St. Mary's Departmental Store.

S. HERBERT LOGAN, Manager.

Everybody likes to buy at a busy store. It shows life. If the store has a dead appearance you may depend the goods lack something. Perhaps prices are high. Most likely the stock is ill kept.

A visit to this store will do you good even if you don't buy. Everything is full of go. Stocks are very desirable.

VERY PLEASANT FUNCTION.

Over 600 Ladies and Gentlemen Attended
Ball in Honor of the Prince.

ONE OF THE MOST GORGEOUS EVENTS OF THE KIND EVER SEEN HERE.

Some of the Beautiful Costumes Worn by the Ladies.

The ball at the parliament building last evening in honor of His Serene Highness Prince Henry of Battenberg, was easily one of the most brilliant social functions in the history of the city. The Lieutenant Governor and the members of the executive council of New Brunswick were the hosts, and they certainly have every reason to feel proud of the great measure of success that attended their efforts to pleasantly entertain the prince and staff during their all too brief sojourn in the city. The affair was attended by over six hundred ladies and gentlemen, representing all sections of the province, and it will long be remembered by them as one of the brightest incidents of their lives.

The list of guests included twenty officers of the Royal navy, in addition to the Prince and his staff, officers of the 3rd Regiment of Canadian artillery, officers of the 62nd Fusiliers of St. John, and many well known society people of Fredericton, Woodstock, St. John, Moncton, Chatham and other provincial towns. The St. John and naval contingents numbering over one hundred persons arrived at 8.10 o'clock in the evening in special pullmans attached to the regular St. John train.

The Legislative buildings, with its spacious and well appointed rooms, high ceilings and roomy corridors, are admirably well adapted for large social functions; indeed no other city in the province is on an equality with Fredericton in this respect. Mr. L. A. W. Tibbitts and a staff of assistance had been at work for several days decorating the assembly chamber for the ball and it goes without saying that they did their work well. The spacious room never looked better and the beautiful chandeliers never shed light upon a more brilliant scene than was presented last night. The gallery front and columns were draped with bunting, and the doorways leading to the corridors were trimmed with British and Canadian flags. The speakers' dais was banked with beautiful potted plants from Miss Schleyer's conservatory. The main corridor was also decorated with flags, and the whole building was illuminated from turret to foundation.

The guests began to arrive as early as 8.45, and by 9.30 the hour for the function to commence, all had assembled. The ladies had the supreme court chamber for a dressing room, and the gentlemen guests had the use of two rooms on the ground floor. The arrangements were entirely satisfactory in every respect.

The Prince's Arrival.

Shortly before the appointed hour for the ball to commence, the Prince and his staff arrived, and were given three hearty cheers by the crowd assembled in front of the main entrance. The members' clock rooms had been reserved for the use of the Prince and his staff.

The guests were received by the Prince in the Assembly Chamber, Prince Alexander, the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Snowball, Premier and Mrs. Tweedie, His Serene Highness, the Prince, were the full dress uniform of an admiral of the navy and displayed two rows of medals and badges on his left dress.

The Lieutenant Governor was decked out in his brilliant Windsor uniform, while the young prince was clad in the rather simple uniform of a midshipman.

The reception lasted for nearly half an hour. Mr. R. S. Barker announced the guests, and the two princes shook hands cordially with each.

The guests completely filled the assembly chamber, and it looked at one time as if there would be little opportunity for dancing, but the reception over, the crowd soon thinned out. Many of the guests retired to the corridors, while others sought the galleries to gaze down upon the animated scene presented below.

Hanson's orchestra, from a raised platform to the left of the speaker's chair, furnished an excellent programme of music for dancing. The carpet of the chamber had been covered with wax linen, which made a decided improvement.

The Ball Opened.

It was ten o'clock when the first dance, a waltz, was called on the prince leading off with Mrs. J. B. Gillespie of St. John, as partner. It is estimated that about three hundred persons participated in the opening waltz. The many gorgeous costumes worn by the ladies, together with the bright uniforms of the naval and militia officers lent a very pretty effect.

The official quadrille was the second number on the programme and was watched with the greatest interest.

The couples who took part were as follows: Prince Louis of Battenberg and Mrs. Tweedie, Engineer Commander Pamphlett and Miss Snowball, Hon. C. W. Robinson and Mrs. G. J. McNally, Premier Tweedie and Mrs. C. W. Robinson, Judge Gregory and Mrs. D. L. Hanington, Judge Hanington and Mrs. W. W. White, Hon. F. J. Sweeney and Mrs. W. P. Jones, and Hon. W. P. Jones and Miss Lillian Snowball. While all who took part acquitted themselves remarkably well, it seemed to be the general opinion that Premier Tweedie and his partner carried off the honors.

The remainder of the dancing programme was made up as follows:—two step, waltz, galop, lancers, two step, waltz, two step, lancers, waltz, waltz, two step, lancers, waltz. Mr. W. A. McKee presided at the piano for the supper extras.

The prince took part in nearly every dance, and seemed to thoroughly enjoy himself. His tall, manly figure, and handsome uniform, made him easily the most conspicuous personage at the ball. Miss Murid Hatheway, was among the few Fredericton young ladies who had the honor of dancing with the prince.

prince while Mrs. J. B. Gillespie of St. John, was his partner in three dances.

Notes and Incidents.

The young prince did not seem to indulge very much in the light fantastic, although was quite evident that he spent the evening very pleasantly.

At midnight there was a lull on the proceedings, and the prince and Lieutenant Governor led the way to the library, where refreshments were served. Landlord McCaffrey of the Queen Hotel, looked after the catering and everything was entirely satisfactory. Mr. McCaffrey had had a great deal of experience in matters of this kind and knows just how to handle a large crowd. He had the assistance of a splendid staff of waiters, and the service was prompt, and the viands of the choicest.

Liquid refreshments and cigars were served to the male guests in the clerks' room, while the small room at the left of the corridor, did duty as an ice cream booth.

The ball was a grand success in every particular, and all who attended thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Of course, there was some crowding at times, but it was unavoidable, and nobody had any complaints to make over it. The ball will long be remembered as one of the most brilliant social events in the history of the province. It was 2.30 a. m., when the national anthem was rendered by the orchestra and the pleasant gathering came to an end.

After the ball, the prince and his staff, repaired to their private car at the C. P. R. station, where they spent the night. They left for St. Andrews by special train at ten o'clock this morning. Lieutenant Governor Snowball, accompanying them. During their brief stay at St. Andrews they will be entertained by Sir William Van Horne.

The naval officers and a number of St. John people who attended the ball, spent the remainder of the night in pullmans at the C. P. R. station, and returned to St. John by the early train this morning.

CARRIED 582 MILES.

Martin Foley's Arm Found on Victoria Bridge, Montreal.

Montreal, Oct. 28.—(Special)—The mystery of the finding of a man's arm on Victoria Bridge has been cleared up in a remarkable manner by the statement of an I. C. R. official, who says that the arm belonged to Martin Foley, N. B., was killed at Barnaby River, N. B., 582 miles from Montreal.

Foley's body was horribly mangled and his arm was carried to the bridge by the train.

PROFESSOR ANDERSON

After an absence of thirty-three years perambulating the world several times the "Wizard of the North," as Professor Anderson is styled, after his father, the first Wizard of the North, will appear at the Opera House on Monday evening accompanied by Millie Blanche, the celebrated clairvoyant, who performs marvellous acts, which produce amazement among all beholders. Mesmerism, clairvoyance, illusions and the wonders of Professor Anderson form a brilliant programme concluding with a distribution of gold and
