

All Aboard For the West!

The first Harvest Excursion to the Wheat Fields leaves here on Saturday 19th, and many of our young men will, no doubt, take advantage of the trip to see the Western country.

Men going West had better get whatever they want in the way of Underwear, Outside Shirts, Sweaters, etc., from us before they go. Prices are higher in the West, and their goods not as reliable as what we'll sell you. Ask any man that's been out west and he'll tell you that this is so.

A traveling bag is a sure necessity for the trip, and we've got 'em, all kinds, cheap too.

We'll sell you a bag and goods to fill it with, and do anything we can to get you ready. Call and see us before you go.

In the mines at that place. He was about twenty-eight years of age and was without relatives or friends in this country. The remains were interred in the Episcopal burying ground at Burton this afternoon.

ENGINEERS DEPART.

The Royal Canadian engineers under Lieut. Stewart, left this afternoon for Lewis, P. Q., to go into camp for a number of weeks. At the close of the camp they will proceed to London, Ont., to which place they were lately transferred. Lieut. Stewart, during his brief stay here, has made many warm friends and his departure is greatly regretted.

QUEBEC FESTIVITIES.

Great Round of Events for Entertainment of Prince Louis and Officers of His Squadron.

Quebec, Aug. 13.—Everything is in readiness for the opening of the week's festivities in connection with the visit of Prince Louis of Battenburg and the officers and men of the second British cruiser squadron. Today has been a day of rest so far as any official or public reception is concerned, but practically from sunrise on Monday for the following two weeks Quebec will be dressed in her brightest and best and the festivities will be in full swing.

The ball to be held in the parliament buildings on Monday night promises to be a brilliant affair. The number of invitations issued is already more than two thousand and the ball promises to rank among the most enjoyable events of recent years in the ancient capital.

The city is full of strangers and hotel accommodations are at a premium. The big fighting vessels lying at anchor in the harbor under the frowning citadel have drawn thousands of sightseers to the terrace and never since the memorable visit of the Duke and Duchess of York has Quebec laid herself out to enjoy to the utmost the presence of her distinguished visitors.

Desert Water Trails.

Countless men and women have perished in the deserts of the southwest for lack of rain. Yet had they known how to find it the water was there, often so close that a shallow well would have brought it, says the author of "The Land of Little Rain." There were numberless living things all about them, night traveling creatures, whose well worn trails would have led them to it. The trails begin far back in the scattering sands and hills and converge in a one span broad, white, hard trodden way in the gully of the spring, and why trails if there are no travelers in that direction?

The land is scarred by these thin, far roadways of rabbits and what not of furry folk that run in them. Venture to look for some seldom touched water hole, and so long as the trails run with your general direction you can be sure you are right. But if they begin to cross your path at never so slight an angle to converge toward a point to the left or right of your objective, no matter what the map says or your memory tells you, trust the trails. Their makers know.

"Tips" in the Land of Tips.

Hundreds of men who are fond of sport are compelled, says the London Mail, to refuse tempting invitations to country houses because of the "tipping terror" which is in them.

Here is the little "bill" which confronts the English country house visitor:

The coachman or chauffeur.....£0 10
The butler who smiles at him..... 1 0
The man who valets him..... 1 0
The head keeper who "places" him..... 1 0
The under keeper who looks at him. 0 10

Total (£20).....£4 0
The above items are based on a three or four days' shoot. For a fortnight's stay the figures would be nearly trebled.

In one large house a collection box is placed in the room of each guest. Into this box the guest places a general offering to indoor servants.

How Balzac Worked.

In twelve years Balzac wrote seventy-nine novels besides an abundance of tales and newspaper articles. When in full swing he led the life of a recluse, refusing to see even his most intimate friends. He usually went to bed at 8 o'clock, after a light dinner, and got up at 2 in the morning to resume writing. At 6 he took his tub, lying in the water one hour, after which he drank a cup of coffee. Verdet, his editor, was then admitted to bring proofs, take away corrected ones and wrest, if possible, fresh manuscript from him. From 9 he wrote till noon, when he breakfasted on two boiled eggs and some bread. From 1 to 6 he continued his writing. For six weeks or so he would keep this up; then he would mysteriously disappear for months.

A Kissing Festival.

In the old town of Helmsen, in Roumania, an annual fair is held on St. Theodore's day. On this occasion all the newly wedded brides from the surrounding villages throng the town, but the widows who have remarried remain at home.

The young women are generally attended by their mothers-in-law, and in their hands they bear pitchers of wine wreathed with flowers. They salute every one they meet and then present their jugs for a sip to be taken. The person so favored makes the bride a small gift. As it is considered an insult if the proffered wine be refused, the brides are careful to be reserved toward strangers and only kiss those whom they think likely to partake of their wine.

This kissing festival is celebrated in the public streets, in private houses, in the taverns and, in fact, everywhere, but the origin of it is lost in obscurity.
