THE POST SEASON SERIES.

New York, Oct. 5.—The World's Championship series is now the talk of the baseball world, and will continue to hold the attention of the fans until it is decided. The series will begin on Monday next at Philadelphia, the American League pennant winners. Of course, the New York Giants are going to have one big advantage in having already won their race more than a week in advance. They are consequently relieved of the nerve strain anxiety of the last week of a close and exciting struggle like that in which the two leading American league teams have been engaged.

The Giants can practically take a week off in preparation for their battle for the world's honors. They have eight games to play between now and Saturday, three with Cincinnati and five with the Quakers. Of course, they will do their best to win all these games, for the Giants never go into a game without trying to win. Besides they are anxious to break the big league record, made by themselves last year, of 106 games won in a championship season. But at the same time nothing vital depends on these last games. They have the pennant won, and their labors this week will be mainly in the nature of keeping themselves in shape for the big battle which begins next week. That is a tremendous advantage, perhaps enough in itself to turn the tide of victory in their direction.

Philadelphia has just come out of a bitter fight, the effects of which may affect their play in the great struggle. The Giants, partly for this reason, but mainly because they are considered stronger in most departments of the game, will probably be the favorite in the series.

It is certainly to be hoped that the great Rube Waddell will be able to work for the Athletics so that they can present their full strength against their rivals of the National League.

THE TURF.

THE LEXINGTON RACES.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 6.—Favorites took the four events decided at the fourth day of the trotting meeting here today. The Johnston stake 2:24 class, trotting, was the feature. Emma Brook, half sister to Miss Adell, the Futurity winner, took the second heat from the Favorite, Albert C., and was a close contender in the two other heats.

Gold Dust Maid won the 2:12 trot in straight heats. The best time of the day was made in the 2:18 pace. After finishing seventh in the first heat the favorite, Dan P., won the next three, to the time of 2:08, 2:09½ and 2:08½. The 2:18 trot, unfinished, was handily won by A. Penn, the favorite.

TOP WEIGHT WON RACE.

New York, Oct. 5.—D. C. Johnson's Roseben, the 11 to 10 favorite, and carrying the impost of 140 pounds, yesterday easily won the Bronx handicap at Belmont Park, stamping himself the greatest weight-carrier seen in the east in years. He stepped the six furlongs, hard held, in 1:12 flat. O'Neill sent Roseben to the front at the start, and gradually increasing his advantage to the finish, won. Zuna, backed from 10 to 5 to 1, won the Hurricane stakes. Jockeys Lyne and Limith were suspended for the meeting by the starter. Three favorites won.

FAST SIX ROUND BOUT.
Lexington, Oct. 5.—Lightsome, an outsider, yesterday won the two-year-old division of the rich Kentucky Futurity in almost record time. Ed. Custer, the hot favorite, selling in the overnight pools for $100 against $65 for the field, finished outside the money.

The 2:06 trot yesterday afternoon broke the world's record for the fastest four-year-old trotting race. McCoy, driver of Lyddite, in the second event was suspended for one year for pulling.

THE RING.

FAST SIX ROUND BOUT.

In a six-round bout at Philadelphia with Young Ernie on Wednesday night Abe Attell had the trial of his career. In Ernie the creek California featherweight met a pugilist his equal in cleverness, and although the mill lasted the limit and both were on their feet at the end Attell did not have any better of the scrap. The articles of agreement called for a match at 130 pounds, weigh in at 6 o'clock on the night of the scrap. Both were well below this weight. The go was one of the fastest and most interesting witnessed in Philadelphia in some time. Each gave a great exhibition of the fine points of the game. Ernie surprised the crowd by his work. His friends thought that Attell would put it all over him, so to speak. On the contrary, Ernie jabbed and hooked his man with unerring precision.

In the fourth, though, Attell woke up and became very quick. In this round he cornered Ernie. The latter slipped to the floor, and Attell was about to hit him, when Ernie jumped up and landed a hot one on Attell's face. Attell got home a stinging left in this round and Ernie cleverly checked him when he was about to follow up his advantage. The remaining rounds were full of ginger. They mixed it up, exchanging blows to the face and body. Attell fought Ernie to the ropes, but the latter's defense was too good and no harm resulted.

DIGGER STANLEY ARRIVES.

Another English pugilist has arrived in America in search of fistic laurels. The new comer is Digger Stanley, a heavyweight very well known abroad. Stanley reached Boston from England the other day. He has been matched to meet Tommy O'Toole at Philadelphia in a six-round bout at the National A. C. on October 14. O'Toole is a clever fellow and a hard puncher. Should Stanley be successful over O'Toole, he will get a chance to fight Jimmy Walsh of Boston. Walsh and Stanley fought a few years ago in London. Stanley is a likely looking fellow, and if he fights up to his foreign form he ought to do well here.

PURSE FOR BRITT AND GANS.

Al Herford has just come forward with an announcement that he will offer a purse of $10,000 for a twenty round bout between Gans and Jimmy Britt, the same to be held at the Eureka A. C., Baltimore. Herford and Willis Britt, manager of Jimmy Britt, had a talk the other day and Willis declared that he would accept the proposition on behalf of his brother, provided Battling Nelson refused to give Jimmy a return fight, and it will not be surprising if within the next few days Britt and Gans are matched to box. Herford says that he can hold the mill at Baltimore without interference. He intends to assure Willis Britt of this by posting a large forfeit, the same to go to the fighters in case he fails to keep his word. A match between Britt and Gans, in the opinion of many, would be a big attraction at Baltimore. A large number of Eastern sports would attend the mill.

'WALK INTO MY PARLOR,'

Said the Spider to the Fly.

This invitation has been urgently extended to the ladies of the Maritime Provinces by makers of crude and adulterated package dyes. The foundation of the invitation is a misleading and dangerous one. It asks our women and girls to use imitation and weak dyes, based on the false statement that any color of these common dyes will color wool, silk, cotton or mixed goods equally well.

The world's brightest and brainiest color chemists who have devoted years of study to all that pertains to dyes, are agreed that it is utterly impossible to properly color animal and vegetable fibres with the same dye. Ladies, please note this important fact and do not be deceived.

DIAMOND DYES, the only perfect home dyes in the world, have special colors for wool and silk, cotton and mixed goods, thus insuring perfect results to every home dyer.

THE DIAMOND DYES are the only package dyes which have carried profit and pleasure into the homes of Canada for twenty-five years. Our grandmothers and mothers used them with success, and profit, and today wise women will not tolerate any other make of package dyes.

All dyes introduced within recent years have proved to be very poor imitations of the popular DIAMOND DYES. Never be misled by the false statements of merchants who sell weak and crude dyes, which are sure to injure and destroy your valuable materials. Ask for DIAMOND DYES, and take no others.

HOW ONE DAIRYMAN CONDUCTS BUSINESS.

The one referred to is Mr. Stephen Peabody of Woodstock, a modest man who says little about himself. But his experiences and methods are worth notice.

The business in which he and his sons are engaged is supplying milk and cream to the town of Woodstock. On a farm which totals about 200 acres, the largest part being rough and broken land, they keep 19 or 20 cows, and the required number of horses for doing the work. The production of milk is, of course, the specialty. The cows are allowed to go dry from one to two months, but of course, only a few are dry at one time, as the milk supply has to be kept up the year round. They freshen at all seasons.

The cattle are mostly grades, Short-horn, Holstein and Ayrshire, though among them are one or two pure bred Ayrshires. Since all the milk is sold, calves cannot be raised to advantage and the herd has to be kept up by outside buying. This is admittedly a disadvantage, but it is easier to raise good cows than to buy them. However, Mr. Peabody is quite successful in getting good ones. Among the herds an old French-Canadian cow was pointed out as being very hardy and an exceptional milk-er.

Dairying is favored on this farm by an abundance of spring water, the cows having it easy of access in the pasture and at the stables. One spring is high enough to supply the barn and house, and maintains the supply the year round. One branch from the supply maintains a constant flow through a tank in the milk house, and the overflow from this tank maintains the supply of water in the cow's watering trough. The milk, after being put in the delivery cans is set in this tank over night, where it is kept cool by the flowing water.

Mr. Peabody believes devoutly in soiling crops. By the middle of August, owing to the dry season, he had fed about two acres of mixed peas and oats and then had started in to feed green corn. As a result his cows were maintaining their milk-flow while those of the majority of farmers were giving almost nothing. Woodstock creamery reported such a serious falling off that it hardly paid them to keep in operation. The summer when a dry period will come, no man can tell. Even in moist seasons extra food above that supplied by pasture would pay in increased returns. Therefore the wisdom of providing vetches, peas and oats or some similar forage for early summer feeding. Corn can at least be grown to a sufficient maturity for green feeding, and since it produces so much food to the acre it is of utmost value to the dairyman.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Three Children Die in Fearful New York Fire.

New York, Oct. 7.—Three children were burned to death, their parents rescued and taken in a dying condition to St. Mary's Hospital; five other tenants went to hospital suffering from burns, and two firemen were hurt in a fire in a four story flat-house in Reid Avenue, Brooklyn, Wednesday night.

The dead are: Charles Donnelly, aged 9; Robert Donnelly, 5; Katherine Donnelly, 12.

Other incidents of the fire were the birth of a child while the mother was being removed from the burning building, and an accident which wrecked fire-chief Croker's automobile and in which the chief narrowly escaped serious accident.

The fire is believed to be incendiary. The hallways of the building were filled with flames and smoke and every occupant of the building was asleep when the flames were discovered by Wm. Teaz and James Nugent, firemen who were off duty. They found a ladder in the backyard and, climbing up the fire escapes, awoke the tenants by breaking into their apartments.

At the top floor the fire had spread rapidly and the two rescuers were compelled to carry Mrs. Joseph Hanlein, one of the tenants of the floor, down the fire escape. In doing so, the ladder at the bottom broke, and the woman fell on top of Teaz, injuring him severely.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Donnelly, who occupied the other part of the upper floor, were found lying unconscious upon the floor of their rooms. They were brought out but the firemen did not know that their three children were asleep in their beds until their burned bodies were found later.

Other occupants of the building were swung from the windows across to those of an adjoining building or were dropped into the arms of men below, and when the fire department arrived the building was afe from bottom to top.

Mrs. Rose Morris was carried on a mattress across the street, where she gave birth to a boy.

Fireman Christopher Leavy was knocked from a ladder by a stream of water, and suffered concussion of the brain.

While hurrying to the fire, Chief Croker's automobile was upset and the chief was thrown out and badly shaken up.

Donnelly and his wife are in a hospital suffering from having inhaled flames and smoke and are not likely to recover.

FIERCE WOLVES ATTACK WOMEN.

Horse They Drove Was Badly Bitten—Ran Like Mad for Village as Women Beat Off Wolves.

St. Louis, Oct. 7.—Through the dismal stretches of the heavy timber lying to one side of the village of Godfrey, Miss Sallie Coppinger and Mrs. A. C. Barr, wife of a physician in Alton, were chased by two gray wolves yesterday. The young women were driving in a buggy, and they kept the wolves at bay with a stick and the whip. The brutes attacked the horse, cutting it deeply in the flanks. A party of merchants and farmers from Godfrey and Alton started out intent on killing the wolves.

Both Miss Coppinger and Mrs. Barr were on the verge of prostration when their horse, driven by terror, galloped into the main street of Godfrey. They were taken fainting from the buggy, and, as they were unable for some time to tell a coherent story, it was thought that they had been attacked by tramps or highwaymen. Mrs. Barr was the first to be restored to consciousness, and she told the following story:

"Miss Coppinger saw them first. We were driving along slowly, as it was very dark, and our lamp had flickered out. There is something running along behind the buggy," said Sallie. "Where? Where?" said I, filled with alarm. "Right there, over the side. Look!" she cried, and, leaning over her knees I saw a form that I took to be a dog's.

"Oh, that's only a dog," I said. "Give me the whip." "She brought down the whip with stinging force on the brute's head. 'It's not a dog,' exclaimed the girl at the yelp. 'There's two of them.' Just as that I caught sight of another form gliding along close to the other, both at the rear wheel of the buggy. I almost fainted with fright, but I knew I must keep my senses. 'Sallie,' I said, 'for God's sake keep cool; they're wolves.'

"Of course, they are," returned Sallie, 'but never fear; they won't get us!'" "She was just as frightened as I, but she was brave, and made that pretense for my sake. We managed to raise the top, and we drew a rug tight around our knees. Again and again the wolves sprang for the buggy, but we beat them off. Sallie used the butt of the whip and I had a stick, which luckily my husband left along the back of the seat.

"I think we would have been lost had the horse not become frightened and run like the wind. We were travelling so fast that the wolves could not make an effective spring for us, and when they had failed repeatedly they tried to drag down the horse. They caught on his flanks several times, but he always shook them off. They persisted in the attacks until we were close to the village, when they suddenly dropped behind and out of sight."

Wolves have been on the increase around Godfrey, and a large bounty is offered by the State for their heads.

A REFORMER'S EXPERIENCE.

"Maria says she'll never get off the street car the right way again." "Why not?" "The other day she stepped off the way George told her, and at the same time a fat woman in the seat ahead, stepped off the wrong way, and the car started and Maria and the fat woman met face to face, and Maria bumped squarely against the fat woman and the fat woman fell against Maria, and Maria clutched the fat woman around the neck, and the fat woman placed her fat hands on Maria's shoulders as if she meant to wait with her, and then they both went down in a struggling heap."
