Brewster's Millions

Copyright, 1904, by Herbert S. Stone & Company

By GEORGE BARR MCUTCHEON (RICHARD GREAVES)

"Monty's heart was in his mouth as he rushed over to the ticker. It did not take him long to grasp the immensity of the disaster. Gardner had bought in at 108 1/2, and that very action seemed to put new life into the stock. Just as it was on the point of breaking for lack of support along came this sensational order for 10,000 shares, and there could be but one result. At one time in the morning Lumber and Fuel, traded in by excited holders, touched 113 1/2 and seemed in a fair way to hold firm around that figure.

Other men came up and listened eagerly. Brewster realized that his dash in Lumber and Fuel had been a master stroke of cleverness when considered from the point of view of these men, but a catastrophe from his own. "I hope you sold it when it was at the top," said the colonel anxiously. "I instructed Gardner to sell only when I gave the word," said Monty lamely. Several of the men looked at him in surprise and disgust.

"Well, if I were you I'd tell him to sell," remarked the colonel coldly. "The effect of your plunge has worn off, Brewster, and the other side will drive the prices down. They won't be caught napping again either," said one of the bystanders earnestly.

"Do you think so?" And there was a note of relief in Monty's voice. From all sides came the advice to sell at once, but Brewster was not to be pushed. He calmly lighted a cigarette and with an assured air of wisdom told them to wait a little while and see.

"She's already falling off," said some one at the ticker.

When Brewster's bewildered eyes raced over the figures the stock was quoted at 112. His sigh of relief was heard, but misunderstood. He might be saved after all. The stock had started to go down, and there seemed no reason why it should stop. As he intended to purchase no more, it was fair to assume that the backbone was at the breaking point. The crash was bound to come. He could hardly restrain a cry of joy. Even while he stood at the ticker the little instrument began to tell of a further decline. As the price went down his hopes went up.

The bystanders were beginning to be disgusted. "It was only a fluke after all," they said to each other. Colonel Drew was appealed to by Monty to save himself, and he was on the point of remonstrance when the message came that the threatened strike was off and that the men were willing to arbitrate. Almost before one could draw breath this startling news began to make itself felt. The certainty of a great strike was one of the things that had made Brewster sure that the price could not hold. With this danger removed there was nothing to jeopardize the earning power of the stock. The next quotation was a point higher.

"You sly dog!" said the colonel, digging Monty in the side. "I had confidence in you all the time."

In ten minutes' time Lumber and Fuel was again up to 113 and soaring. Brewster, pale stricken, rushed to the telephone and called up Gardner.

The broker, hoarse with excitement, was delighted when he recognized Brewster's voice.

"You're a wonder, Monty! I'll see you after the close. How did you do it?" shouted Gardner.

"What's the price now?" asked Brewster.

"One thirteen and three-fourths and going up all the time! Hooray!"

"Do you think she'll go down again?" demanded Brewster.

"Not if I can help it."

"Very well, then, go and sell out!" roared Brewster.

"But she's going up like—"

"Sell, hang you! Didn't you hear?"

Gardner, dazed and weak, began selling and finally liquidated the full line at prices ranging from 114 to 112 1/2. But Montgomery Brewster had cleared $58,550, and all because it was he and not the market that got excited.

CHAPTER XI.

IT was not that he had realized heavily in his investments which caused his friends and his enemies to regard him in a new light. His profit had been quite small as things go on the exchange in these days. The mere fact that he had shown such foresight proved sufficient cause for the reversal of opinion. Men looked at him with new interest in their eyes, with fresh confidence. His unfortunate operations in the stock market had restored him to favor in all circles. The man, young or old, who could do what he had done with Lumber and Fuel well deserved the new promises that were being made for him.

Brewster bobbed uncertainly between two emotions, elation and distress. He had achieved two kinds of success, the desired and the undesired. It was but natural that he should feel proud of the distinction the venture had brought to him on one hand, but there was reason for despair over the acquisition of $50,000. It made it necessary for him to undertake an almost superhuman feat—increase the number of his January bills. The plans for the ensuing spring and summer were dimly getting into shape, and they covered many startling projects. Since confiding some of them to Nopper Harrison that gentleman had worn a never decreasing look of worry and anxiety in his eyes.

Rawles added to his despair a day or two after the Stock Exchange misfortune. He brought up the information that six splendid little puppies had come to bless his Boston terrier family, and Joe Bragdon, who was present, enthusiastically predicted that he could get $100 apiece for them. Brewster loved dogs, yet for one single horrible moment he longed to massacre the helpless little creatures. But the old affection came back to him, and he hurried out with Bragdon to inspect the brood.

"And I've either got to sell them or kill them," he groaned. Later on he instructed Bragdon to sell the pups for $25 apiece and went away, ashamed to look their wretched mother in the face.

AERIAL FLIGHT OVER CHICAGO.

Horace Wild, New Aeronaut, Had Several Narrow Escapes During His Trip.

Chicago, Ill., July 17.—Horace Wild, a newcomer in the field of explorers of the air, yesterday made his first successful trip with his airship, the Eagle, and during the day sailed over the sky-scrapers of the downtown district and caused a great sensation in the loop. Two stops were made, one shortly after the start, to arrange the steering gear, and another when the airship balked temporarily, resting against a house and refusing to move on. After alighting from the machine Wild took a short rest and then continued the perilous journey among the clouds.

Wild had several narrow escapes and just before he alighted he missed by about 30 feet a steeple with a point like that of an icicle. Once the lower part of the ship in which the aeronaut was riding caught in the cornice work on the roof of a building and Wild was tangled in a mass of ropes, bales and framework and found himself unable to move. Wild declared after it was all over that at no time did he feel fear.

He confessed that once when he approached several factories he had some doubts as to the ability of the air bag to withstand the effects of the concentrated heat from the chimneys, but he escaped without explosion or other mishap, and thereafter he exhibited the utmost composure. He said that if the machine had crashed into the steeple of the church near where he struck the house, he had made plans to grasp it even after a leap. He figured he could clamber down the peak in some way or could cling till ladders were raised by rescuers.

SHORT IN ACCOUNTS.

Head of Big New York Company Disappears.

Augusta, Ga., July 17.—Alexander and Alexander, one of the largest firms of cotton factors in the state is financially embarrassed and discrepancies of about $145,000 were discovered in the firm's accounts, following the disappearance of Thos. W. Alexander, head of the company.

Mr. Alexander left Augusta after borrowing $200 from a friend, saying he was going to New York. The following night his brother, Bishop Alexander, the junior member of the firm, received a telegram from him asking that his office desk be opened and three letters found there be delivered. One of the letters was to his partner, in which a statement was made of the financial embarrassment of the firm and saying that if Mr. Alexander was not back in August he would never be seen again.

Another letter was addressed to a local cotton mill president and a third to Mr. Alexander's wife. The manner in which the money was obtained has not been made known by the three banks, who are the losers, except that it was in the shape of loans. The Georgia Railroad Bank suffers a loss of $115,000, which was marked off its books yesterday charged to the surplus and undivided profit account. The National Bank of Augusta loses $7,000 and the National Exchange Bank $2,000. The available assets of the firm amount to about $80,000 while the personal liabilities of T. W. Alexander, in addition to the amount of loans is about $26,000.

In his letter T. W. Alexander stated that he alone is responsible, that his brother knew nothing of the financial end of the business and had nothing to do with it.

HOW TEDDY, JR., DODGED THE PRESS.

President's Son Was to be Here But Avoided City on Learning of Newspaper Men.

Montreal Herald.—That Mr. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., although young in years is old in the ways of the world, was shown last evening by the ingenious method he adopted to avoid a meeting with the American newspaper men who are here making a tour of Canada.

The youthful "Teddy" has been spending a week or more fishing for salmon in the Restigouche River, with his friend, Mr. George C. Cutler, but he got a touch of home sickness, and was anxious, moreover, to assist the old man with the proofs of his skill in the piscatorial art. He telegraphed to the Pullman office here requesting them to reserve a section for him on the 8:10 p. m. Delaware and Hudson train from Bonaventure station to New York.

Much to the surprise of the Pullman authorities the reservation which was duly set apart for the illustrious expected occupant, was not claimed at this end of the line, and nobody answering to the published portraits of the rising statesman was to be seen in the vicinity of the railway station.

The explanation of the mystery came along this morning. It appeared that Mr. Roosevelt got on board the I. C. R. at Metapedia station and on the way up enjoyed himself immensely, making merry with the conductor and whoever would join in the fun.

In order to get even with him and restrain his high spirits someone informed him that a party of American newspaper men were on their way to the city of Montreal, and if they got hold of the President's son in the midst of his frolics a "roast" would be sure.

This sobered up the mirthful but philosophic Teddy. With calm deliberation he set to work to devise the means of eluding the press representatives, whom he concluded were excellent persons to avoid on such occasion, and he consulted conductors and time tables. He found that by leaving the I. C. R. train at St. Lambert's and waiting there for the Delaware and Hudson to come along he would escape all possibility of contact with the dreaded tyrants.

According to the report received the device was entirely successful.

INFANT MORTALITY IN NEW YORK.

Citizens of Greater New York who have any care for such things are shocked by the statement in an official bulletin of the state department of health that the death rate for children under 1 year of age there is 66.5 per cent. of the total for the state, and of children from 1 to 5 years of age is 76.2 per cent. of the total. The population of the city is approximately one-half that of the whole state. The significance of the statement may be more clearly seen as set forth in the monthly bulletin for May. In the city the death of children under 1 year of age were 1186, as against 597 in the rest of the state, and of children from 1 to 5 years of age 921 in the city, as against 287 for the rest of the state. Of the younger children the deaths were twice as many, and of the other class were more than three times as many in the rest of the state, while of the whole number of deaths those in the city were only 55 per cent. Dr. Guilroy, in speaking of these figures, said:

The foreign population of the city is responsible for an appalling percentage of the death rate of infants. The first in this class are the Italians, then the Austro-Hungarians, the Bohemians and fourth the native born Americans. American mothers refuse to nurse their children, and of every 100 babies who die 99 of them succumb to diarrhoeal diseases, the result of feeding impure milk. Unripe fruit and other articles of food are causes of the high death rate among infants.

ATTACKED BY PIRATES.

Hong Kong, July 17.—The British steamer Saimam was attacked by Chinese pirates last evening at a point 50 miles from Wu Chow. Rev. Mr. McDonald was shot and killed. The captain of the steamer was badly wounded and the engineers saved him by blowing behind the boilers, he was however badly burned. A Chinese passenger also was killed. The pirates escaped in junks. H. M. S. Mooghen has left for the scene. R. J. J. MacDonald, M. D., and wife are stationed at Wu Chow for the Wesleyan Missionary Society.
