Speaker of the House of Commons Objects to Unparliamentary Language of Tory Member—Explanations but no Apologies.

Ottawa, May 11.—There was a straightening out of some of the proceedings of the previous night, when the House met yesterday.

In the first place, Mr. Speaker announced that he was convinced now that the language used by Mr. Ingram to Mr. Maclean of South York, was unparliamentary, at the time, he thought Mr. Ingram was verging on what was unparliamentary, but the remarks were couched in such hypercritical terms, he had difficulty in deciding whether or not to call him to order.

"It is my duty," said Mr. Speaker, "to preserve the decorum of debate in the House and I have thought it well to make this statement in fairness to the member who was offended against, and, at the same time to impress upon the members that language, such as we used in this instance, must not be considered and will not be treated as a precedent, but will in future meet with interference from the chair."

Mr. Ingram used the word "prejudice" Wednesday evening. Mr. Ingram said that he would use the word "untrue," which would comply with the rules of the House. Outside the House, he would use the word which he used in the House.

PATENT MEDICINE COMMITTEE.

Dr. Stockton gave the following as those that would compose the committee to enquire into patent medicines: Templeman, Fisher, McLean, Bole, Belleau, Sproule, Lennox and Stockton.

Mr. Fielding introduced a bill making the fiscal year terminate on March 31, instead of June 30. Mr. Ingram complained of certain statements about himself in The Toronto World, which were false and he asked Mr. Maclean to withdraw.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that Mr. Ingram had no recourse against Mr. Maclean, but he had against the reporter. That might be inquired into.

Mr. MacPherson, of Vancouver, said that the Toronto News had attributed certain things to him in the house when he was absent from it.

Mr. Ross (Yale and Cariboo) said he also was absent at the time, yet the News attributed the same thing to him.

R. Borden made some general observations on the necessity of having better order when members were speaking, and mentioned the names of MacPherson and Ross.

Mr. MacPherson pointed out how wholly unfair this was, when there was nothing to justify it, and Mr. Ross said that the leader of the opposition was the most professional interrupter in it.

Mr. Bourassa claimed that La Presse made a certain statement against a member and then refused to make a correction while the leader of the opposition charged Le Canada with treating him most unfairly.

On motion to go into supply, Mr. Ames (St. Antoine), Montreal, made a criticism of the land policy of the west. He said that some of the agents' reports were not published in full the annual report of the department.

Mr. Sifton said that if any reports that appeared in the annual report of the interior department were garbled it was a very wrong thing. He had no cognizance of it. Every one knew that the minister of the department did not prepare the report.

HISTORIC SCENE.

the people and their economical welfare, remembering that to the dignity of the state not only freedom, but order founded upon justice are necessary.

"I desire from my heart to see my people happy and hand down to my son an empire secure, well organized and enlightened.

"May God bless the work that lies before me in unity with the council of the empire and the imperial drama. May this be the day of the moral revival of Russia and the day for the renewal of its highest forces. Approach with solemnity the labors for which I call you and be worthy of the responsibilities put upon you by the emperor and people.

"May God assist us.

THE SPEECH CRITICIZED.

The assemblage stood motionless until the last member of the imperial family had left the hall and then an excited buzz of discussion broke out as the legislators and courtiers discussed the significant passages of the emperor's speech, especially the intimation of the necessity for "order founded on justice as well as freedom" to the prosperity of the state, the recommendation that attention be paid to the needs of the peasants and the absence of an amnesty proclamation.

After a short pause in the Romanoff gallery, the emperor, the empress and the Grand Duke Michael returned through the Neva door to the water-front, where, from a great float occupying the very side of the chapel on which the hail of grape fell during the ceremony of the blessing of the waters January 19, 1905, they embarked on a launch which steamed rapidly down the river to the imperial yacht Alexandra. As they stepped on deck the imperial standard rose to the masthead, the yacht's lines were cast off and she steamed down the bay to Peterhoff.

After the departure of the emperor the members of parliament fled immediately to the great hall and were conducted rapidly through the long

ELIZABETH ROBINSON SCOVILL TO LECTURE.

When illness invades the home a knowledge of nursing is a valuable asset. That knowledge may become available to many next week, for through the effort of a number of home-lovers, the services of Miss Elizabeth Robinson Scovill have been secured for her series of lectures on "Home Nursing." Miss Scovill needs no introduction here as her valuable work on nursing, and her writings for the "Ladies' Home Journal" have already made her name a household word. Representative ladies have the matter in hand and have already disposed of a number of tickets for these lectures. The course is most exhaustive, embracing every phase of nursing, and cannot fail to be beneficial to all who attend. A cot and patient will be provided and practical demonstrations given. The lectures will be given in the Church hall on five consecutive afternoons from May 14th to 18th inclusive from four until five o'clock, and the price of the course ticket is one dollar. Single admission to any lecture will be twenty-five cents payable at the door. Course tickets and any further information may be obtained from the Treasurer, Mrs. G. W. Hodge or at Mr. McMurray's bookstore.—d2.

NEW C.P.R. STEAMER IN ROUGH WEATHER.

The Empress of Britain Behaved Splendidly in Atlantic Waters.

Montreal, May 10.—The Canadian Pacific Railway Co.'s magnificent new steamship, Empress of Britain, came into wireless telegraphic communication today at two o'clock with the Marconi station at Cape Race.

She was at that hour 165 miles east of that point. Although the Empress left her dock at Liverpool on Saturday evening she did not leave the Mersey until next day, Sunday. Despatches received in the city tonight said that the Empress had met very heavy gales and that her performance in the teeth of these was remarkable and brought out the sterling qualities of the splendid vessel. It is expected that she will arrive in Quebec about eight o'clock tomorrow evening, when special C. P. R. trains will be waiting to carry passengers to their destination.

DAMAGED BY TIDES.

Dykes Broken Along Petitcodiac River and Marshes Flooded.

Moncton, May 10.—Much damage is reported to have been done to marshland and dykes along the Petitcodiac by the recent high tide. Opposite Moncton on the Albert county side the dykes are broken and miles of marsh have been flooded. Along Hall's Creek, forty or fifty feet of dyke, enclosing G. R. Jones' marsh, has been carried away.

Wednesday night's tide is said to be the highest in three years. The wharves at Moncton were completely submerged and floors of sheds and buildings were flooded by two feet of water. The marshes in the vicinity of the city are inundated and quite a lot of damage has been done to hay land, besides necessitating rebuilding of the dykes.

The steamer Wilfrid C. picked up a four-masted schooner in the lower part of the Petitcodiac river today in distress. The schooner had lost an anchor and was unable to make port. She was loaded with plaster, bound from Hillsboro to New York. She was safely placed at Hopewell Cape by the steamer which is standing by her to keep her from going ashore. In the meantime a search is being made for the anchor lost in the river.

AMAZING TALE FROM BOMBAY.

Indian Natives Firmly Believe Famous Japanese General Kuroki to be Sir Hector Macdonald.

A curious tale is going the rounds of the bazaars in India. It is believed by every native that Gen. Kuroki, the marvellous Japanese commandant is no other than Sir Hector Macdonald.

Many persons have never believed that the brilliant English general is dead, and not long ago there appeared in the London Times an offer of a reward of $5,000 to anybody who had seen the dead body.

It is also a fact that Sir Hector was once invited to go to Japan to train the Japanese army, and he actually mentioned it to Lord Roberts. No honor has ever been publicly bestowed on Kuroki, who seems to have vanished as suddenly and mysteriously as he appeared.

Even the Japanese, with all their reticence, confessed to a correspondent that Kuroki had much foreign blood in him, and one United States journalist declared he was a Dutchman.

Rudyard Kipling first lifted the veil showing a little of the mysterious workings of the Indian bazaars. The celebrity with which they spread rumors of events taking place at great distances is familiar to all Anglo-Indian residents, but invariably baffling to them. The mutiny of the Sepoys was known throughout India almost as soon as it occurred, and it has been an unexplained mystery up to to-day how the information was so rapidly disseminated.
