

About Underwear.

WHERE DO YOU BUY YOUR

Winter Underwear?

Are you sure that you get full value for your money? We believe that we do the Underwear business better than any other store in the city. We're so particular in our buying, particular to get the best goods possible, from the best mills in the country. Our Underwear is reliable for quality, strong for wear. It's well made and finished, will fit better than the common kind that's thrown together and made only to sell. It never shrinks when washed, no matter how often it's washed, or what kind of water it's washed in, and it doesn't cost any more than others ask for inferior poorly made goods. We'd like to prove to you that what we say is correct, and want you to call on us when you're going to buy.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

Damaging Evidence Given in Portland Court Against Cole, a Former Albert Man.

Portland, Me., Oct. 6.—At yesterday afternoon's session of the Cole murder trial, evidence was received from the doctors who performed the autopsy and from residents at Falmouth, who identified Cole as the man seen with Steeves the day of the murder.

This morning's session was devoted to a further identification of the prisoner as one of the men seen in Falmouth on the day of the murder. As in yesterday afternoon's hearing, several residents of Falmouth were called, all of whom testified positively that Cole was one of the two men they had seen that day near the spot where Steeves' body was afterwards found.

A new branch of evidence was begun later in the morning, when Harward Stewart, a friend of the two men, was put on the stand, and testified that he had met them together in Portland on the morning of April twelfth, and they were on good terms, that he had asked Steeves if he had a job yet and that Steeves replied that he had had one, but had got through, and that his money was running low and he would have to get home soon if he did not get work.

An interesting feature was the first identification of the stick produced in court, with which the state claims the blow was struck that stunned and perhaps killed Steeves.

The state has completed its presentation of the case against Edward F. Cole, on trial in the superior court for the murder of John F. Steeves on April twelve. When the court adjourned this afternoon there was no more evidence to be presented against the prisoner, and the county attorney said he would rest when the court convened in the morning.

The afternoon hearing was the most sensational part of the trial so far. Following the rather monotonous series of identifications of Cole as one of the two men seen in the vicinity of the murder scene on April twelve, there came a number of telling points for the prosecution. Hiram Crossman of Hillsboro, who came to Portland with Steeves, the latter advancing the money for the fares, testified that on April twelve he had met Cole and asked where Steeves was, and the latter had told him Steeves had gone home. Two pawnbrokers were called on, from one of whom Steeves had bought a watch, which Cole sold on April twelve, to the other. Two witnesses swore to interviews with the prisoner, in which he asked them to join him in drugging Steeves. Another said that Cole told him that Steeves had money, and that he was going to get it if he had to knock him senseless. This was a fortnight before the murder.

Cole's statements, contradictory in some points, were brought by a newspaper reporter and Sheriff Penell of this county. To the former, Cole had declared that he was out of the house on April twelve because he had been threatened by the liquor dealers he had been spotting, while to the latter he said he had been in the house most of the day, but had gone out once on an errand.

To the sheriff, he also said about the last of April that Mrs. Cole had seen Steeves in Portland a week or so after the day of the murder. In this interview Cole had produced a letter threatening him with violence for his work in spotting liquor dealers in Portland, saying that he would get the same dose that others had received.

That the state will hold that this letter was written by Cole himself, with the hope of throwing the blame of Steeves' death on others, is shown by the production of a piece of paper fitting its torn sheet, which was found by the sheriff's officers in Cole's clothing.

The prosecution appears to be certain that Cole will be convicted, while the defending counsel have lost no faith in their ability to clear the prisoner. That they will attempt to establish an alibi is probable, but whether Cole himself will take the stand, Scott Wilson, who is senior counsel, would not say last night. The defence will open in the morning, and the prospect is now that the case will be in the jury's hands by Saturday afternoon.

CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR.

Hon. C. H. LaBillois Thinks His Chances Are Good.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 6.—"The statement that I have been promised one of the vacant New Brunswick senatorships is premature," said Hon. C. H. LaBillois to a Sun reporter yesterday. "However, there is no object in my denying that I am in the race for one of the vacant seats in the red chamber, and I may say further that my claims to the position are being strongly supported."

Mr. LaBillois referred to the canvass that was being urged against him in some quarters that he was a native of Quebec. This he says is not the case, as he has been informed by his parents that he was born at Dalhousie, in this province, on the 18th day of December, in the year 1856. "Although his personal recollection of the event is somewhat indistinct," Mr. LaBillois believes this information. He says also that his father had been engaged in business at Dalhousie for about twenty-five years previous to that event.

Hon. Mr. LaBillois referred to the fact that he had represented his native county for a continuous period of twenty-three years, having first been in the legislature in 1882. Taking this long period of service into consideration, and remembering also the fact of his Acadian nationality, Mr. LaBillois thought his claims were worthy of pretty serious consideration.

He says that the four northern counties are solid for him, and the general feeling throughout the province he believes to be very favorable to him.

This sentiment, he has every reason to believe, is gaining ground. He was agreeably surprised at the hearty assurances of support he had received from his friends in this city.

Mr. LaBillois takes it for granted that the Acadians, in view of their rapidly increasing numbers and advancement along educational lines, are entitled to another representative in the senate, and believes that his appointment would be favorably regarded by the great majority of his compatriots, and by the people of the province generally.

Hon. Mr. LaBillois has been a member of the provincial executive for a long time. In the Blair government he was a member without portfolio. In the government led by the late Hon. James Mitchell he was commissioner of agriculture. This portfolio he also held for four years under Hon. H. R. Emmerson. When the government was reorganized four years ago, with Hon. L. J. Tweedie as premier, Hon. Mr. LaBillois was appointed commissioner of public works, which position he now occupies.

Hon. Mr. LaBillois stated, however, that the appointment would not be made until the first of the year, whatever was the fortunate applicant.

MOVING WHEAT CROP.

Four Hundred Cars Daily Passing Through Winnipeg.

Montreal, Oct. 6.—It is estimated that twenty million bushels of wheat will reach the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur by December five, at which date navigation closes on Lake Superior. Forty per cent. of this quantity has already been marketed in the Northwest.

Two and a half millions have reached the lake front, and the whole of it, with the exception of some two hundred thousand or three hundred thousand bushels, has passed through the elevators and been shipped from these ports by lake and rail. Four million bushels of wheat is now moving east in the direction of Fort William, and it is passing Winnipeg at the rate of about four hundred cars per day.

Figures for the present season continue to be considerably in excess of previous seasons; 8,095,891 bushels of wheat have been marketed since Sept. 1 as compared with 3,460,763 for the corresponding period of last year, and six thousand two hundred and thirty-one cars have been loaded and dispatched from the west as against two thousand and eighty-four hundred last year.

IN POOL OF BLOOD.

Massachusetts Hunter Made His Will After Having Shot Himself.

North Adams, Mass., Oct. 6.—Lying in a pool of his own blood, beside the Bear Swamp road in Clarksburg, Gregoir Tallarico made his will, leaving all of his property in this and the old country to his wife and children. A shotgun, which he carried, became accidentally discharged, inflicting a fatal wound.

Tallarico and John Imhof, both of this city, went to Clarksburg yesterday on a hunting trip. They separated in the hope of securing up some game. Shortly after Imhof heard a gunshot and he called to his companion to know if he had shot anything. He thought that the report sounded muffled and made an investigation when he could get no answer.

He found Tallarico lying in the brook and pulled him out. Tallarico told Imhof that he slipped on a stone and the gun went off. After getting the man on the dry ground, Imhof went to the nearest house to summon aid, and a team was sent to Griffin's store, where a telephone message was sent to the police of this city.

Officer Sydney E. Houran was sent to the scene in a hack and found

A LAW

In amendment of "A Law to Regulate the Fire Department of the City of Fredericton."

G. J. McNALLY, Mayor.

Be it enacted by the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of Fredericton, as follows:

1. Nothing in any By-law of the City of Fredericton shall be construed to prevent the Driver of the Hose Cart or the Driver of the Hook and Ladder Cart from exercising his horse by running on George street between York and Revere streets, at any time during the day, provided said street is clear of travel when such exercise by running is performed.

Passed and enacted the third day of October, A. D. 1905.

that the wounded man had been brought out to the roadside and had made his will.

Tallarico had a large hole shot into his side. He was hurried to the North Adams hospital, and his condition is very critical, with little chance of his recovery.

Some of the people whom we first endure nothing could induce us to next pity and then embrace them.
