A RUSSIAN SPY.

Agent of the Czar Dogging Maxim Gorky's Footsteps in New York--Followed Noted Revolutionist From Europe.

New York, April 14.—(Special)— According to the Times, a trusted agent of the Russian secret police in this city, for the purpose of organizing an effective system of espionage over Maxim Gorky, his two fellow revolutionists, who are here to raise funds Maxim Gorky, and two fellow revolutionists.

The agent is one of the keenest members of the political police force employed by the Russian government, to watch doings of enemies of the Czar beyond the borders of Russia itself. Until recently he was in charge of the intelligence department maintained by the Russian government at Geneva, Switzerland, where the flower of the Russian intellectuals under protection of the Swiss republic are at present framing a constitution and form of government for a Russian republic, which they hope to establish.

The Czar's spy crossed the Atlantic on the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Gross, the North German Lloyd steamship, that brought Gorky to this city last Tuesday. Though he is a man who has contrived to make himself practically indispensable to the Russian government, through various services he has rendered, his extensive knowledge of the revolutionists and resourcefulness, and while he ranks high as a secret police force, he came in the second cabin, under a name different from which he is known on the continent.

He has managed to keep his place of residence in this city secret, and like most men of his branch of the service, he is an accomplished linguist. Beside Russian, he speaks English, German and French fluently.
He followed the Russian writer during his recent journey through Southern Europe, then dropped out of sight, but took up the trail again when Gorky and his wife left for Zurich, and boarded the Kaiser at Cherbourg.

In this city, the Russian spy does not boast of his knowledge of Russian. He was waiting at the gangway when Gorky came ashore with his wife and adopted son, and when their carriage drove away the Czar's spy followed in another carriage.

Since then he has been seen occasionally about the lobby of the hotel where Gorky is staying, and it is said he has even entered the apartments of the Russian writer as one of the endless procession of visitors who come and go every day.

SAD DEATH AT KINGSCLEAR.

Mrs. Nellie McKay, wife of Mr. Geo.
McKay, a well known young farmer of Kingsclear, died at her home last night after a few days' illness from appendicitis. She recently underwent an operation for this ailment but it was performed too late to save her life. Besides a husband she is survived by a child four weeks old. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon with services by Rev. Mr.
Field. Undertaker George W. Adams has charge of the arrangements.

BORNEO GIRLS' LONG EARS.

"I liked the girl," said the sailor, "only her ears were too long." He finished his drink at a gulp.
"Like all those Borneo girls," he said, "she was slim and lithe. Her teeth were white. Her eyes were clear."

"But her ears! The lobes were three inches long. And do you know what she had done? She had stretched them out, had lengthened them by pulling them with her fingers continually from childhood, the same as a Chinawoman from childhood continually squeezes her feet in a steel box to make them small."

"Wherever I went in Borneo I found the same long ears among the girls. In Saarinda, in Sapit, in Kudat, it was the same, and it was the same in Telokopit, in Banjarmasin and in Pasir. The young women all had ears that nearly touched their shoulders. The young girls all sat in the sun pullin' their ear lobes with their fingers so as to make them long."

The person most interested is usually the one that can't see the entirely obvious thing.

SERIOUS RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

On Saturday last, while No. 2 train from Caribou to Gibson, in charge of Conductor McQueen, was approaching within two miles of Woodstock Junction, the rear passenger car left the rails, taking with it the second class car, immediately in front, both overturning and before the train could be stopped the former was badly wrecked. There were several passengers on board, but miraculously they all escaped death, although Mr. W. B.
Mills, Mrs. D. Tapley and Section-man Miller were injured. Mr. Mills very seriously. He was placed under the treatment of Dr. Nevers of Hartland, and it is hoped, is in a injured husband. No cause can be attributed for the accident.

RED ANTS USED AS PEPPER.

Experiences of a Couple who Spent Their Honeymoon in Guatemala.

The Sunday bull fight, held in a large Place de Toro (bull ring) outside the town, was the principal amusement. I cannot say much for this sort of entertainment. The so-called bulls were worn out cows who deserved a better fate than to be goaded into some sort of fury by the dashing picadors who stuck picadilloes into them. In most cases they had dropped refusing to move, and the audience became furious.

At the end the torador (especially imported for the day) came forward to the presidential box, where we were sitting; writes a woman correspondent of the Boudoir in describing a honeymoon in Guatemala, and after a florid speech, of which I understood little, he handed me, with a profuse bow executed to true grandee fashion, hand on heart, the begored and flower encircled picadilloes as a memento of the august occasion. To refuse to accept them would have been the greatest insult and my husband was obliged to carry them home for me, much to his disgust.

Some Spanish ladies asked me afterwards how I felt when the great matador singled me out for his high honor. When I told them that I was rather annoyed by his drawing the attention of the crowd to me in this trivial fashion, they were furious at my ungratefulness and told me "it would have been the day of their lives," and they would have had proposals galore.

In the course of a scrambling expedition into the country over rough mountain roads we were obliged to camp out on hard boulders, with only a mackintosh to keep out the cold. During the night I was frightened almost out of my wits—I felt a hand tugging my hair, and calling out to my husband, we saw a big monkey leaping down from the branches of a tree above us, pulling away at my hair. His horrible claws had gripped such a lot that when he finally let go, after being belabored with the stock of a revolver, he had nearly half of it in his hand.

On arriving at a very rough and ready-made landlady set before us poached eggs, swimming in water and plentifully besprinkled with small red ants! At first I tried to pick out these additions, and seeing the woman crying me furiously, I called her and tried to tell her in my best Spanish that I was not accustomed to eat ants—and that I wished she had been careful not to let them drop into the dish.

Her indignation was immense. With flashing eyes and gesticulating wildly she told me in excited language that it had taken her a long time to catch those ants, and that it was "so good."

"Do try it, senora," she said, and dipping her dirty fingers into the bowl, she fished them out and showed me how much she, at all events enjoyed eating them as a sort of savory to the eggs and trying to encourage me by her example.

THE YOUNGSTER'S IDEA OF BABIES.

"Babys are little red things without bones nor teeth. They have various sizes, but just after they are born they are called hypos; their bones are gristle. They are 2 sects, male and female; and are also very fat. When very young they do not have much hair; so you cannot tell whether they will turn into boys or girls until their hair grows. They are always asleep only when crying.
They feed them on milk, or chue a injurubber tit, also their thumb. When they are very little, they were petty-coats same as girls; but boys soon were jacket and trousers.

"Girls are softer than boys, so
