THE PARAMOUNT ISSUE.

Redmond, the Irish National Leader Has Great Hopes

FOR HOME RULE FROM THE LIBERAL GOVERNMENT.

Philadelphia, Dec. 8.—(Special).—“Since the time of Gladstone, Ireland never occupied a more powerful position than today. The home rule question is absolutely the main issue before the public.”

This is a message which John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalist in the British House of Commons and the world over, cabled last night to the North American.

Following is Mr. Redmond's despatch in full:

“The overthrow of the Balfour government places the Irish cause once more in the forefront of British politics.”

“Five years ago Balfour came into power with an enormous majority, pledged against home rule.”

“Today that majority has disappeared. A prime minister, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, is in office, who has declared that the government of Ireland must be placed in the hands of an Assembly, elected by the Irish people.”

“This marks the greatest and most encouraging advance which the home rule question has had in a generation and makes it absolutely the main issue now before the people of the world.”

“The defeat of ex-Premier Balfour's attempt at redistribution of parliamentary seats last year, with a view to reducing the number of Irish representatives by a process of flagrant gerrymandering, was really the cause of the final overthrow of the Unionist-Tory administration.

“This defeat was brought about, of course, by the Irish party, through its representatives, and this was not the first time that the party has shown its power. We have shown that in the long run no British government which tries to ignore the demand for home rule can long escape defeat.”

“The political future is most encouraging. The great mass of Liberals will follow the lead of the new premier, and John Morley on the Irish question. The views of these men as well as their actions, have been consistent, and Lord Rosebery's objections will have little weight.”

“But the Irish party is well united. Their reliance is not upon any British declarations, however plausible, or encouraging they may be, but upon her own strength in parliament and the absolute justice of her demands.”

“The Irish question, which has lived for a hundred years, holds the field today. The convention just held in Dublin was a great representative gathering, strong of purpose eloquent of the vigor of public opinion.”

“United and hopeful, the members of the Irish parliamentary party look with confidence to the Irish race and its sympathisers the world over, to sustain them in this crucial fight, and to aid them in making the most for Ireland from the present situation.”

“In the time of Gladstone, Ireland never occupied a more powerful position than she does today.”

MRS. ROGERS HANGED.

All Efforts to Secure Reprieve for Vermont's Murderess Were Unavailing.

Whiteriver Junction, Vt., Dec. 8.—(Special).—The conference between Mrs. Rogers' attorney and the governor for another reprieve for Mrs. Rogers was fruitless.

Although Governor Bell agreed early today to hear what the attorneys for Mrs. Rogers had to say on behalf of a reprieve for the condemned woman, there is little indication that their efforts would prevent the execution, and it is expected that she will be hanged between one and two this afternoon.

Governor Bell and party arrived from Chicago by way of Montreal at 3.15 a. m. today.

One of Mrs. Rogers' lawyers boarded the train near the Canadian border line and at Montpelier Junction another joined him.

They saw Governor Bell for a few moments and he agreed to hear what they had to say at 10 a. m.

Windsor, Vt., Dec. 8.—Mary Rogers dropped at 1.14 and was pronounced dead 16 minutes later.

The crime for which Mrs. Mary Rogers was executed was for the murder of her husband Marcus Rogers, at Bennington, (Vt.) August 13, 1902. She was then 19 years of age.

She had been separated from her husband for some time, and was desirous of marrying a young man named Maurice Knapp.

On the night of the murder Rogers met his wife by appointment in the woods near Walloonsac River and while caressing him, she induced him to allow her to bind his hands, and while he was powerless she chloroformed him.

In this she was aided by Leon Perham, a half witted boy with whose mother she boarded. Another woman Estella Bates, was present.

After chloroforming him, Mrs. Rogers and Perham rolled the body into the river, where it was found next day. In order to divert suspicion the woman wrote a note to which she signed her husband's name, giving the impression that he had committed suicide.

Immediately after the murder, Mrs. Rogers tried to collect her husband's life insurance policy of $500, and also made arrangements to purchase furniture for the house in which she expected to live when she married Knapp.

A few days after the murder, Mrs. Rogers, Perham and the Bates woman were arrested. Perham made a complete confession and both he and Mrs. Rogers were found guilty of murder in the first degree.

Perham was sentenced to imprisonment for life. Mrs. Rogers to death. She was granted a reprieve twice, when within the shadow of the scaffold, but the third attempt failed.

be a severe blow to him. Sergeant Cochrane has been a very efficient caretaker, and patrons of the rifle range all speak well of him and would be glad to see him retained in service.

MAN AND DOG DROWNED.

Former's Body Found with His Arms Clasping the Animal.

Wm. B. Duplissea, of Westfield, Kings Co., was drowned Wednesday afternoon in Eagle Lake. The body was recovered. The young man, with his dog, had evidently attempted to cross the lake on the ice and had fallen through. When found, his arm was clasped around the dog's neck. Eagle Lake is about ten miles back of Westfield and lies in the direction of Musquash.

The story is a very sad one. Duplissea, who is Mr. Prime's time-keeper, in the woods, had started on his round of the camps. He left the store to go to Tebo's camp and on the way called at Mullin's camp. Mr. Duplissea was a general favorite.

Mr. Prime, speaking to a reporter, said the case is the saddest in his experience. He spoke highly of the deceased, all liked him and he was his parent's ideal.

Mr. Duplissea is survived by his wife and one baby girl. He was married only about two years. His wife being Florence Whelpley, daughter of Alfred Whelpley, of Carter's Point.

The young man is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duplissea, of Westfield, two brothers and several sisters. One brother resides in Westfield and another is living in Carleton.

THE SITUATION IN RUSSIA.

London, Dec. 8.—St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Mail in a despatch sent by way of Eydtkuhnen, east Russia, says:

“Prominent military commanders everywhere are requesting permission to resign. The minister of war himself has asked the emperor to allow him to resign. The minister of the interior H. Dudenov, and others have followed the example of the minister of war. Count Witte stands alone, but even he is losing heart.”

St. Petersburg, Dec. 6, via Eydtkuhnen, Dec. 7.—The situation at Kieff is described as being as extremely serious one. Some accounts say that a massacre has taken place in which 1,500 persons were killed.

A despatch published today, said to have been received by the council of workmen's delegates, asserts that the mutineers have seized the arsenal at Ekaterinodar and secured 1,500 rifles which have been distributed at Ekaterinodar and Novorossiysk.

London, Dec. 8.—The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at St. Petersburg, in a despatch dated Dec. 6, while protesting against the “exaggerated and grotesque rumors” circulating abroad concerning the horrors prevalent in Russia, admits that almost anything is possible to the Russian people in “this time of revolution.” He blames the anarchists as being largely responsible for the existing situation saying: “Well knowing that legally will deprive them of their occupation they are working night and day to plunge the country into a serfdom bog of chaos and crime. Unfortunately a large section of the population is proving so weak and irresolute that the country is no longer shaped by principles but is the slave of events, and the principal event is the delirium of the nation. While Count Witte's cabinet stands there will still be hope for Russia, but when it disappears the deluge will begin. Even now the dark clouds are visibly gathering. The peasants clamor for land, but they will not hear of disrespect to the emperor. A large percentage of the workmen are against the strike organizers and revolutionists and in some cases against the Jews.”

The correspondent relates two instances—one that of a beautiful Jewess girl in the village of Ivanovo and another that of a school mistress named Doozhontsoff, in the Kubin district, both of whom were torn to pieces by infuriated mobs for preaching revolution.

The correspondent, in conclusion, says the first official proclamation since the formation of the cabinet will be announced in a few days, when the minister of justice will retire to private life, but that this will not affect the stability and solidarity of the cabinet.
