CAMP "AT HOME."

Prof. Brydone-Jack and His Dalhousie Students Hosts of an Interesting Function.

Truro, Sept. 6.—Prof. E. Brydone-Jack and the engineering students of Dalhousie University were "at camp" last evening to a number of guests at their camp quarters, North River, three miles from Truro. The invitations included prominent citizens of residing here, newspaper men, educationists in connection with Colchester Academy and others interested in instruction. The camp is set in a pretty spot near North River, and consists of an office, sleeping quarters, kitchen and dining equipment, all under spacious canvas coverings. The students number twenty-nine in three divisions allied to the one, two and three classes.

Supper was served at half past six consisting mainly of the regulation camp rations and delicacies to tempt the appetites of the guests. At the conclusion of the supper Prof. Jack made a brief statement of the object Dalhousie has in promoting engineering as a branch university work. He detailed the work of organizing the camp and apportioning the duties of those under his direction. The students have been given six miles of a proposed railway line extending from the junction with the Intercolonial towards Tetamagouche, and have nearly completed an actual survey.

MILITARY ENGINEERING.

Captain Symonds of Royal Canadian Engineers was called on to speak of the proposal of Dalhousie to include military engineering as an auxiliary branch.

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

New Brunswick Publishers Meet in Convention at St. John.

The New Brunswick Press Association held an interesting meeting in one of the rooms of the Pugsley building, St. John, yesterday, says the Telegraph, with the president J. T. Hawke, of the Moncton Transcript in the chair.

Many matters of interest to the publishers of daily and weekly newspapers were discussed by Mr. Hawke, J. L. Stewart, of the Chatham World; J. P. Maloney, of the Woodstock Press; R. E. Armstrong, of the St. Andrews Beacon; J. D. McKenna, of the Sussex Record; M. McDade, of the New Freeman, and representatives of the Telegraph and Times.

The resolutions adopted last year relative to postage rates, which were since adopted also by the maritime board of trade, were reaffirmed and will again be presented to the government. It was decided to hold the annual meeting in St. John instead of Fredericton.

Mr. Hawke gave a very interesting account of successful efforts put forth in Moncton for a more satisfactory post office service, and difficulties encountered in St. John in regard to mails were also discussed.

Mr. McDade dwelt upon the importance of placing the association on the best possible working basis, and all the speakers agreed that there were many ways in which the publishers of the province could be of service to each other, while each attended still to his own affairs. The problem of securing enough practical printers was considered. At the present time there is a shortage of printers in these provinces, partly due to the larger number required as a result of the eight-hour day, and partly because there is a drift westward, while very few apprentices are learning the work.

The fact that Toronto and Montreal department stores find advertising profitable in provincial papers was noted by several of the visitors from other towns, and surprise was expressed that St. John merchants do not enlarge their business by more liberal use of printer's ink in the same direction.

The various publishers told of their experience with advertisers and advertising agencies, and the whole discussion was very interesting and profitable. The president and secretary

Henry A. Dickie, W. D. Dimock, Principal Campbell and Mr. Bartheaux, of Colchester Academy, Town Engineer MacDowell of Truro, Martin Dickie, A. C. Mills, and W. H. Renne, made short replies to the invitation of Prof. Jack to discuss the subject in hand. Mr. Renne proved quite entertaining, and along with other speakers praised the university and the camp and gave encouragement to Prof. Jack and his students.

At nine o'clock the company adjourned to the office tent where music by a talented pianist and songs by the camp chorus were enjoyed for half an hour. Ice cream and cake followed. The evening's entertainment wound up at ten o'clock around a huge bonfire. Chinese lanterns and other appliances were used to illuminate the tent and grounds.

(Mr. Maloney) will endeavor during the interim before the annual meeting to arouse greater interest in the work of the association, and the annual meeting in February will no doubt be an event of great interest to all newspaper men in the province.
