Gentle Fan, here's a query that may interest you and remind you of every baseball game you've ever seen.

In how many games can six singles be made in succession in one inning, without a run being scored?

Even as in the stringing together of musical notes, to the combination of freak plays in baseball there is no end. The possibility of something happening that never has been pulled off before glues your eyes to the field.

Over in Jersey City, the other day, the skeeters were batting with the Montreal. A gentleman had acquired two strikes, thanks to the generous curves of the pitcher. A third straight one was put over the plate and the batsman heaved madly at it. He missed the ball. The catcher was struck in the mask by the missile, and looked frantically around for it. He couldn't find it. The grandstand and bleachers shrieked at him: "Look in your mask!" The catcher shed the iron cage and there was the ball embedded in the meshes. When the story came in the office the incredulous, careful guy that don't let us make any mistakes in tales laughed. But the called up the Jersey City chap, noted for his veracity, and received matter-of-fact, honest confirmation of the report.

Not long ago one of the Yankees' opponents kicked a foul ball that Jim McGuire looked for, as did the Jersey catcher. Jim couldn't find it. He browsed around until "Silk" O'Loughlin approached him and took the pellet from a reef Jim's belt had made in his upper clothing.

Willie Keeler tells us that once when a member of the Chicago team had belted a hummer into right field the ball raced like a locomotive for the entrance gate. There was a hole dug by some youngster in the sod. The roller bounded from the fence and lodged like a golf ball in the dent. Willie was running so hard that he could not stop, and went fifteen feet past the proper spot before he could turn. In the meantime Mr. Chicago had circled the four bases.

The only thing in the world that's more freaky than a baseball in action is a woman.

Pittsburg produced a weird situation—talking of freaks—recently, Klem, that much abused umpire, had handed to him the worst line of conversation a human being could stand, by eight sweet things, lolling on the Smoky City bench. He went any umpire that ever happened one better by sending every one of the eight to the tall grass. He also—just to show there was no hard feelings—fined each ten dollars.

All of which, and that's not all, indicates that baseball can spring something new under the sun.

WRESTLING.

There was quite an unexpected occurrence at one of the music halls in London where George Hackenschmidt the world's champion wrestler, is appearing just now meeting all comers. The "Russian Lion" who is drawing large crowds, offers fifty dollars to any man who lasts fifteen minutes with him in a bout, under either catch-as-catch-can or Gracioroman rules and one thousand dollars to the man who can defeat him.

This alluring bait helps to attract a lot of opponents and almost every time that Hackenschmidt goes on the mat he has two or three men ready to go against him.

After disposing of "Prince" Deco Dahomey, a colored wrestler and weight lifter, in three minutes and thirteen seconds, Gus Rennart, a finely built athlete, weighing about 244 pounds, then faced Hackenschmidt. Rennart is a clever man, but it was evident that he was not in the best of condition, for before the contest had proceeded a minute, Rennart was puffing. But he was not afraid in the least and went at Hackenschmidt tried to get a waist lock on his man with the evident intention of tossing his opponent around and then securing a hammer lock but Rennart was too quick, and fell on his stomach. Hackenschmidt worked over his man and had a good half Nelson on Rennart which the latter broke. Then Rennart got to his feet and rushed at Hackenschmidt. With a quick move and excellent judgment Rennart caught Hackenschmidt around the waist. The Russian went to the mat. Rennart, mustering all of his strength, fairly brought Hackenschmidt in the air and threw him to the carpet. It was done so quickly that the crowd could not understand how it all happened.

Hackenschmidt was furious and rushed Rennart to the end of the stage. The latter lifted the Russian twice in succession, sending his man to the floor with a thud. By this time the spectators began to realize that Hackenschmidt had at last met his equal in strength and cheered. They urged him to beat "Hack" and although he made a gallant endeavor, Rennart's condition told and he immediately acted on the defensive.

Hackenschmidt then applied a full Nelson and Rennart weakened under the pressure. Rennart was then thrown in seven minutes and forty seconds. This was the first time in Hackenschmidt's career as a professional that he had been handled so roughly and after the match Hackenschmidt congratulated Rennart. He told him that with training and experience he might develop into one of the best grapplers in the business.

Some women's appreciation of their own sex doesn't rise any higher than the salaries they have to pay their hired girls.

BOMB FOR A BANKER.

New York Financier Receives Infernal Machine.

Was One of Those Who Recently Visited M. Witte in Interest of Russian Jews

New York, Aug. 21.—An explosive package capable of causing death was sent to Jacob H. Schiff, the banker, today at the office of Kuhn, Loeb & Company, of which he is a member. Mr. Schiff was at Bar Harbor today, and when the machine, enclosed in a wooden box about six inches long was received at his office clerks immediately sent it to the police. At first the police reported that the affair was a joke. Further investigation by an expert revealed the presence of thirty-one grains of a high explosive powder and two thirty-two calibre loaded cartridges. Arranged so as to fire this charge merely by ordinary handling of the package was a cylinder of emery paper lying in contact with both the powder and several matches. The flash of this powder would have discharged the cartridges, which had been carefully filed at the culmination ends. Lead slugs were packed in besides the bullets, evidently to make the discharge more dangerous. Throughout the machine there was an oily saturation to insure the flash of any one of the matches reaching the powder. The whole mechanism was concealed under a newspaper wrapping of Wall street stock quotations. Mr. Schiff was one of the financial men who recently visited M. Witte, the Russian envoy at Portsmouth, in the interest of the Jews in Russia.

A second infernal machine resembling that sent to Jacob H. Schiff was received through the mail today at the office of M. Guggenheim's Sons at 71 Broadway. The contents were nearly the same as those of the Schiff bomb. A clerk was suspicious of the package, as the address was made of printed letters cut from a newspaper, and he placed the package in water. After standing there a short time there was a slight explosion, due, it is thought, to gases generating in the box. In addition to the contents of the Schiff bomb, that received at Mr. Guggenheim's office contained a small glass vial in which was some liquid thought to be either nitro-glycerine or olive oil.

About the Size of One. "Is that a chicken?" asked the boarder dismally.

"Of course," replied the landlady. "What did you think it was?"

"A canary," answered the boarder, as he counted the number of people to be served.
