WINTHROP MYSTERY SOLVED.

Boston Police Locate Doctor in Dress Suit Murder Case.

Boston, Oct. 31.—Just before leaving the office at police headquarters tonight, Chief Inspector W. B. Watts stated that the doctor who dismembered the body of Susanna Geary, the suit case victim, had been located. He did not expect, however, that any arrests would be made for a day or two, intimating that the police were awaiting something more definite from Morris Nathan, the lover of the girl, who is now in custody in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Chief Watts' statement was as follows: "The doctor has been located. We know where he is and can probably put our hands on him when we want him. There is no need of seeking any further clues as far as this man is concerned, because we know where he is."

The chief then added that he did not look for an arrest either tonight or tomorrow.

The theory of the police regarding the whole affair is that Miss Geary went to a woman and submitted to a criminal operation. It was not a success and a male physician was called in who attempted to save the girl's life by a second operation for peritonitis. Miss Geary, however, died. The doctor then dismembered the body and distributed portions of it in two suit cases, which were subsequently found.

The charge against the woman can only be one of manslaughter, while according to Supt. Pierce of the local force, it will be difficult to bring any charge against Nathan unless he should be accused of concealing a crime.

That both a woman and a man were with Miss Geary during her last hours or days, is believed to be shown by the physician's certificate, which was sent to the manager of "the Shepherd King" Company, of which she and Nathan were members, giving an excuse for her absence. The certificate was written by a woman, while the address on the envelope was in a man's handwriting.

Mrs. Geary, the mother of the unfortunate girl, accompanied by her daughter, Evelyn, had a long conference with the Cambridge police officials this forenoon, during which she denied that she knew of her daughter's trouble and expressed her belief in Nathan's innocence.

The Boston officials had several long conversations by telephone with two men who were sent to Pittsburgh on Sunday to bring Nathan back.

A despatch from that city this afternoon stated that the Pittsburgh officers said there would be an arrest here of a man and a woman was shown the superintendent of police who regretted that publicity had been given the statement as he believed it would defeat the ends of justice.

With the exception of a few minor details the police regard the suit case mystery as practically solved.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 31.—With the reluctant consent of his attorneys against the advice of the physician called in, Morris Nathan, arrested herein connection with the Winthrop suit case mystery, left the city tonight at 11 o'clock for Boston in the custody of Silas P. Smith of the Massachusetts state constabulary.

WITTE'S STRONG ARGUMENTS.

How the Count Induced the Czar of Russia to Sign the Rescript—Rioting at Odessa.

Berlin, Nov. 1.—(Special)—The correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger, St. Petersburg, says he has learned from well informed sources the following details of Count Witte's interview on Monday with the Emperor when he prevailed upon His Majesty to sign the rescript.

The right party had been working upon the Emperor to prevent him from signing the rescript, when Count Witte appeared. His Majesty asked Count if the imperial signature could be postponed. The count thereupon called attention to the frightful condition of affairs within the empire, especially to the last mutiny in the Black Sea Fleet and referring to a despatch from Berlin announcing a heavy drop in Russian bonds. Count Witte said that not an hour must be lost and that delay of a day or two would usher in a revolution with all its horrors. Immediately thereupon the Emperor consented to sign.

THE LUMBER SCALERS

Held An Important Conference With Surveyor General Sweeney Today.

A conference of the different lumber scalers of the province was held in the executive council chamber here this morning. Nearly all the scalers of the province were present with the exception of several who were detained at home through illness.

Hon. Surveyor General Sweeney who presided, was introduced to the scalers by Mr. W. P. Flewelling.

The meeting was for the purpose of receiving instructions regarding their work. Exchanging mutual ideas and suggestions and of becoming acquainted with the surveyor general and with one another. Reports were also presented from the different districts and the lumber prospects and conditions talked over. Speeches were made by Hon. Mr. Sweeney, Messrs. Fish, Sinclair and others in which they expressed themselves pleased with the conference and as having profited by the interchange of ideas. The scalers have a better idea of the duties required of them and of the conditions existing in the different districts as a result of the convention.

Several of the scalers gave expression to the pleasure they felt that the surveyor general had such a grasp of the affairs of his department and of the courteous and gentlemanly way he had treated the different members of the conference.

O'REGAN'S DEATH.

St. John Doctors Think it was Caused by Northrup's Blow.

The inquest to determine the cause of the death of Charles O'Regan, who died on Monday night after sparring with Fred Northrup, was begun in the St. John court house last evening. Owing to the dramatic and unusual nature of the case, there was a very large attendance of spectators, the room being crowded almost to suffocation.

The following jury was empanelled in the afternoon by the coroner: S. L. Gorbell (foreman), David Watson, R. T. Worden, R. H. B. Tennant, F. Small.

The jury viewed the remains before the opening of the inquiry.

The evidence of Dr. J. W. Daniel and Dr. Bentley, who performed the post-mortem examination on the remains of the deceased, was the most important heard last evening. The only other witnesses examined were Chief of Police Clark and Wm. H. O'Keefe, who referred the fatal bout.

The medical men concurred in the opinion that O'Regan's death was caused by concussion of the brain induced by concussion. The concussion, in their opinion, might have been due to a blow on the head. The deceased was found to be in a healthy condition with the exception of the rupture of the veins. His heart, they said, was perfectly sound. The external evidences of violence they testified were slight.

A. W. Macrae, J. A. Sinclair, and E. S. Ritchie were present on behalf of Northrup.

MARRIAGE TO UNITE RICH FAMILIES.

The Vanderbilts and the Pulitzer lines are to be united in marriage, Ralph Pulitzer, son of the proprietor of The New York World, is to wed Miss Fredericka Vanderbilt Webb, great granddaughter of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, October 14.

It is a match to which much significance will attach. It lifts the family of the New York editor into the plane of highest social recognition. It unites the fortunes of two families whose money has been self made, for Pulitzer and Vanderbilt represent conditions peculiarly American, and their success would not have been possible in any other country.

When more than forty years ago, Joseph Pulitzer, a young Austrian of frail physique, came to the United States, the grandfather of the girl his son is now to wed, then one of the richest men in the country, was soon to become the richest, and the great fortune that he left was destined to be troubled by his son, William H. Vanderbilt. The latter was father of Lela Osgood Vanderbilt, mother of Miss Fredericka, who is to be the bride of Ralph Pulitzer.

The future editor of the big New York paper labored under more than the disadvantages of poverty and the lack of friends. He was delicate to the point of weakness, and his right of power and influence, is one of the most prized achievements of newspaper history.

When he brought The World to the front he developed a property which had once been successful under the editorship of James Watson Webb. It was then known as The Courier and Inquirer. Only a few years before Pulitzer had crossed the Atlantic it had been purchased by Alexander Cumming, and Mr. Webb was installed as editor.

It is a remarkable coincidence in this marriage that the Webb under whom the paper enjoyed the only period as American Minister at Brazil, Pulitzer regime was a grandfather of the young lady who is to be Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer.

This Webb, General James Watson Webb, was a power in New York journalism at the time of the Civil War. He was the intimate friend of William H. Seward, Secretary of State, and later in life spent a period as American Minister of Brazil.

His son, named for Secretary Seward, married Miss Vanderbilt about twenty six years ago, and since that time has profited by the prominence of both families to take an imposing social position.

The fortunes of the Vanderbilts and the Pulitzers are two names great in the history of the New York World, and its forerunner, the Courier and Inquirer, are thus to be joined.

In connection with the World, the name Pulitzer is likely to win further distinction, for unlike the other famous editors of New York, Pulitzer, Sr., has steadily planned to have his son succeed him in the conduct of the paper.

James Gordon Bennett forms the only parallel case. Here the son carries on the Herald, made famous by the father. From boyhood Ralph Pulitzer has been trained with the idea of succeeding to the proprietorship of the World, and in the five years that have elapsed since his graduation from Harvard, he has taken a considerable share of the burden from the shoulders of his father.

When the cornerstone of the present Pulitzer Building was laid, Ralph Pulitzer, then but a boy, took an active part in the ceremonies, and many will remember the eager faced youth who, trowel in hand, took the first step toward identifying himself with his father's interests, and shared with him the glory of the fruition of the elder Pulitzer's dreams.

The marriage of the young pair, whose destinies seem to have been bound together in the experiences of their forebears, will take place at Shelburne Farms, the big Vermont country place of Dr. and Mrs. Webb. It will be a country wedding, and the tenantry and hundreds of employees on the estate, most of whom have known the bride from childhood will have an active part in the festivities organized for the occasion.

The Webbs will entertain a large house party in honor of the wedding of the daughter, at which the Vanderbilts will be conspicuously in evidence.

A sum of wealth will be represented in the combined holdings of that brilliant company, which would form a tidy fortune for any monarch of Europe. And yet only a few generations ago, both the ancestors of it, Vanderbilt and Pulitzer, were penniless and had to build all from nothing.

Mr. Pulitzer has known Miss Webb for about two years. He met her in the West, and her fine combination of talents, democracy and common sense soon won the regard of the young editor.

Miss Webb has ideals as to what wealth owes to the community, and her estimate of moneyed people is all ways based on what they do for that part of society that is less favored with wealth. Young Pulitzer finds these ideas fitting entirely with his own and those of his father, who has performed many facts of broad and wise charity in the most inostentatious way.

U. N. B. DEFEATED.

Shut out by Dalhousie College at Halifax Yesterday.

Halifax, Oct. 31.—Dalhousie won from the University of New Brunswick today, 16 to 0, the same figures that the Halifax College scored against the New Brunswick boys when the latter were here two years ago. About 400 people saw the match. The play was rather of a listless character. The visitors fought gamely to the end and several times nearly caught their opponents napping. Dalhousie made two tries and two goals, scoring twice in the first half, but twenty minutes elapsed in the second period before the third try was made and the fourth was scored a few minutes later.

In the first half Dalhousie's half-backs came in for considerable work and did some pretty passing, both tries being obtained in that way. But in the second half, although Dalhousie forwards showed that they were disinclined to be strenuous, scrum play was persisted in and as the U. N. B. eight were working well they frequently got the ball. Their halves, however, showed that they knew little of combination work and they thus were unable to profit by the chances.

The U. N. B. is playing Acadia today at Wolfville.

TARIFF REVISION.

May not be Taken up by Parliament Next Session.

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—(Special)—The likelihood is that there will be no tariff revision at the approaching session of parliament. The matter has not yet been dealt with by the government but it looks now as if this was to be the case. It will take until after the holidays are over to finish the inquiry into all the industries and to take up the tariff afterwards would mean a long tedious session.

Hon. F. J. Sweeney, surveyor general, is among the guests at the Queen.

Mr. W. H. Berry of St. Stephen, is in the city today.

THE WHEAT CROP.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—(Special)—The Canadian Pacific Railway has leased the Tilsonberg, Lake Erie, railway in Western Ontario. The C. P. R. will take over the road on Nov. 15th and new branches will be constructed. About one quarter of the wheat crop, or 21,000,000 bushels, has been marketed in the west. The figures to date last year were 10,000,000 bushels.

MONTREAL STOCK MARKET.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—(Special)—Today's quotations in the stock exchange were as follows: Dominion Iron & Steel, 21, 21, 21½; Dominion I. & S. pfd, 7½, 7½; C. P. R. 17½, 17½, 17½; Twin City, 117½, 118, 117; Montreal Power, 92, 91½, 91½; Rich & Ontario Navigation, 7½.

THE BRIGGS CASE.

Mrs. Briggs was brought before the Police Magistrate at three o'clock this afternoon, but owing to the illness of the prisoner's counsel, Mr. O. S. Crockett, the case was adjourned until Friday morning at eleven o'clock. The evidence is now all in as far as the prosecution is concerned and the defence have not yet decided to call witnesses.

FRIDAY'S GREAT EVENT.

All Should Hear The "Schuberts" Open the Spencer Star Course.

The Y. M. C. A. members are delighted with the prospects in connection with the Spencer Star Course which is being held under their direction. Tickets are selling rapidly, and there seems no question but what the house will be filled Friday evening to hear the great "Schuberts" open the Spencer Star Course. Season tickets are now selling rapidly and those who have not secured them should do so immediately as there seems a good prospect of there being but few remaining seats by Friday. The Course ticket costing but one dollar will admit to all the entertainments, and a reserved seat costs but 25c. extra. In St. John every seat in the Opera House is disposed of for the season including 200 chairs to be placed upon the stage. No one in Fredericton should miss the splendid attractions to be found in this Course, particularly as the price is within the reach of all.
