A DANCE HALL TRAGEDY.

Echo of the Election Frauds in New York.

ONE MAN KILLED AND ANOTHER FATALLY INJURED.

New York, Nov. 23.—(Special)—The election frauds are believed by the police to have caused the murder last night of W. F. Harrington, in a little dance hall, and also probably fatal injuries to another man who was found with a fractured skull some distance away from that resort. The injured man is identified as Abraham Jackerman.

The dance hall on Jones' street is conducted by Paul Kelley. From papers found on the dead man and from information taken from the prisoners and three women arrested after the murder, the police learned that the quarrel started over election matters.

The prisoners still had marked ballots in their pockets when arrested. In the bar-room, Harrington was killed with a revolver bullet which left the floor spotted with blood and riddled pictures on the wall.

Alex. Bernard Scott, one of those arrested, said the fight was started by four members of the Liberty Association, which was hostile to the Kelly gang who came into the room at midnight.

One of these men, Scott says, immediately ordered drinks for the whole crowd.

When every one was drinking, he insolently pounded with his fist on the bar and exclaimed: "My best friend was shot here Tuesday morning. Are there any of you here who know how to shoot? If you do I'd like to have you begin."

The challenge was accepted and a battle followed. The police say five shots were fired.

When the police arrived, Harrington was dead on the floor and all others including the women in the dance hall, fled after turning out the lights.

The dead man's dog was found lying over his master's body and whining.

The police believe that a quarrel over the division of election money was in the initial cause of the fight.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Young Man Enraged at Refusal to Admit Him to Girl's Presence, Slew Brother and Took His Own Life.

Nyack, N. Y., Nov. 23.—(Special)—The body of Wm. H. Jones, who last night shot and killed Harry Bryon, and wounded Frank Bryon was found this morning in rear of the Baptist church, near the scene of last night's murder. Jones shot himself through the head with a revolver of 38 calibre which was found near his body.

The discovery of the body followed an all night search for Jones, which began soon after the shooting at the Bryon home.

The murder and suicide followed the attempt of Jones to see Jessie Bryon with whom he was infatuated.

Her brothers refused him admittance in the house, whereupon he drew a revolver and began firing. Harry Bryon was instantly killed and his brother was severely wounded.

At the hospital this morning it was said that Frank Bryon would probably recover. Jones was a decorator employed in a painting shop, about 35 years of age, and claimed to be a Cuban.

THE LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE.

Neither Side Will Yield and More Men Are Being Brought from Montreal.

St. John, Nov. 23.—(Special)—There is very little change in the situation here today between the longshoremen and the shipping men.

Both sides hold firm and of the 26 strike breakers brought from Montreal, but four refused to work when they learned that a strike was on.

A spirited meeting was held on the McLeod wharf at noon, when an endeavor was made to get a gang of men to work at 30 cents per hour. The men who had previously promised, refused, and the crew of the steamer was put to work.

Donaldson Line announce that fifty men will arrive from Montreal tomorrow to work on the steamer.

AN IMPORTANT WITNESS.

Nurse Who Knows Considerable of the Boston Mystery Has Been Found.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 23.—After a diligent search that lasted several weeks, the police have succeeded in locating Miss Sarah Elizabeth Griffiths, the young professional nurse who attended Susanna A. Geary, victim of the "sail case tragedy", and in whose arms the unfortunate chorus girl died before dawn on Sept. 19, at the home of Mrs. Mary S. Bean, 68 Winthrop street, Roxbury.

The authorities are elated over finding Miss Griffiths, for her presence materially strengthens the government's case against Mrs. Bean, Dr. McLeod and Hunt and Crawford, whose joint trial will begin next Monday before Judge Stevens in the Superior Criminal Court.

Miss Griffiths was found Tuesday morning at 627 Tremont street, where she has lodged two years. Without delay she was escorted to the office of District Attorney Sughrue, where she had a conference with Mr. Sughrue and Capt. Dugan. Then she was taken before Judge Stevens in court, as soon as court opened, was placed under $500 bonds to appear as a state witness, and was sent to the branch home of the North End Mission at 31 Worcester Square, where she will be kept under surveillance until her testimony is required.

Miss Griffiths knows what hand performed the first bungling operation on the dancing girl in that cheerless chamber of the Winthrop street house, knows just what part Mrs. McLeod and Pettie played in the subsequent desperate but futile attempts to avert the worst. She has vivid recollections of the agony of the dying girl, of her heart-rending appeals to send for her mother and a clergyman. Miss Griffiths can describe, too, the terrors of that scene, the feverish excitement, the indescribable dread of detection. It is understood, too, that she can tell of the plans hastily formulated for the disposition of the victim's body and of the dismembering while it was yet warm, the packing of the parts in the bags and the removal of the gruesome packets from the house.

Miss Griffiths, besides, all this, can tell many more things the authorities, think, if she chooses. That is why they are so jubilant over finding her. She can undoubtedly tell who it was who suggested mutilating the body and getting rid of it. The authorities were pleased to procure Miss Coulter, the domestic, but she is not nearly so well versed in the case as the young nurse, they think.

Crawford and Hunt, alias Howard have talked with uncommon freedom in their confessions made in New York, and since, but the authorities place far more reliance in Miss Griffiths than in either of them or any one else as to what actually occurred at 68 Winthrop street. They feel that she is less biased and prejudiced, and not being a defendant, that she will not be so apt to be actuated by any desire to place the blame and responsibility on someone else.

Miss Griffiths has frankly told the authorities all she knows. She referred with no little display of emotion to the death scene of Miss Geary which was so tragic that it touched even herself and the doctors, who are caloused by long contact with fatal cases of illness.

"I pitied the poor child with all my heart," said Miss Griffiths. "When she cried for her mother and a priest I wanted them to send for both, but they refused. I have seen many people die, but that poor girl's last appeals touched me more than anything I can recall. I am not a Catholic, but I wanted to have them send for a priest at any rate. My intercessions were of no avail, though. They were afraid it would expose everything. What could I do?"

Miss Griffiths is said to be a native of England. She is 30 years of age, tall and slender and of medium complexion. She came to this country many years ago. The members of her immediate family live at Littleton, N. H. Seven or eight years ago she entered the City Hospital to become a nurse, but was taken sick before her course was completed, and was not taken back again owing to the fact that she was not considered strong enough for the work.

Later she went to Philadelphia and received a diploma from the Maternity Hospital after a course of less than a year. That was about 1901, and she has been located in this city ever since. She has been acquainted with Dr. McLeod four or five years and has been retained by him to nurse a great many of his cases. No 627 Tremont street where she lodges, is rented by a physician and his wife, who do not wish to have their names figure in the affair.
