DAILY HERALD.

MONDAY, JUNE 11, 1906.

MR. CARVELL, M. P.

Mr. F. B. Carvell, the Liberal M. P. for Carleton, is easily in the front rank of the young generation of politicians in the Canadian House of Commons, and has the promise of a brilliant future.

When a member of the New Brunswick legislature, Mr. Carvell soon took a leading place, and although he has been in parliament only two sessions, he is regarded as one of the prominent members of that body, in the debates and in the committees.

Least the Herald should be considered as unduly partial and flattering to Mr. Carvell, we shall quote from an outside authority an opinion of that gentleman's standing at Ottawa, and the regard in which he is held.

The editor of the Montreal Herald, writing from Ottawa of the new members of parliament says:

"Mr. Carvell, a New Brunswicker, is another of this season's developments. He is a fighter from away back, so much so that they say in every election contest he gets into at home he leaves a trail of his own and his antagonists' controversial blood. Fighting qualities like this have had plenty of scope in the committees this session, and Mr. Carvell has not been backward. He is bright and able, his mind and purpose are always clear, he has undoubtedly caught the eye of the House, and is hereafter to be reckoned with in any forecasts of the New Brunswick situation."

Mr. Carvell's excellent speech in the House on the G. T. Pacific was one of the best heard in that body this session, and it showed that he is ready at all times to stand up firmly for the rights of his province.

THERE ARE OTHERS.

With the retirement of Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick from the Cabinet, Tory newspapers have been calling attention to the many changes in the Laurier cabinet since it was formed in July, 1896, and lamenting that so many of the big men of the Liberal party are not now in the cabinet.

Well, death, appointments to office and resignations have certainly made great breaches in the Laurier original cabinet, but new men have come in and the Premier still presents a united and powerful front to the enemy.

But how is it with the Tory party. Has it lost no men of first rank position since 1896? Call the roll and note who are missing from the front benches of the Tory party in parliament since it was dismissed from office ten years ago:

Sir Charles Tupper, defeated at the polls.

Sir Hibbert Tupper, retired.

Sir Adolph Caron, defeated.

Hon. W. H. Montague, defeated.

Hon. W. B. Ives, dead.

Hon. Clarke Wallace, dead.

Hon. A. C. Lariviere, dead.

Hon. E. G. Prior, defeated.

Hon. J. F. Wood, dead.

Mr. A. C. Bell, defeated.

Mr. E. F. Clarke, dead.

Mr. N. F. Davin, dead.

H. A. Powell, defeated.

Dalton McCarthy, dead.

R. H. Pope, defeated.

Geo. V. McInerney, defeated.

Nine of the above were cabinet ministers, and the others expected to be, and none of them are now in public life. Death as well as defeat has dealt harshly with the Tory party since 1896, and the great trouble is the party has no men in sight to take the places of those who have departed.

Outside of Borden, Foster, Monk and a few others the Tory party in parliament is poor indeed in men of cabinet rank.

Comparison of losses between the Liberal and Tory parties does not injure the former, but rather shows up the great weakness of the latter.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The Elder-Demeter liner, Etolia, which left St. John last week for Barry, England, is on the rocks of Cape Sable, N. S., in a dangerous position. Her crew is safe. The Etolia carried deals from George McKean, St. John, and her cargo is worth $31,000.

The Bishop of Fredericton is making a brave struggle for life against heavy odds, and the community watches with painful interest the outcome of the battle, which it is feared will be fatal to His Lordship, who has been failing in health for some years.

Death has been playing great havoc with members of the Anglican communion in this city, both clerical and lay.

The usual June wedding boom has not yet started in Fredericton, but there'll be something doing before the month closes.

If you have any friends outside of Fredericton who want to see a notable celebration, ask them to drop in here July 2, 3 and 4.

Mr. Foster denies that he is an enemy of the French Canadians. Well he's pretty hot after one of their number, Mr. Cling Mars, a journalist, whose humiliation and punishment the ex-minister is seeking at the hands of parliament. It is pretty safe to wager however, that Mr. Foster will be sorry that he ever tackled the job.

Sincere sympathy will be extended to the members of the Winslow family, resident in this city and elsewhere, on the comparatively sudden death of their mother, the late Mrs. E. Byron Winslow, which occurred Sunday morning at New York. The deceased lady was most highly esteemed in this community. A faithful wife and mother, a lady whose genial manner and kindly disposition made her a general favorite, she will be very much missed in this city.

Premier Seddon of New Zealand, who expired suddenly Sunday night on board a steamship from Sydney, Australia, to his home, was a picturesque figure in colonial politics. He was an Englishman of humble origin, and rose to a commanding position through his own efforts. He was intensely loyal to the mother land, and was a prudent and energetic politician.

Sir Frederick Borden has been visiting his constituency, King's Co., N. S., looking after his orchards, he says, but incidentally mending the Liberal political fences, to make sure that no Tories stray into the fold of the Nova Scotia legislature in the provincial elections next week. Sir Frederick makes the confident prediction that the Liberals will sweep the field on polling day.

BITS OF NEWS.

There is no reprieve for Tucker, the slayer of Mabel Page, and he will be electrocuted early tomorrow morning.

In reply to a message of congratulation sent by the Governor-General to the King and Queen of Spain, the following reply has been received: The King and I heartily thank you and the loyal people of Canada for your kind sympathy and congratulations. VICTORIA EUGENIE.

Mr. T. Chase Casgrain, K. C., ex-M. P., one of Montreal's leading lawyers, is laid up with a broken bone in his foot. He fell down stairs Friday night, and, as a result, suffered so much pain in his foot that Saturday morning he submitted to X Rays at the Hotel Dieu, where the fracture was discovered. He will be laid up for some time.

One of the peculiar features of the Ontario election reported at the farm of Foulds Bros., just outside the City of Brantford. A windmill forty-five feet high was lifted bodily by the wind and blown over a shed twenty-two feet high and safely landed in an upright position, undamaged on the other side. It is still standing.

Hon. Richard John Seddon, prime minister of New Zealand, died from heart disease Sunday evening aboard the liner Owestry Grange, on which he had embarked at Sydney, N. S. W., that morning to return to New Zealand. The vessel put back into Sydney. Mr. Seddon was 61 years old. When Mr. Seddon sailed he appeared to be in his customary health.

Natalian forces, under Colonels MacKenzie and Barker, have had a severe fight with rebels in the Mome Valley. The rebels were defeated, 350 of them being killed, including the chief, Mchokazulu. The Natalians lost Capt. MacFarlane, of the Transvaal Rifles, and Lieutenant Marsden, killed, and several troopers wounded. It is reported that Chief Bambata, was wounded in the fight. The rebels fled demoralized.

One of the most remarkable religious demonstrations ever witnessed in New England occurred Sunday at Boston, when the magnificent new Christian Science Temple in the Back Bay district was dedicated. From every state in the union and from all parts of the world came members of that faith to be present at the dedicatory services. It was estimated that more than 40,000 Christian Scientists were in Boston Sunday.

The lifeless body of William Walker who was to have been married to Miss Mary Smith on Wednesday last, but who disappeared shortly before the hour set for the ceremony, was found floating in the River Speed, near Goldie's Mill, Guelph, Ont., on Sunday. The deed is attributed to the fact that he had been laboring under mental depression for some time past, and the excitement attending upon the wedding no doubt intensified his weakness.

A special London cable says: In opening the library at Coal Bridge, Scotland, Andrew Carnegie referred to Canada as the Scotland of North America. In Canada was a virile race, the Scotch predominating. Speaking at Ottawa he told them they would annex and govern the United States as Scotland did England. He hoped he had laid the nucleus for a future harvest. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was one of the world's greatest men. He was the only living great French Canadian, wise, good and charming, a man like Campbell-Bannerman.

Michael Livingston, a teamster in the employ of Jas. Stephenson & Son, Marsh Road, St. John, was fatally injured while driving with Stephen McGuire of French Village road in his covered carriage as a result of its collision with a sloop driven by Henry Jones, which was standing on Brussels street near the corner of Exmouth street while being unloaded. The accident took place on Saturday night. Mr. Livingston, who was hit near the heart by the shaft, was carried to the General Public Hospital on a stretcher, where he died eleven minutes later.

CATS AND INFECTED.

The Lancet Gives Some Cases in Point.

The apparently harmless domestic cat is a source of great danger, according to The Lancet, for two cases of diphtheria have practically been traced to children kissing and petting these animals.

The bacteriologist for the burgh of Govan is responsible for this latest latest medical scare. He has issued an interesting report on the result of his investigations into the possibility of the infection of diphtheria being carried by the lower animals, especially cats.

Two cats were taken to the laboratory, where their throats were examined. Micro-organisms from the throat were cultivated on artificial media away from the body, and were found to correspond in every respect to those of the human subject.

In one case the animal had been in the habit of sleeping in the same bed as the patient; in the other the child had been carrying it in her arms and kissing it, as children frequently do with domestic pets. As both cats had been ailing before the children became affected, infection is quite likely to have been carried in this way, and it is perfectly reasonable to suppose that similar instances of undetected or unrecognized attacks of disease among the lower animals have materially contributed to the prevalence of diphtheria.

Of five cases of diphtheria recently reported in Govan three patients came from two families living in adjoining properties and two from a house in a tenement directly opposite. In the circumscribed area enclosing the back courts of these buildings there had been a stray cat which had eventually obtained a home in one of the families affected. The animal, when examined, was found to be suffering from post-diphtheria paralysis of the legs.

INCURABLE DISEASE NOT BAR TO HAPPINESS.

That an incurable disease may not necessarily be a bar to a long and relatively happy life is proved by the remarkable story of a patient who has just died at the Royal Hospital for Incurables, Putney, England.

The institution was opened in 1854 and in November of that year Miss Relfe, then 29 years of age, entered as the first patient. She was suffering from paralysis of the throat and paralysis of the arms and legs, and her case from the first was hopeless. Although so cruelly afflicted, she lived on for 51 years and died at last from senile decay at the age of 80. Her long period of residence had cost the institution $17,500.

"She enjoyed life after a fashion, and took a great interest in all that was going on," the matron said in conversation with a reporter.

The same institution furnished numerous other examples of less remarkable, of tenacious clinging to life on the part of the sufferers who are terribly handicapped by bodily ills.

Still living in the hospital is a woman, a martyr to paralysis, who entered in 1857, and there are several who have been inmates for 40 years. A woman who obtained admittance in 1864 has never left her bed since. Another old woman, still handsome of face, the personification of contented happiness, has kept to her bed for 27 years.

Men incurables, for some reason, do not live as long as the women, but in the hospital there is one man who entered in 1886, and another who has been there for 35 years.

"These poor people," observed the matron, "although all suffering from some incurable disease, do not come here to die, but to live, and most of them live to an astonishing age."

TAKING AN APPEAL.

Quebec, June 11.—(Special)—Senator Choquette has appealed from the judgment against him in the Parent-Choquette lawsuit.

Mr. W. A. Gibson, late of this city, is quite ill at his home in St. John from nervous prostration.

Struck His Sister in the Face. Mr. Hennepeck (peevishly)—When you tell me to do a thing, like a fool I go and do it.

Mrs. Hennepeck (acidly)—No, you go and do it like a fool.

THE HOSPITAL SEWAGE.

Chairman Weaver of the Board of Health, has interviewed the hospital trustees in regard to the report that the hospital sewage was now being emptied into the river, and has satisfied himself that it was well founded. The work of repairing the cesspool pipes is being rushed along as expeditiously as possible, and the trustees think that they will be able to return to the old order of things in the course of a day or two. As the river is now at quite a high pitch Chairman Weaver does not think the hospital sewage is likely to have a very bad effect, provided it is diverted back to the cesspool in the course of a few days. He does not think it is necessary for the Board of Health to take any action.

WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER.

Miss Roselle Knott, the celebrated Canadian actress, brings with her to Fredericton an unusually strong company, the like of which is seldom seen so far east. Among the number are six Canadians including Ernest Hastings, James F. Kerr and Thomas Irwin. John Alexander actor, late of Sir Henry Irving's Drury Lane, poses also in the caste. With such artists the production speaks for itself and ought to prove a big drawing card in the maritime provinces.

WOUNDED IN THE BUSH.

Edmonton, June 11.—(Special)—Carl Meyer of Balgonie was found in the bush near here by surveyors with two bullets in his body, but still alive. He had a revolver in his hand. He claims to have been shot by a stranger two days ago, and after lying there for that length of time he decided to end his sufferings, and fired the second shot, but without killing himself. Only one chamber of the revolver had been discharged, a fact that lends color to his story.
