

ONTARIO MURDER MYSTERY.

Murdered Woman at Barton Still Unknown.

DETECTIVES WORKING ON BARTON WOODS MYSTERY —A DESPERATE STRUGGLE.

Ground Around the Body Told Significant Story.

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 11.—The mystery of the murder that was brought to light yesterday afternoon by three boys who were gathering hickory nuts in Barton township—on a road between the house of a boy named Arthur Dobbs, 51 Simcoe street, north, and a boy named Chappell, 99 Macaulay street—occupied the attention of Detectives Campbell and Miller today, as well as Special Officer Nichol and a number of would-be amateur detectives. In the first place there was trouble in identifying the dead woman. It was given out this morning that she was Mrs. Carney, of Stony Creek, but Mrs. Carney was at home in her usual health. Then other names were suggested, and the authorities had a busy time trying to solve this feature of the mystery.

A good many people viewed the body but none of them could positively identify it.

SCENE OF THE MURDER.

The scene of the murder is a secluded spot on ex-Warden James Marshall's property, about two miles back of Mountain brow. The bush is not so thickly wooded generally. It is approached from a side road, and between the clump of bushes in which the body lay when found, and the fence is a cleared space of about one hundred yards. The place where the body lay, though only about one hundred yards from the road was hidden from the road by the thickest clump of bush on the place. The body was found lying on a slight incline, and it was on its left side. Just west of the place where the body was found there is considerable of a rise in the ground, which shuts out the view from the west.

EVIDENCE OF A DESPERATE STRUGGLE.

The ground for some distance around where the body lay gave evidence that there had been a desperate struggle. The ground was pretty well covered with dead leaves, and in places they were brushed into little heaps, as though scraped there by moving feet. The boys who made the discovery hurried to James Johnston's house, which is not far distant. Mr. Johnston notified the neighbors and the police, and then went to the scene of the murder about 5 o'clock. The body was lying on its left side, and was covered with a couple of boughs. They examined the ground beside the body, and found other evidence of a struggle besides the trampled ground. A number of small links of a steel watch chain were lying about. They were pulled link from link. There was no blood on the ground so far as could be seen, but any that fell would probably soak into the soil.

MAN AND WOMAN SEEN IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD.

Among those who were on the scene this morning were James Johnston, Robert Hannah, a central market butcher, and Mr. Marshall, who all live nearby.

Mr. Hannah said that on Monday morning about nine o'clock a man and woman passed his house, which is on the road that passes the bush. The woman was dressed in a black skirt, white waist and red hat, and she carried a fawn coat. The man wore a light suit of clothes and, he believed, a soft cap. They passed his place going south up the road, towards the bush.

Mr. Johnston and his son George, were working in a field just opposite the bush Monday morning. They also saw a man and a woman come up the road. The woman was dressed as Mr. Hannah described, but Mr. Johnston thought the man, who was five feet, nine or ten inches in height, wore a stiff hat. He was smoking a cigar and he carried a light coat on his arm. They were not sure whether he had a moustache or not. They saw the couple go into Mr. Marshall's place and go towards the bush, but thought nothing of it because people frequently went into the bush for hickory nuts, which are plentiful there. That was the last they saw of him. The incident was recalled last night when the body was discovered.

WOMAN'S HAT MISSING.

The detectives and others who were present searched the bush for the woman's hat, but found no trace of it. The supposition is that the murderer went south under cover of the bush and made his escape. The police are puzzled about the loss of the woman's hat, as they cannot understand why the man would take it away, and cannot account for its disappearance in any other way than that he took it.

The piece of burned paper and several burnt ends of matches which were lying near the body are in possession of the police, but are not thought likely to lead to anything. The paper was the wrapper from a whiskey bottle. The belief of those who live nearby is that the murderer intended to have burned the body of his victim, and that when he saw the smoke arising he put out the fire and started for fear it would be noticed and bring the neighbors over to put it out.

They were asked if a shot was heard that morning. They replied that it was a common thing to hear shots around there, as there were two stone quarries just west of the scene of the murder, where blasting is going on frequently. A shot heard around there would not be noticed because they are used to hearing them.

The detectives made inquiries along the road leading past the bush, and several people spoke of having seen a man and woman going south on it on Monday. They are now trying to trace the man and woman along the road towards the city.

WAGE-EARNER'S LOT IS TO BE HARDER.

With More Money in the World He Can Buy Less.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 11.—There prevailed in the important speeches before the American Bankers' Association convention here today the sentiment that financial legislation is necessary. Thirty-three hundred bankers applauded Secretary Shaw to the echo when he concluded a lengthy address, the burden of which was a panorama of the prosperity of the country, contrasted with a monetary system which is inflexible, and liable thereby to bring disaster at any crucial time. Frank A. Vandenberg, Vice-President of the National City Bank of New York, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, saw the same prosperity, and he also saw dangers ahead. Secretary Shaw suggested a remedy, a heavily-taxed national bank note currency, which would be drawn forth at times of unusual demand for money, and by reason of the tax be retired immediately upon changed conditions. Mr. Vandenberg had no advice to offer.

CHANGE THE BANKING METHODS.

Mr. Ridgely, Comptroller of the Currency, pointed out the necessity of changed methods in some respects in the Government's supervision of National Banks. President Swinney of the Association reviewed its growth and development for the year. President Roosevelt was applauded and thanked for his successful efforts in making peace between Japan and Russia. The President received the bankers and the ladies accompanying them at the White House.

In his address Mr. Frank A. Vandenberg said he believed the ease with which the financial world withstood the strain of a war which cost the combatant nations two billions of dollars was due to the greatly-increased production of gold in recent years. To this increased production he also gave the credit for the recovery from industrial depression during the past three years. At the same time he expressed the belief that in this very increase there was a possible future disturbance of values. Should the present rate of production continue he believed the volume of money in the world would be doubled in twenty years, with the result that prices of many commodities would be greatly increased, possibly doubled.

POOR OUTLOOK FOR THE WAGE-EARNER.

While the increase in the supply of money would tend to advance the price of real property, however, the price of an obligation repayable in money would not advance. Thus all persons having a fixed income, persons receiving a fixed salary or wage earners generally would be at a disadvantage, for their incomes would not tend to increase as rapidly as the purchasing power of their incomes decreased.

He believed, however, that the theory of the classical economists, that with the doubling of the gold stock would come a doubling of prices, would not hold entirely good. Such a result, he thought, would be prevented by the exploitation of virgin fields of development, such as followed the discovery of great quantities of gold in Mexico, Peru, California and Australia, and that the next few years would witness the expan-

PRESENT BRIGHT, BUT DANGERS AHEAD.

He declared the outlook at the present time to be very bright, but gave warning that almost assuredly there were dangers lurking in the situation. "Among those which we know exist comes first our illogical and unscientific currency system. We know that this system may at any time breed us trouble. Indeed, it is when other conditions are most favorable that the danger is greatest. A strain is on our currency system. We know that we are threatened by great social disorders; that the edict of a labor leader might change a cloudless outlook into an uncertain one. We know there is a disregard of law in labor unions and in corporation offices alike which is threatening our welfare.

IT IS A TIME FOR PRUDENCE.

"Should a stock market speculation start from the present high level of prices in the face of the extraordinary demand for capital and money which crops and business alike are making," said he, "the result might easily be temporary disaster. Although there may be many favorable features to the outlook, it is no time for prudence to be cast to the winds; no time for speculative commitments which would yield disaster if temporary reverses came; no time for laxness in any of the forms of business prudence and conservatism."

SUFFERING WOMEN

Find Health and Strength in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a most marvellous medicine," says Mrs. Louis Turcott, 665 Papineau street, Montreal. "They restored me to health and strength when I was in a most hopeless condition, and almost despaired of recovery. My trouble began a few years ago, when I passed through a severe illness, from which I did not regain my accustomed health and strength, though I had the very best of care and treatment. I seemed to grow weaker every day. I was pale and emaciated, had no appetite, could hardly go about, and found my life almost a burden. It seemed as though my blood had turned to water, and my nerves seemed completely shattered. All the time I was under medical treatment, but with no apparent benefit. One day a friend who called to see me, brought me some Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and asked me to take them. I did so, and after a couple of weeks I found my appetite improving, and took this as a sign that the pills were helping me, and I got another supply. In a few weeks more the change in my appearance and condition was marvellous, and friends who dropped in to see me, hardly thought I was the same person. It was not much longer until I was completely cured; in fact felt better than I have done for years before. I am, therefore, very happy to make known to all ailing women the fact that they can find new health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Mrs. Turcott's experience with this medicine is the same as thousands of others. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the greatest cure for the ailments due to poor blood. All the weakness of anaemia; all the distress of indigestion; all the pains and aches of neuralgia, sciatica and rheumatism; all the misery and ill-health that women suffer from time to time, come from bad blood. And Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure these troubles, because they actually make new, rich health-giving blood. They don't act upon the bowels, they don't bother with mere symptoms; they go right to the root of the trouble and cure it through the blood. But you must not get the genuine—substitutes and imitations never cured anyone. See that the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" is printed on the wrapper around the box. Sold by medicine dealers everywhere, or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
