SHOCKING DEATH.

New York Guest at Royal Hotel, St. John, Fell From Third Storey Window and Was Instantly Killed.

H. P. Weidig, Ph. D., a member of the firm of Chas. Cooper & Co., manufacturing chemists of New York, met a shocking death at St. John last night by falling from the window of his room on the third story of the Royal Hotel, where he had been a guest since Monday. There were no witnesses to the tragedy and it is not known how long his body remained on the sidewalk, where it fell, before it was discovered.

At ten minutes past one Policeman O. Ward, coming down Germain St., found a man clad only in his underclothes on the sidewalk, lying flat on his back with arms outspread. A hurried examination showed that life had departed, although the body was still warm. Directly above him in the third story of the hotel was an open window, out of which the white curtains were fluttering. From the window the man had apparently fallen.

Mr. Weidig arrived at the hotel on Monday and had asked to be called in time for the D. A. R. steamer this morning.

Coroner Berryman was summoned immediately on the discovery of the body. When he arrived he viewed the corpse and ordered it removed to the morgue.

Dr. Berryman then asked to be shown to the room occupied by Mr. Weidig. The key was found in the key hole on the outer side of the door but the door was secured by a bolt on the inner side. A bell boy climbed over the transom and dropped to the floor and unbolted the door.

The room was in complete darkness, except for the faint light from the electric street light on the corner. The bed was found with the bedclothes thrown back, showing that the unfortunate gentleman had been there for some time. He had apparently sprung from the bed and perhaps feeling faint, had gone to the window for fresh air. The window sill is only about eighteen inches high and it looked as if Mr. Weidig, in attempting to rest his hand on the sill, had slipped and pitched headlong to the sidewalk below.

His clothes, which were of good quality and fashionably cut, were hung on the back of a couple of chairs near the head of the bed. Although Mr. Weidig had apparently retired for the night, his nightshirt was still hanging on the back of the door. An open suitcase lay on the table partly packed in readiness for an early departure in the morning.

On a stand lay a half consumed cigar, a pipe, a tobacco box and a flask almost empty. The flask was labelled rye whiskey, and bore the label of a firm in Newark, N. J., but the contents smelled like brandy.

It was noticed that the head of the bedstead was broken as if the occupant had fallen back heavily against it after getting into bed. The head piece of the bedstead is composed of vertical brass rods, and two of these were broken away at the foot.

After examining the body, Dr. Berryman expressed the opinion that death must have been instantaneous. He apparently had struck on his head as some of his hair still adhered to the sidewalk. Only a small clot of blood showed that death was probably due to concussion.

Mr. Weidig spent last evening in the company of G. A. H. Mullar, who is employed in the firm of John O'Regan.

The two men walked around town and during the course of this time had several glasses of lager. About 10.30 o'clock Mr. Mullar left his friend at the Royal Hotel.

During the evening he told Mr. Mullar that he intended coming to Fredericton.

Mr. Mullar stated emphatically he did not think that Mr. Weidig was intoxicated. He said that Mr. Weidig was a very pleasant man and was also very well educated, being an accomplished linguist.

The late Mr. Weidig, who was a partner in the firm of Chas. Cooper & Co., manufacturing chemists, of New York and New Jersey, was a distinguished looking gentleman and said to be wealthy. His family has been informed of the sad occurrence, and it is expected that some of his relatives or friends will arrive tomorrow to take charge of his funeral.

A New York despatch says: Henry P. Weidig was a manufacturer, chemist with establishments at No. 6 Mulberry street and No. 194 Worth street. His home is in Newark N. J., where he has been thought to possess a generous fortune.

THE CONFERENCE.

Closed This Forenoon After a Very Profitable Session.

Conference opened with a ministerial meeting Tuesday afternoon—a few changes were made in the constitution of the supernumerary fund.

In substance the conference recommended reports were passed and some amendments as follows. That an auditor shall be appointed to examine the accounts of the treasurer. The general committee controlling the affairs of the fund shall be increased by the addition of five members. The assessment on the conference shall be increased by $154.00.

The conference appointed Dr. Paisley and Geo. M. Young to form a resolution upon the subject of the state of the order.

On motion of Rev. James Crisp a recommendation from the children's fund committee was carried and there was a reduction on every circuit of five dollars. Rev. C. W. Hamilton reported for the summer school of missions and said that the session of 1905 had been very successful and that preparations were being made for a still more profitable school this year.

A resolution of appreciation and support was passed.

Rev. James Young presented the amended report of the committee on the state of the work.

There being a decrease in membership of 32. Rev. H. D. Marr presented the report of the Epworth League committee. There is a decrease of one in the number of leagues but an increase in the number of active members.

Rev. W. M. Lawson presented the temperance report and a strong resolution was passed endorsing the great work in this line being done by Dr. S. D. Chown, D.D. and it was suggested that the general conference still continued in the field of Temperance and Moral Reform.

The following were elected as chairmen and financial secretaries—Chairman St. John—Thomas Marshall, secretary, Samuel

The evening session was called to order at eight o'clock by President Wm. Dobson after a short ministerial session and the different reports that were presented in the afternoon were adopted on motion. Quite a discussion arose over the church prosperity committee as presented by Rev. G. A. Ross, but passed with the exception of one item in reference to church property in Charlottetown which was laid over until next year.

Church property in Fredericton, Bath and Albert were recommended to be sold—carried.

A discussion arose in reference to the Board of Trustees holding money it was decided that they could hold property but not money. Rev. A. D. McCully presented the report of the board of examiners, it was carried. The children assessment fund which was as follows was carried:
