 10:30 o'clock for the reception and ball. The spacious state apartments of the embassy were elaborately decorated with American Beauty roses, violets and palms.

Later in the evening the Prince led the way to the splendid ball room of the embassy and opened the ball with Miss Durand. The brilliant scene in the ball room has seldom been equalled in Washington.

A Dominion Atlantic special freight train ran into an intercolonial working train at Lakeville, N. S., at one o'clock this morning, making a bad smashup. The D. A. R. engine was thrown over the embankment and into the lake, the engineer, Joseph Spinney, having a very close call. But he escaped and no one was seriously hurt. The wreckage blocks the track, and it has also carried away all the Western Union wires.

MARYSVILLE NEWS.

The Hockey Outlook Said to be Bright
—Prof. Chisholm to Locate at Marysville.

Nov. 4.—As the cold weather advances so does the excitement about hockey and if arrangements can be made with the rink management here the Crescents will put a strong team on the ice this winter and are very anxious to get into the provincial league.

With Lennie Inch home this season, Marysville should establish an A 1 team. There are Eddie Dennison, Frank Robinson, Fred Smith, Billie Cain, Ben Fullerton, Wilfrid Black, Billie McConaghy, Gordon Hovey, "Boss" Arnold, Fred Robinson and others who would make a strong team and a good showing for the season, and it is hoped that they will organize and make satisfactory arrangements and come to some agreement with the management, as hockey promises to be more popular than ever this winter.

Marysville certainly wants something to live things up a bit, and with a good hockey team skating will boom.

Mrs. E. Miles Merritt and Miss Fanny C. Merritt returned home today from Boston, after a delightful four months visit.

It is understood that Professor C. L. Chisholm and family are soon to take up their residence in Marysville. The many friends of Mrs. Chisholm will be pleased to learn that she is soon to return to her native town, and the professor with his musical talent will be a valuable acquisition to the community. They will reside in the "big house." They

TIN WEDDING.

Woodstock Sentinel.—The tenth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Balmann was fittingly celebrated on Tuesday evening by about fifty of their friends visiting the estimable couple in the manner of a surprise party. At eight o'clock the self-invited guests marched up to the Balmann residence and walked in laden with presents made of tin in almost every conceivable shape and size. The hours were spent in games and conversation interspersed with music. About midnight a fine supper was served, each lady having brought a tempting delicacy. (Mrs. Balmann is a sister of Mrs. Wesley Vanwart of this city.)
