It sometimes happens that in getting out of a rut a man finds himself in a hole.

Sometimes a cold settles in the bowels. The pain pierces like a lance. Get rid of it promptly by taking Perry Davis' Painkiller in sweetened water. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. Refuse substitutes.

A RIGHT WAY and A WRONG WAY

Many people have many ways to bring about the same result. Most of them are mistaken ways, but this is not known until the test of time points plainly to the error. Practically there are but two ways to accomplish anything; a right way and a wrong way. Take, for instance, a man with a bad back, there are lots of them, and of various kinds, some with stitches and twinges, others with cricks and twinges; then there's the dull, heavy continuous kind that lasts all day and doesn't sleep at night. They're all bad enough, they're all hard enough to get rid of. Some people rub the back with liniment, others cover it with plasters, either or both means often bring relief, but the pain comes back—it's the wrong way to cure the trouble.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

have a way to cure backache, a way that's all their own—the right way. They're made for the kidneys only. When the kidneys fail in their work of filtering the blood the back aches because they are situated in the small of the back; backache is the kidney's warning of trouble, and every day you let the warning go it brings you nearer to urinary disorders, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, etc.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every form of kidney ills and that's why they bring such quick relief from backache. Mr. Fred Gray, Good Corner, N.B., writes: "I was greatly troubled with pain across my back. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, and received so much benefit from them that I consider them the best remedy for kidney trouble there is. I would not be without them in my house."

MISS FRENCH NOT "A PERSON."

And Therefore Cannot be Admitted to the Practice of Law.

SUPREME COURT SO DECIDES IN THE APPEAL CASE.

Chief Justice Thinks Women Should Attend to Thier Legitimate Business.

The Supreme Court Friday afternoon unanimously decided that Miss Mabel French, of St. John, is not a "person" within meaning of the act and therefore is not entitled to be admitted as an attorney-at-law. The court also gave judgment in the Cushing case allowing the appeal from Judge McLeod's order and also the appeal from the order subsequently granted by the chief justice.

THE CUSHING CASES.

Judge McLeod dissented from the judgment of the court in the first appeal and the chief justice and Judge Hanington dissented in allowing appeal from the chief justice's order.

Judge Gregory in delivering his judgment, said he thought the appeal should be allowed, but he dissented from the order of court as he thought a stay of proceedings should be granted.

Judge McLeod in his judgment thought the chief justice had no right to grant leave to appeal from his (McLeod's) order. He believed that if any change was made it should only be made by the judge having charge of the winding up proceedings. He did not believe the act contemplated anything else. He contended that the appeal should be dismissed.

Judge Barker, who delivered a lengthy written judgment, said he knew of no authority by which a judge could vary the order of a judge who is directing proceedings under the winding up act, as had been done by the chief justice. He agreed with the majority of the court that the appeal should be allowed.

Judge Hanington thought that the order postponing the sale should have been made by the judge in equity and only exceptional circumstances would justify interference of a winding up judge. He believed Judge McLeod's order should be rescinded and the appeal allowed with costs.

The written judgment of the chief justice was read by Judge Gregory. The chief justice thought Judge McLeod had acted unwisely in granting an order postponing the sale until May. It was difficult to tell what might happen in the meantime. The property might depreciate in value, interest on the mortgage would accumulate and the bondholders would be kept out of their money. It looked to him as if Judge McLeod wanted a postponement until the Supreme Court of Canada had decided upon the appeal.

APPEAL ALLOWED.

By striking out the following words after the words "I do order," that as much of the said order of the 12th day of September, 1905, as authorized the referee nominated under the said decree of the Supreme Court is hereby rescinded and I do further order that the said referee be and he is hereby restrained from proceeding with the said sale on the first day of November next."

"And I do further order that said referee is hereby authorized and directed to postpone the sale until the first day of May 1906 at twelve o'clock noon and the said referee is hereby authorized to continue to advertise the said sale until notice of its further postponement until the said day of May, 1906, at which time such referee is authorized to sell under such decree, and in lieu therefore insert as follows:

"That the plaintiff in the said suit in equity wherein the Eastern Trust Company is plaintiff and Cushing Sulphite Fibre Company, Limited, is defendant have leave to proceed in the said suit as they may be advised."

In the second Cushing case the court decided that an appeal from the order of the justice varying Judge McLeod's order should be allowed with costs, Hanington and Tuck dissenting, Landry no part.

MISS FRENCH NOT "A PERSON"

The judgment of the chief justice in the case of Miss Mabel French was read by Judge Gregory. It briefly recited the facts of the case and stated that the point was whether or not Miss French was "a person" within the meaning of the act. The case was presented to the court by A. B. Connell, president of the Barristers' Society, who had furnished all the reports and information obtainable on the subject.

Hon. C. N. Skinner and S. B. Bustin argued strenuously on behalf of Miss French and based their arguments on the advanced thought of the age as to rights of women to share with men in all occupations except those of police, constables and soldiers.

The chief justice had no sympathy with the idea that women should share in all spheres of life and it was better that they should attend to their own legitimate duties.

His opinion was that it was never contemplated by the legislature when the act was passed that women should be admitted as attorneys, and that the word "person" applies only to men.

Judge Hanington said it was quite clear to him that there was no statutory enactment to permit women to practice in the courts of the province. The remedy in this case is with the legislature and not with the court, who have to administer the law as they find it.

The judgment of Judge Barker showed that he had given the case very careful attention and study. There was no record, he said, to show that such an application had ever been made to the court in England. He quoted from a judgment delivered in Illinois where the principle had been laid down that the word "citizen" applied to both sexes, but did not confer any rights upon women. The word "person" might be sufficiently comprehensive to include both sexes, but he hardly thought the statute intended it to apply to women. The law stated that the lieutenant governor must choose fit and proper persons for his advisors but nobody would seriously say that he had a right to choose women. His Honor thought the application should be refused.

Judges Gregory and McLeod concurred in the judgment of the court, Judge Landry taking no part.

After delivering judgments the court adjourned sine die. All the judges were present except the chief justice.

THE BRITISH CAMPAIGN.

Disorderly Meeting at Derby Would Not Hear Chamberlain.

London, Jan. 5.—The political campaign is now warming up. Already a number of disorderly meetings have been reported, and last night, when Joseph Chamberlain attempted to address a mass meeting at Derby in support of the unionist candidates, he was howled down and was unable to secure a hearing.

Sir Henry Bellrose, a prominent citizen of Derby, appealed to the audience to give Mr. Chamberlain an opportunity to outline his views. Mr. Chamberlain, who was evidently enraged, again rose and said that he was mistaken in appealing to the intelligence of the people of Derby. This caused a renewed uproar, and, although Mr. Chamberlain fought hard, he was unable to overcome the opposition and retired amid continued uproar.

Richard Burdon Hadlane, secretary of war, speaking at a free trade meeting at London Thursday night, said that it was the intention of the Liberal government to maintain an adequate army, but that it would be necessary before real reform commenced to clear away much of the trash and litter left by his predecessors. It was the intention to bring the British army to an adequate position. He said that the premier had given him entire freedom of action, and he was working to evolve a practical scheme which did not include conscription.

Winston Spencer Churchill, speaking at Manchester on Thursday night, said that the first act of the Liberal government should be to return to power, would be to notify the colonial government that no conference could consider a preferential scheme based on the protective taxation of foodstuffs, and that as soon as possible the government would give a representative democratic administration to the Transvaal.

A MOTHER'S PRAISE.

In every part of Canada you will find mothers who speak in the highest praise of Baby's Own Tablets. Among these is Mrs. James H. Konkle, Beausville, Ont., who says: "For over three years and I would not be without them. They have done more for my children than any medicine I have ever used. My little girl, now four years old, was always troubled with indigestion and constipation, and although other medicines helped her temporarily, Baby's Own Tablets were the thing needed to cure her. I also gave the tablets to my baby from time to time since she was two days old and they always worked like a charm. She is now two years old and a more healthy child would be hard to find. The Tablets are certainly a life saver."

These tablets cure all minor ailments of infants and young children. They contain no poisoning soothing stuff, and there is no danger of giving an overdose as there is with liquid medicine. Sold by all druggists or sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
