REVOLUTION IMMINENT

Czar Has Dissolved Russia's Constitutional Parliament and Martial Law Practically Established at St. Petresburg.

OUTLAW LEGISLATURE FLEE TO FINLAND AND PLANS TO OUTWIT THE EMPEROR.

St. Petersburg, July 22.—Russia's first experiment in parliamentary government came to an end last night with the promulgation of two imperial ukases, the first dissolving the present parliament and providing for the convocation of its successor on March 5, 1907, and the second proclaiming the capital of Russia to be in a state of extraordinary security, which is only infinitesimally different from full martial law. This measure of safety is to provide for the outbreak which undoubtedly will be provoked by the dissolution ukase. It is now but a step to dictatorship.

With these pithy but momentous orders which were promulgated at 3 o'clock Saturday morning, Emperor Nicholas by strokes of the pen set Russia back to where she stood two years ago, in the full grip of autocracy and irresponsible government, wiping out for six months at least, the whole structure of parliament erected at such cost.

There is but little doubt that the convocation of the new assembly will still further postpone this time, unless the new parliament promises to be more amenable than the present.

The delay in fixing the time for the new elections seems to indicate a decision to change the present basis of suffrage to perhaps a basis of universal suffrage, with which the advisers of the emperor hope to swamp the educated socialists and workmen.

REVOLUTION IMMINENT.

With the imperial ukase dissolving parliament, which was promulgated early yesterday morning, the curtain rose upon possibly the last act in the great drama of the Russian revolution. The people and the government now stand face to face, and upon the loyalty of the army depends the immediate issue.

No one doubts the severity of the storm which will arise in the country in response to the emperor's dispersal of the men whom he welcomed two months ago in the winter palace as the "best men in Russia," but the die is cast. The government has elected to fight and the capital today bore eloquent testimony of the preparations made to repress the masses by force. The city was packed with soldiers and resembled an armed camp.

During Saturday night additional troops were brought in and disposed of according to plans previously adopted. These reinforcements included four infantry regiments of the Chevalier Guard, Hussars, mounted Grenadiers, and a battery of machine guns. The troops occupied railroad stations and the bridges across rivers and canals and the patrols of both police and Gendarmes were everywhere doubled.

REVOLUTIONARY AGITATORS.

The work of gathering in revolutionary agitators began immediately after the ukase placing St. Petersburg in "a state of extraordinary security" was promulgated, and hundreds of arrests were made before daylight.

The powers conferred upon M. Von Der Launitz, prefect police, and M. Zinovieff, governor of the province, make them little short of petty dictators. Searches and arrests can be made without process of law, newspapers forced to suspend publication and persons deposed by administrative order without trial. Public and private meetings are forbidden. Those arrested may, if it is desired, be tried by military courts and summarily executed.

Although the news of the dissolution of parliament spread like wildfire among the members of the various political organizations, the masses here generally are hardly awake to the momentous event. The news traveled fast in the country, and the general expectation is that the peasantry, expecting the dispersal of parliament as the final blow to their hopes, will rise en masse.

The proletariats have been preparing for months for just such provocation to declare open war. It is impossible to describe the consternation with which the constitutional democrats learned the news.

The government undoubtedly calculated on catching the opposition off its guard, but if it expected to strike terror to the hearts of the members of parliament it has failed signally. Some time ago, when dissolution seemed imminent the various groups of the opposition virtually agreed to follow the example of their French compatriots of the states general, and meet, if driven out of Taurane palace, wherever and whenever circumstances dictated until a constitution was firmly established. After a hurried secret conference this morning it was decided on account of the possibility of the meeting being broken up and the members arrested that they go immediately to Finland and decide upon the future course to be pursued and small groups left this afternoon and evening by train.

A NEW PREMIER.

An imperial ukase relieves M. Gorkin of the premiership and appoints M. Stolypin premier. He also retains his present post of minister of the interior. M. Stighinsky, minister of agriculture, has resigned. The building was closed and guarded by police, who refused admission except to the president and the vice-president.

THE OUTLAW PARLIAMENT.

St. Petersburg, July 23, 3.20 a. m.—The following dispatch has been received from a representative of the Associated Press who accompanied the members of parliament to Viborg, Finland. It is dated Viborg, midnight.

"Two hundred members of Russia's outlaw parliament are gathered here at the Hotel Belvedere, awaiting the arrival of Count Herden, M. Stakovich and other prominent members of the right before opening the session at which will be adopted a manifesto that the people be summoned and that they stand by the dispersed assembly members of all shades of opinion, especially the constitutional democrats.

The meeting will be called to order a regular session of parliament. The dining room of the hotel where the members are assembled is in great contrast to the imposing surroundings of the Tauride palace. It is crowded to suffocation with excited and perspiring deputies, who are gathered according to party affiliation and informally discussing the debating tactics and discussing the text of their appeal, for which a general drafting commission is now being chosen. There is a strong possibility that all parties will come to an agreement on the appeal, as the radicals are not disposed to insist on an over-violent manifesto demanding the immediate summoning of a constituent assembly by revolutionary means, to which the constitutional democrats object.

B. C.'s Farewell to Sir Henri Joly.
Never has British Columbia regretted the departure of a Lieutenant-Governor so keenly as in the case of Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, the Chevalier Bayard of Quebec. The courtly old gentleman, who has given three sons to the Imperial service, was thus bidden farewell by Capt. Clive Phillips-Wolley, the Victoria poet:

Good-bye, that word rings hollow when we part,
The prayer has vanished from the threadbare phrase.
Clipped by the hurry of discourteous days,
Born of the lips, unfathered by the heart.

Our "God be with you" is a people's prayer,
A people loth to let a loved one go,
A people conscious of the debt they owe,
A people losing one they would not spare.

You taught us all the lesson of your race,
That strength may dwell in utter gentleness,
That courtesy is born of kindness,
And perfect courage sheathed in perfect grace.

Two nations warring till the time grew ripe,
Alternately the whetstone and the blade,
A nation in our Canada have made
Of which, Hope whispers, you may be the type.

God grant it, and for work in His name done,
A mellow autumn and a people's thanks,
Thill dreaming on your mighty river's banks,
Long hence you pass to rest that you have won.
