Begin treatment by taking one "Fruit-a-tives" tablet three times a day and two at bedtime—for 3 or 4 days.

Take the tablets twenty minutes before meals, and always drink half a tumblerful of cold water (not iced) with each tablet.

Then take two tablets every night for a week—and then one every night for a month.

Be careful about the diet—eat regularly—avoid veal, pork, dark meat fowls, and never drink milk with meals.

Bathe frequently—dress warmly—exercise sensibly—take "Fruit-a-tives" faithfully—and see how much better you are at the end of the month.

PASSED ADDRESS.

In connection with farming I may also mention that establishment of illustration orchards were set in different parts of the province, which with the ones set in the spring of 1903 makes 17 in all. It is proposed to continue this work until each county has at least 2 acres.

The trees in nearly every instance lived and made a good growth the first season, but in some sections the severe weather of last winter caused a good deal of winter killing. These trees will be replaced in the spring of 1906.

In the case of the orchard set in Charlotte County, the owners cared for it just as directed by the department. Only one apple tree died last winter out of the 100, and they have made splendid growth the past season.

I had the pleasure last summer of visiting the Kingston consolidated school and was greatly impressed with what I saw there and the excellence of the system of consolidated schools. I am glad to know that we have another school of the same kind in the province which has been endowed by the generosity of the Honourable Mr. McClellan. We are also to have another school at Florenceville and another at Hampton and I hope that they will be still further extended.

I highly approve of the idea of compulsory education as a regard it as a move in the right direction. In many places boys and girls are going about the streets who ought to be at school. This is a great detriment to the children and therefore the government should step in and see that they get an education. In some districts the teacher does not have half as many pupils as he could attend to and therefore there would be little or no increase from the costs under a compulsory education act.

With regard to provincial subsidies and the fishery question, we are all aware that the government has been pressing these claims on the attention of the Dominion government, and they deserve much credit for it. I am glad to know that it is believed that a convention on these questions will be held soon and when it is, I am certain that the result will be favorable to the interests of the province.

Some changes are foreshadowed with regard to the administration of justice. The passing of a judicature act would make legal processes much more simple and would cheapen litigation. This act is in force in most of the provinces, and if it should be adopted here, it would bring us into line with them and make most of their legal decisions applicable to us. It is also understood that it is proposed to constitute a court of appeal separate from the judges who try the cases. This will also simplify procedure and cheapen litigation. It is also proposed to have a judge to attend wholly to equity cases. This is a branch of the law which has grown rapidly and will continue to grow. It is also suggested that we may have a change in connection with our county courts. There has been much dissatisfaction with the manner in which Magistrates try cases. Not being learned of the law they frequently make serious mistakes. It is not proposed to take their jurisdiction away from them but they will still continue to issue writs and other papers that the cases will be tried before a county court judge. While on this subject perhaps, I may be allowed to suggest that there ought to be some change in the salaries of the judges. The salaries of the judges of the supreme and county courts are paid by the government, and fees have long been abolished. But in the probate courts the judges are paid by fees. I think the government might consider that the time has come when a change should be made in this respect.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS.

Meets the mothers needs in caring for the health of her little ones as no other medicine in the world can. The Tablets cure constipation, indigestion, colic, simple fevers, diarrhoea, teething troubles and expel worms. They break up colds and prevent croup. They make children sleep naturally and healthfully, because they remove the cause of sleeplessness. And they are the only medicine that gives the mother a solemn guarantee that it contains no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. They are good for children from birth onward; they always do good; they cannot possibly do harm. Mrs. George Turner, Barry's Bay, Ont., says—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the troubles that come to little ones with perfect satisfaction. I think there is no medicine that can equal the Tablets." Every mother ought to keep a box of these Tablets in the house as a safeguard for her little ones. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Rockville, Ont.

Mr. McMurray concluded by moving the following—

We, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects of the legislative assembly of the province of New Brunswick, now in session, beg leave to extend our humble thanks to Your Honour for the gracious speech which Your Honour has addressed to us, and we assure Your Honour that all matters which may be submitted to us during the session will receive our most careful attention and consideration.

MR. ROBERTSON'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Robertson said:—I am sure all the members will join with me in regretting that the member for Kent, who was to have seconded the address is not able to be present in consequence of the serious illness of his wife. I only received notice last night that I was expected to second the address, and knowing the ability of the member from Northumberland, who has moved it, I felt that there would be little left for me to say. I must congratulate him on the able manner in which he has acquitted himself and I feel certain that if the second of the address had been here, he would also have done well. He is an Acadian from the same county in which I was born, and it was my privilege years ago, to reside among the Acadian people. I then had an opportunity of judging and admiring them. They are a trusting and honest people and I have watched with interest the advantage they have made in the last 30 or 40 years. They have only one or two representatives in the House of Assembly, and they were out of touch with the rest of the province. Now they have six representatives in the Legislature and one in the government. They are represented on the bench of the supreme court, in the department of education, in the department of agriculture, and in many other positions of importance. This result is largely the work of their splendid colleges at Memramcook and I may say that during the last quarter of a century they have advanced faster than us descendants of the men of the British Isles. This should be a matter of serious consideration but we should all rejoice to see the Acadians doing so noble a part in the upbuilding of Canada.

The reference in the speech to the death of Mr. Prefontaine is timely. The principal object of his visit to Europe was to confer with the British Admiralty in regard to the taking over of the dock yards. He was for many years a strong advocate of a Canadian auxiliary navy. That was a grand idea. When we look at what is being done by Japan and the United States, and by Germany, to upbuild their shipping interests, how can we in Canada expect to become a great world power if we stand by and see our shipping passing away without an effort to revive it, and I may say that there is no province in Canada more interested in this matter than New Brunswick. It would be quite proper I think, for this house to draw the attention of the federal government to the need of the revival of ship building.

I have listened with interest to what the mover of the address has said in regard to consolidated schools and also compulsory education. Not many days ago I saw in the police reports that the police magistrate had expressed his wonder that a full grown young man that was brought before him could neither read nor write, yet this young man had lived all his life in St. John, within the shadow of the schools. There is no more important bill than the government can offer this house than compulsory education and there should be no difficulty in passing such a bill.

Reference has also been made to the fisheries and our provincial subsidies. It seems to me that the time has come when the provincial governments should make a demand for the readjustment of the subsidies for it is impossible to develop the resources of the province without additional revenue. The most economical government could not, out of our revenue, make any considerable saving without doing injustice to many interests, and it is impossible for us to expand with our present revenue.

With regard to the amendment to the liquor license act, I can only say that if anything can be done to lessen the evils of the liquor traffic I believe that we will all be only too glad to give our hearty support to such a measure.

I think that we congratulate ourselves as members of the House that there is not one vacant chair since last year. We may also congratulate ourselves on the prosperous condition of the province in every line of industry, agriculture, the fisheries, manufacturing and lumbering. Taking a still wider view we may look across the broad Dominion of Canada with great contentment. No man need be ashamed of the name of Canadian, and indeed, we are all proud of it. The national life of Canada has not only become a reality, but it has blossomed into an imperial life so that we can claim to take a part in the government of this world wide empire. We are the heirs of a great heritage. The responsibility upon us is vast, yet I trust that the men of the various races who inhabit this land will prove themselves worthy, and will hand its much prized institutions down to their children's children.

MR. HAZEN'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Hazen, who followed, said: I think this is the first occasion on which I have risen as leader of the Opposition to offer some remarks on the speech from the throne, when the personnel of the House showed no change from that of the preceding year. This is a matter of congratulation but perhaps there are some members present who regret that they have not been removed from this arena by some other sphere. There is a St. John M. P. P., who was recommended for the registration of probates, but the government felt it was an inopportune time to open a St. John constituency, so now we find him here complacent and happy and loyal, taking second place in seconding the address in which on a precious occasion he had been the mover. But I trust that his reward will soon come and that he will yet occupy a position more worthy of his public work and of his constituency.

It is only right and proper that the honors done to the remains of the late Hon. Raymond Prefontaine by Great Britain and France should be noted in the address. Mr. Prefontaine showed industry and ability in grasping the details of the important portfolio of marine. His ideas

WHAT IS A CLASSIC?

The Standing Given to Works of Art by Educational Institutions.

Authors may find their books on the booksellers' "best sellers" list, may read extravagant and fulsome reviews in the literary papers, they may even be invited into Society with a capital S, but their summit of bliss is not reached until some well established seat of learning authorizes their productions as suitable for the use of students. Then the works become classics, just as musical compositions are regarded as classics when they are used for instructional purposes. When conservatories of music throughout the country are seeking Gourey pianos for the use of their teachers, the natural deduction is that this particular make of piano is of the highest grade. Recently the firm of Gourey, Winter and Leeming, Toronto, received two more applications for instruments from conservatories in the western part of Ontario. Appreciations from conservatories in the nation of the merit of the instrument is growing every day, particularly among musicians who are competent to recognize that piano tone spoken of, but so seldom heard—a singing tone. The Gourey has it.
