

OLD HOME WEEK.

Arrangements Now Well Advanced for the Monster Celebration.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS SUBMITTED TO THE GENERAL COMMITTEE.

Everything is looking favorable for the firemen's tournament and old home celebration here next week, and it is promised to easily eclipse anything of the kind ever held in this city.

All reports go to show that the city will be overrun with visitors and it is up to the citizens to see that they are pleasantly entertained.

An important meeting of the general committee was held in the council chamber last evening, when very encouraging reports were presented by the various sub-committees, showing that they are all hard to work and bent on making the celebration a grand success.

Mr. Calder for the financial committee reported that about $1300 was in sight for the celebration and it was thought this amount would be sufficient to pay all bills, providing no unforeseen expenses cropped up.

Mr. Mackey reported that about fifty mercantile and manufacturing establishments had promised to take part in the trades procession. Four barouches had been ordered by the committee and would be at the city hall at eight o'clock on Tuesday morning for the accommodation of all guests named by the general committee.

Mr. Mackey expressed the hope that the committee would be able to furnish a third band for the trades procession.

Secretary Hooper hoped that all merchants would do their best to help out the trades procession. It was a splendid opportunity to display their wares and they should take advantage of it.

Chief Rutter reported that the firemen were rapidly getting things in shape for their tournament. It was proposed to have the parade form up on the barracks square, Col. Chinn having kindly granted permission for this. A large number of firemen were expected from outside points and the City Cornet Band of St. John and possibly the Boys' Brigade Band and the Houlton Band would take part.

The Houlton firemen had offered to bring a band providing railway fares and expenses were paid.

D. J. Stockford was appointed chief marshal for the procession.

Mr. Stockford, for the polymorphian committee reported the outlook as being very favorable. He had the promise of twenty floats, not including the various societies. It was proposed to have the procession start from Smyth street.

Ald. Hanlon for the music committee, reported that the Marysville band and the Fredericton brass band had been engaged for Tuesday and Wednesday. The Chatham band he said was not coming.

Ald. Hooper said it was proposed to have a band concert on Parliament square the last night.

Ald. Hooper for the advertising committee reported that the celebration had been well advertised in the Maritime Provinces and Eastern Maine.

Mr. Barker reported that the outlook was very bright for the regatta and water sports. The course had been surveyed by Engineer McVey, and all arrangements were practically completed. He expected three four oared crews from St. John for the regatta. He submitted the following as the officials:

Four oared race—Bruce Caldwell, A. W. Edgcombe, J. H. Hawthorn, T. C. Allen, John Bodkin.

Swimming races—Col. Loggie, A. A. Shute, J. W. McCready, Greased pole—N. A. Edgcombe, R. W. L. Tibbitts, Starter—J. S. Campbell, Timers—W. P. Flewelling, J. H. Calder.

Clerks of course—R. S. Barker, Dr. McMurray, Frank Thomas, A. A. McPeake.

Mr. Thomas for the committee reported on the school children's parade. He said the children would be mustered at the high school building and all would be supplied with flags. It was proposed to invite the school children of Gibson and the Mills to take part.

Mr. Calder, on behalf of Mr. Barrett, reported that the fireworks for the pyrotechnic display had arrived, and that all arrangements had been made for the illuminated water parade.

Mr. W. E. Farrell for the transportation reported that the railway and steam boat lines were co-operating very heartily. The C. P. R. and I. C. R. had promised to carry the firemen for one half of single fare. The Star line would issue one fare tickets to the St. John oarsmen and would carry their boats free of charge.

Secretary Hooper was instructed to secure a list of those who had rooms to let during the celebration and hand the same into the hotel keepers.

After some discussion the mayor promised to issue a proclamation inviting citizens to decorate their places of business and illuminate their homes.

Ald. Hanlon promised to have the city hall illuminated, and it was stated that the Normal school, city house and parliament buildings would also be illuminated.

It was also decided to have the bells ring and the whistles tooted for five minutes on Monday morning at eight o'clock. The captains of tugs will be asked to join in the demonstration.

On motion of Ald. Hooper the meeting adjourned until Friday evening at eight o'clock.

POET AND NOVELIST DEAD.

William Kirby, Author of "Le Chien D'Or," Passes Away.

William Kirby, F.R.S.C., poet and novelist, and one of the most gifted of Canadian writers, died Saturday at Niagara-on-the-Lake, in his 89th year.

The late Mr. Kirby, whose novel, "Le Chien d'Or," made his name famous, was born October 13, 1817, at Kingston-upon-Hull, England, and was a representative of the old Yorkshire family of Kirby, of Kirby Wiske a branch which were Virginia Loyalists, who returned to England at the American revolution. Maternally he was descended from the Watsons of Kingston-upon-Hull. In 1832 he came to Canada with his parents, but a portion of his education was received in Cincinnati, Ohio, under Alex. Kinnmont, a distinguished Scottish scholar. Here he gained a knowledge of Latin, by means of which in later years he was able to delve into the classics and to acquire an extensive knowledge of languages, as is shown by the variety of his different tongues showed.

In 1839 he journeyed with his rifle, several classical books, and wardrobe back to Canada, staying for some time in Niagara. He then made his way back to Montreal and Quebec. When in the ancient capital he paid a visit to points of historic interest, and among other things that caught his eye was the tablet of Le Chien d'Or on the facade of the old Philibert House. Returning to Montreal, he decided to come to Upper Canada, and he settled in Niagara. For twenty years after 1853 he edited "The Niagara Mail." It was during this period, in 1859, that he issued one of the first poems of any length published in Upper Canada. It was entitled "The U. E., a Story of Upper Canada."

"Concluding his journalistic work after this apprenticeship," writes Mr. Frank Yeigh, in an article on "Canada's Oldest Living Novelists," in The Globe of February 25, 1905, "Mr. Kirby turned his attention almost exclusively to literary work, producing in succession a series of volumes that yet stand high in our native literature, and in recognition of which he was chosen by the Marquis of Lorne as one of the twenty-two original members of the English Literature section of the Royal Society of Canada."

"Mr. Kirby's literature fame chiefly rests, however, upon his Canadian historical romance, 'Le Chien d'Or.' After the book was written it had a strange history. When the manuscript was sent to England it lay for two years or more on a Toronto baggage room, all trace of it having for the time been lost. When the book was afterwards published in Montreal the author received nothing for it, not for any of the scores of pirated editions or French translations that have marked its life since that time. In recent years a Boston publishing house, with a degree of conscience in marked contrast to former thefts by other publishers, has produced a fine edition of the novel and voluntarily pays the author a royalty on all copies sold. In this connection it is a satisfaction to observe that 'Le Chien d'Or' occupies a prominent place on the book counters of Montreal and Quebec, and that it has a steady sale. From its long lease of life the book may almost be considered a classic."

IDYLLS A UNIQUE SERIES.

Speaking further Mr. Yeigh says that Mr. Kirby's Idylls form a unique series of volumes, "Dead Sea Roses" describes Fort George, "The Hungry Year" tells of the United Empire Loyalist movement, "Stony Creek" is a vivid description in blank verse of that important action in the war of 1812. Other subjects thus treated in verse are: "The Queen's Birthday," "Spina Christi," "The Bells of Kirby Wiske," "The Lord's Supper in the Wilderness," and "The Harvest Moon."

Several dramatic works were also produced by him, while his contributions of papers to historical and archaeological societies have been many and valuable.

The late Mr. Kirby married the only daughter of John Whitmore, Niagara, and granddaughter of Capt. Daniel Servos, Loyalist. In 1871 he was appointed collector of customs at Niagara and continued to occupy that position until advanced age obliged him to relinquish it.

He is survived by a son, John Kirby of Toronto, and by a grandson, Eric Kirby in England.

PROVED IN MOUNT FOREST.

Every doctor in this town tried his best to relieve Mrs. J. Withom of asthma; none succeeded. "For years I was a dreadful sufferer," she states, "nothing gave me relief. At times I found it necessary to have all the doors and windows open to get my breath. When in despair, I heard of 'Catarrhzone.' I used it and am now perfectly cured." This proves beyond doubt that any case of asthma is curable with "Catarrhzone." No remedy so pleasant, none so absolutely certain to thoroughly cure, try "Catarrhzone" yourself; it's guaranteed.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Nourishing Drinks for Invalids' Use.

In case of sickness or convalescence it is often much easier to administer nourishment in liquid form than in the solid. Not only are liquids more quickly assimilated, but in the dilute form they assist in the rapid removal of waste material and as in the case of feverish conditions, replace the water lost by evaporation. As is the case with soft foods, it is of primary importance that cold drinks should be cold, not simply cool, and hot drinks hot, not tepid. They must appeal to the eye and the nostrils as a prelude to an invitation from the palate.

ORANGE JUICE.

Take a sweet juicy orange, cut in two at the circumference, and squeeze out all the juice with a lemon squeezer. Strain or leave some of the pulp in as preferred. Set on the ice until thoroughly chilled, then serve in a thin glass, crystal clear, set on a little china plate with a small doily between glass and plate. Grape fruit is refreshing served in the same way adding if desired a little sugar and a teaspoonful of cherry.

ORIENTAL SHERBET.

Take two tablespoonfuls of rather tart jelly, preferably currant, grape, cranberry or apple, dissolve in a glass of cold water, then set on the ice until thoroughly chilled. Unless absolutely certain of the purity of your ice supply it is not safe to use it in solution. Have all drinks chilled by standing against the ice, but take no chances of giving typhoid or other malignant germs to the patient if the body already weakened by disease.

TAMARIND WATER.

Mix preserved tamarinds with boiling water, cover and stand aside for half an hour. Strain, sweeten to taste and chill.

PINEAPPLE EGGNOG.

Beat an egg slightly with a silver fork, and three tablespoonfuls pineapple juice freshly expressed, a little sugar and as much water as is needed to fill the glass. Strain and chill.

BARLEY WATER.

Barley water is both refreshing and wholesome. Put a scanty quarter cup of barley into an earthen bowl and cover with two quarts boiling water. When cold, strain, sweeten add lemon juice to taste and chill.

OATMEAL WATER.

Put a quarter cup oatmeal in an earthen bowl, with a half cup sugar and the juice and thin yellow rind of a lemon. Cover with two quarts of boiling water, let it stand covered until the sugar is dissolved, strain and chill. Fruit vinegars may be used in place of the lemon.

RICE WATER.

Cover two tablespoonfuls of well washed rice with a quart of boiling water, add a few raisins and simmer gently for two hours. Strain, add a pinch of salt, sugar and lemon or brandy to season, chill and serve.

IRISH MOSS LEMONADE.

This is especially excellent in case of any throat irritation. Wash thoroughly one quarter cup Irish moss and soak an hour in cold water to cover. Pour over it one pint boiling water and let it stand on the back of the range for half an hour. Then strain, sweeten, add the juice of a lemon and chill.

FLAXSEED TEA.

Wash a tablespoonful flaxseed, clean and put into an earthen bowl. Pour in two or three cups of cold water, let it stand an hour, stirring frequently from the bottom. Strain.

FLAXSEED LEMONADE.

Mix the juice of one lemon with as

A SMART BLOUSE ON SIMPLE LINES.

The separate blouse is a boon to the well dressed woman. She is ready for any occasion and with a feeling of complacency if several good looking waists are ready to wear. This article of apparel is also the joy of the woman who fashions her own clothes because it means fewer clothes and fewer linings. A smart new model is sketched here which is a type of modishness on simple lines. It might be developed in batiste or lawn with a lace or embroidered insertion adorning the front, collar and cuffs. If made of silk panels of cloth or chiffon might be inserted while the lighter woollens would take another fabric for trimming. A broadness of shoulder line is a feature of becomingness. In the medium size 36-inch material are needed. 6451—sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

much sugar as it will take up. Add two cups of boiling water and pour this lemonade boiling hot over two tablespoonfuls flax seed. Let it stand several several hours.

CRUST COFFEE.

Over two carefully browned slices of toast pour a pint of boiling water and steep gently fifteen minutes, strain and serve hot, adding sugar and cream to taste.

MULLED WINE.

Put a half cup of water into a porcelain lined saucepan (never use tin on account of acid) three cloves, an inch of stick cinnamon, a good grating of nutmeg and a couple blocks of sugar. Cover closely, stand in a pot of hot water and simmer ten minutes allowing it to boil. Then add half cup of claret or port, let it just come to a boiling point but not boil up, pour into a hot pitcher, cover and carry to invalid. This is a sleep inducing and cold repelling beverage, a favorite with our grandmothers.

It may be varied and made more nutritious by beating the white of an egg to a stiff froth and the yolk to a cream, adding a tablespoonful of sugar and stirring into the wine just after taking from the fire.

EGG WINE.

Beat a new laid egg with a little water, beat a glass of sherry and add to it half of cold water and a little sugar. The amount of sugar is to be regulated, by the taste and condition of the invalid. Pour the beaten egg, sweetened wine and water into a saucepan, set in a larger one of boiling water. Set over the fire and stir one way until thoroughly heated, but do not allow it to boil. Serve in a high tumbler set on a plate, accompanying it with a piece of thin, dry toast or plain crisp biscuit.

WATER IN YOUR BLOOD?

Lots of people have thin, watery blood—they eat plenty but don't digest. When digestion is poor, food is not converted into nourishment in consequence the body rapidly loses strength. To positively renew strength, nothing equals Ferrozone. It excites sharp appetite—makes the stomach digest, forms life sustaining blood. Abundant strength is sure to follow. If you need more vitality, extra energy, better nerves, then use Ferrozone, the medical triumph of the age. Fifty cents buys a box of fifty chocolate coated Ferrozone tablets.

Paul Kane and His Pictures.

Much interest was renewed in a Canadian artist and his works by the exhibition of Paul Kane's paintings, which the Lieutenant-Governor opened in Toronto on Saturday, March 3, under the auspices of the Woman's Canadian Historical Association.

Paul Kane was born in 1810 of humble parentage in the little town of York, now Toronto. His youth was spent here, and as he tells us in his autobiography, from his earliest years he took the greatest interest in the Indians, of whom many wandering bands were to be found in the neighborhood. As years passed he developed a talent for drawing and became a portrait painter, which vocation he followed for some years in Canada and the United States. In 1841 he went to Europe and passed four years in the study of art in the galleries of England, France and Italy. Returning to Canada in 1845, he determined to devote himself to the dream of a boyhood, the painting of a series of pictures illustrative of the North American Indian, and the scenery of that vast unknown region between the Great Lakes and the Pacific Ocean. In order to accomplish his purpose, he left Toronto on June 17, 1845, with a slender outfit, including his portfolio, a box of paints, his gun and a stock of ammunition. He traveled far and wide, sketching and painting, and lived among the red men, learning their manners and customs, studying their characteristics and taking portraits of their chiefs and warriors, and medicine men, as well as of their wives and daughters. He skirted the shores of the Upper Lake, and Hudson's Bay, thence to the Red River settlement, the Valley of the Saskatchewan, and the great buffalo prairies of the west. Crossing the Rocky Mountains, he followed the course of the Columbia River to Oregon, Puget Sound and Vancouver Island. Scarcely, as he says, meeting a white man or hearing his own language. Fishing, hunting, scenes, games and dances were limited by his pencil, and from these sketches he executed the series of oil paintings which were purchased fifty years ago by the late Hon. G. W. Allen, and which now, by the kindness of their present owner, Mr. E. B. Osler, have been placed on exhibition in Toronto.
