WILL EXPLOIT CANADIAN LANDS.

English Capitalists Will Purchase Several Thousand Acres in the West and Settle Same.

Montreal, Sept. 17.—The formation of a large company of English capitalists for the exploiting of western Canadian lands, and the sending out of several thousands of immigrants from England and especially from the farming districts of the northern countries, is announced for the near future. This company has almost completed negotiations for the purchase of several hundred thousands of acres, and it is to be backed by a strong group of capitalists. Already those interested in the company have established an information bureau throughout England for the enlightenment of the people with regard to conditions in the Canadian west, and it is also part of their plan to establish such bureaux in the northern American states, in order to reach the large number of Englishmen who have settled there to the detriment of their better opportunities in Canada.

Among the guests at the Plac Viger Hotel at present are Messrs. W. T. Pressland and W. F. Robinson, who are on their way back to the old country after a tour of some weeks in western Canada, where they were inspecting lands with a view to the purchase of large tracts. These two gentlemen are the representatives of the group of English capitalists who are about to constitute themselves into a land company for the settlement of western Canadian lands with English settlers.

Mr. Robinson, when seen today, by Star reporter, was enthusiastic about what he and his companion had seen in the west, and he declared that negotiations were in process for the purchase of several hundred thousand acres, distributed in lots of about 25,000 acres for two hundred miles along the district traversed by the Prince Albert branch of the Canadian Northern. This land is situated principally in the districts of Dauphin, Glenella, Carrot River, Swan River, Wadena and Quill Lake.

CAN TAKE 10,000 SETTLERS.

"We will shortly have land enough," he said, "to settle ten thousand English immigrants on quarter lots, and dividing it into quarter sections there will be room for forty thousand. It is splendid land, too, and averages in parts 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. One farmer in the Swan River district had this year one thousand acres set out in wheat, and the yield was over 35 bushels to the acre. The country there is rapidly settling up, and the prosperity of the people is surprising, even in the midst of the general prosperity in the west."

"Have you formed any plans for the sending out of immigrants?" was asked.

"Yes. We have been preparing the matter for some time, and this visit was merely to get the very latest and most correct view of conditions. Already we have received thousands of applications for information at the bureaux which we have established throughout England and especially in the northern countries, and we are completing plans for the shipment of about three hundred families by the end of April or beginning of May next. I will myself return to the country at that time in order to place them."

"Of what class are these prospective immigrants?"

"They will be nearly all of the farmer class, and mostly all well to do people. It is not at all our intention to send out colonists who will be a burden to the country, but only such as will have with them a sufficient sum of money to enable them to get down to work at once. We do this as a matter of business, because part of the contract for the purchase of the lands will stipulate their settlement with desirable colonists. But we will have no difficulty in getting the right people. It is altogether astonishing the interest taken by the English farming classes in the opportunities offered by western Canada. This is especially the case with the sons of farmers, who wish to get out for themselves, instead of remaining to till the paternal acres. The opinion is continually growing stronger in England that Canada is the natural home of the English farmer, and the farming classes are now always on the lookout for information about conditions here."

"What do you think of their chances in this country?"

"They are the finest possible. I know that one or two disgruntled immigrants, who wouldn't be of any use anywhere in the world, have sent home discouraging reports which have been greatly featured in a certain class of newspapers, but these reports have not been able to do much harm in view of the great mass of favorable testimony. I myself have devoted some time to running down these slanders on the country. I regard the Canadian west as the ideal place for the opportunity, but who is willing to do all the rest himself once he has got it. There is not the slightest vestige of truth in the story of an objection to Englishmen. The Englishmen who are willing to work and who can adapt himself to the new conditions of the west, refraining from invidious comparisons with the way the 'at home' is always given a royal welcome. They want men in the west, but they refuse to take do-nothings and grumblers."

Mr. Robinson and Mr. Pressland left today on the Victorian.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

What happy lives farmers lead—in story books.

Never judge a man by the opinion he has of himself.

A dozen men may make a club, but one woman can make a home.

When a man borrows trouble he puts up his peace of mind as collateral.

Men and women should look during courtship and overlook after marriage.

Happiness has a peculiar way of appearing and disappearing unexpectedly.

It's an easy matter to sympathize with the poor when your pockets are empty.

Try to be agreeable. There are too many disagreeable people in the world as it is.

It's so hard for some men to save money when single that they don't think it worth while trying after they marry.

What a man and his wife say to their guests and what they say about them after their departure are different, quite different.

Wisdom of the Ancients.

To the ancients for wisdom! Dr. Pinches at the University college in London brought out in a lecture some advice of general interest given by a certain little known king of the Assyrians. On one of the monuments in the British museum is the following inscription: "The eggs of an owl given for three days in wine bring on a drunkard's weariness. The dried lung of sheep taken beforehand drives away drunkenness. The ashes of a swallow's beak ground up with myrrh and sprinkled in the wine which is drunk will make secure from drunkenness. Horus, king of the Assyrians, found this out." The convivial monarch did not drink in vain if he "found these things out."

Putting Out a Fire.

When trying to put out a fire remember that one gallon of water at the bottom of the blaze will do more to put it out than ten gallons at the top. "Play low" is the motto to follow while fighting fire. A few gallons at the bottom of the flames will rise in clouds of steam when the fire is rising and quench it. A big blaze on the leeward side looks fearful, but play low with the water on the bottom of the fire on the windward side and you have the speediest way to quench the flames and will not require a river.

Rough on the Count.

Lord Freelmuch—Ah, count, did you make a favorable impression on the father of the heiress? Count Broken—Favorable! Why, when I told him I was looking for his daughter's hand he said he thought I was looking for a handout.

Bearing Another's Burden.

That it is not impossible to ring a new change on woman's aversion to telling her correct age has been proved by the rector of a New York church. He does not appear to be more than fifty years old, but declared to an inquiring parishioner that he was seventy-five and added, "I shall be seventy-seven my next birthday."

"The other evening," he explained, "my wife and I computed that our combined ages foot up to a hundred years. Now, of course, no lady is ever over twenty-five years old, so to keep peace in the family I suppose I must say I'm seventy-five."

"But why will you be seventy-seven your next birthday?"

"Because my wife's birthday and mine happen to fall on the same date, and—with a sigh of resignation—"of course I shall have to shoulder both of them."
