THAW NEEDS MONEY.

Without Funds to Carry Out Elaborate Defence

New York, July 16.—Harry K. Thaw, in the Tombs for the murder of Stanford White, is reported to be without funds, and it is stated that the elaborate plans that have been made for the defence cannot be put into execution unless the prisoner's mother, Mrs. Wm. Thaw, of Pittsburgh, arrives from Europe and approves of the necessary expenditures.

Harry Thaw's income under his father's will is but $2,500 a year, and all that he has spent above his income has come from his mother's purse. It is said Mrs. Thaw has allowed her son as high as $80,000 a year, none of which he has available now in the hour of his need. What money the young man has had since he has been in jail has been supplied by his counsel, pending the arrival of Mrs. William Thaw.

The prisoner has been lavish in his tips since he was confined, and the Tombs caterer has orders to supply him with everything he wishes. Under a physician's orders Thaw is allowed champagne with his dinner.

The insanity plea, it is said, will be abandoned by Thaw's counsel.

MR. TAYLOR'S INDEMNITY.

Judgment Declaring it Free From Taxation.

Brookville, Ont., July 16.—Following is the text of the judgment handed out by Judge Reynolds in favor of Mr. George Taylor, M. P., who appealed against the action of the town of Gananoque in assessing his parliamentary indemnity.

"I find that it is quite clear that the sessional allowance of Mr. Taylor comes exactly within the chief reasons given for exempting the plaintiff's salary in the Leprohon case.

The time occupied by a member of parliament in making laws for the Dominion is surely as much part of the means and instrumentalities necessary for carrying on the functions of federal government as the time spent by any official of the civil service in discharging the duties of his office. And the member's sessional allowance to compensate for that loss of time is entitled to the same consideration as the civil servant's salary.

The chief reason lying at the root of the decision in the Leprohon case was that the local or Provincial officials had the effect of impairing the means and instrumentalities necessary for carrying on the functions of federal government. Accordingly the Leprohon case decided that the salary of an official of the Dominion Government was not assessable.

"The Leprohon case has stood and been followed for many years and the recent case of Buckle vs. London recognizes and follows it, while deciding that the facts in the case did not come within the principle of the Leprohon case.

"The expressions of the privy council in the case cited by Mr. Jackson of the Bank of Toronto vs. Lamb in criticizing the application of the decisions of the supreme court of the United States in certain cases to the provisions of the B. N. A. act, have not been considered to impeach the Leprohon case, and having been given in a case so very different cannot be considered by me to have any such effect.

"I therefore follow the Leprohon case, and decide that Mr. Taylor's sessional allowance is not assessable as income. I allow the appeals, and reduce Mr. Taylor's assessment by the $2,500."

THE DREYFUS CASE.

Private Letter to a Friend Many Years Ago
Instrumental in Proving Distinguished Frenchman's Innocence.

Paris, July 15.—As a fitting episode to the acquittal of Alfred Dreyfus, M. Philip Bunau-Vallée today gave to the Associated Press a remarkable story of how he first discovered positive proof of Dreyfus' innocence and the guilt of Major Count Esterhazy, a story heretofore known to only a few intimates, including Dreyfus, who said during a recent dinner here that while the establishment of his innocence was attributed to many causes, that Bunau-Vallée's discovery that the main document on which the prosecution relied was a forgery was the real cause of the triumph of justice.

"Yes," said Bunau-Vallée, "a document among those old records was the basis of the whole Dreyfus agitation and was instrumental in his first arrest. Dreyfus and I entered the Polytechnic school together. I recall his very characteristic Jewish look which was rather unprepossessing. But he was a good fellow and a companionable student. There we parted on our graduation, he going into the army and I becoming a government engineer. We seldom came together after that but once, chancing to meet him on the Avenue Moutagne, we chatted about a project which I was directing, for the development of the French Congo. Later Dreyfus wrote to me, asking for information about the project, for the purpose of writing a geographical study upon the French possessions in Africa. Through an oversight the letter remained unanswered. It was some years later that Dreyfus was arrested and convicted before a secret court martial. I first thought he was a victim of the prevailing anti-semitism but the conviction proved to establish his guilt.

FOUND OLD LETTER.

"When my brother spoke of the 'Bordeau,' the document on which Dreyfus was convicted, an idea crossed my mind. I decided to compare the document with something written by Dreyfus during our school days at the Polytechnic school. I finally found the old, unanswered letter in which Dreyfus asked for information relative to the Congo."

M. Bunau-Vallée then showed the correspondent of the Associated Press a letter written on note paper, in a delicate handwriting in which Dreyfus asked his old school friend to give him information about the Congo, for a geographical study. By the side of this letter, M. Bunau-Vallée placed a photograph of the 'Bordeau' which he still possesses. "I began a careful comparison of the 'Bordeau' and Dreyfus' Congo letter," he continued. "The first glance gave me the impression that they were in the same handwriting. But suddenly I observed something which caused me astonishment. In Dreyfus' letter to me the words having a double S were written with a long 'S' first and a short 'S' second, whereas in the 'Bordeau' it was just the reverse. The short 'S' first and the long 'S' second. I myself write a double 'S' with a long 'S' first. I tried to reverse the letters but found it was impossible. It was like a right handed man trying to write with his left hand.

BORDEREAU FORGED.

"My brother made an extended comparison of the 'Bordeau' and the letter and reached the same conclusion, namely, that the handwriting in the letter was not that in the 'Bordeau.' Together we realized this discovery, we felt as though an earthquake had struck us.

"From the appearance of that photograph of the 'Bordeau' dates almost everything known as the Dreyfus affair. Everything of importance which followed was in consequence of that discovery and publication of the photograph of the 'Bordeau.' But the three capital consequences were:

"First the Dreyfus family were enabled to see the mysterious and only proof of which Dreyfus was convicted and they were thus enabled to make comparisons establishing the innocence of Dreyfus.

DISCOVERED THE FORGER.

"Second the appearance of the photograph of the 'Bordeau' led M. Castro, a stock broker, to recognize it as being in the hand writing of one of his clients, Esterhazy, thus precipitating Esterhazy's trial and the publication of Zola's famous letters.

"Third the appearance of the photograph of the 'Bordeau' permitted Col. Picquart, head of the intelligence department, to break his silence and become the most powerful witness in establishing the innocence of Dreyfus.

"All the facts which so agitated the world for years were simply the results of three essential facts following the appearance of the photograph of the 'Bordeau,' which would not have occurred if I had not forgotten to answer the letter Dreyfus wrote to me about the Congo. Once that letter answered I would have torn his letter to pieces, the photograph of the 'Bordeau' would not have appeared in the 'Matin' and Dreyfus would have died in shame on Devil's Island."
