THE KING AND CANADA.

Prince Arthur of Connaught, who is back in England, is telling his friends that he had a delightful trip through Canada. Perhaps the King will be so pleased with the Prince's recital that he will promptly decide to pack his grip and make us a visit.

The London newspapers are pointing out to His Majesty that a trip to Canada can be more quickly covered than a run to Greece, from which the King recently returned.

The impression seems to be growing that His Majesty will accept Canada's very pressing invitation to visit this country, but whether this year or next, is doubtful.

If he comes, what a change he will see in Canada since he was here in 1860. The great Northwest was practically a wilderness then, now it has three thriving provinces. There was no intercolonial uniting the the eastern provinces, no C. P. R. from coast to coast, and confederation was merely a dream with the politicians.

SOME DEAD ISSUES.

Criticisms of the Dominion government, says the Toronto News (independent with Tory leanings) must necessarily be based on the assertions and pledges of the Liberal party when in opposition. Yet it is unfair to assume that every opinion of an 1896 Liberal should be the conviction of a 1906 Liberal. Unrestricted reciprocity with the United States is a dead issue now, because the citizen of Canada has begun after many years to have faith in his country as a self-supporting entity. Absolute free trade is a dead issue, because this new sense of nationhood demands a national tariff. Both these questions are outside the political arena, for no Canadian of standing, whether Liberal or Conservative, can argue in any way but against them. There may be argument as to whether the tariff should be high or low, but it is acknowledged generally that free trade is an economic impossibility.

Nor are we disposed to quarrel with Sir Wilfrid Laurier because he has not succeeded in keeping his public expenditure below the level established by the Conservative Administration. Canada has grown wonderfully, her industries have broadened her wealth has increased at an amazing rate, there has been a large influx of population, and it would be ridiculous to demand that the expenditure of ten years ago should be ample for the needs of today.

CURRENT COMMENT

The Tory party at Ottawa in seeking to make a case against the government in the North Atlantic Trading Company business are using stolen letters every line of which Lord Strathcona has declared, is untrue.

Somebody seems to be making quite a lot of unserviceable sewage pipe, and a good deal of it is finding its way to Fredericton. Our sewerage system is costing big money and we want nothing but good material. Engineer Barbour and his staff are sharp eyed and will not pass the inferior article.

Fredericton firemen had a very successful celebration on Dominion Day, 1888, and an extract from a newspaper file of that date published elsewhere in the Herald today tells all about it. But we can do better even than we did eighteen years ago and all signs point to a fine three days' celebration next July.

A prominent Ontario politician, a Tory, by the way, has had a portion of his jaw removed by a surgeon. What a pity that the latter could not be induced to visit Ottawa and induce the invertebrate talkers in the parliament buildings to submit to a similar operation. Then the House might get through its business before Christmas.

Hon. A. B. Morine, who is quitting Newfoundland and its politics to settle in Canada, is a native of Nova Scotia and by profession a lawyer. He has been quite a political force in the island colony for some years, and at present is leader of the opposition in the legislature. In 1896 he was the unsuccessful Conservative candidate against the present Judge Forbes of Liverpool, in the Queens,

N. S., election for the federal parliament.

The Halifax Chronicle, Liberal organ in Nova Scotia, credits the Herald with being pretty well informed on the politics of the sister province, and after quoting an article from these columns in which the overwhelming triumph of the Murray government in the approaching elections, was forecasted, observes that "the Herald has sized up the situation fairly well."

Legal gentlemen are usually aggressive, and when they have had a military training, they are naturally more pugnacious than the ordinary lawyer. The scene at the police court today is an instance. However, the Col. and the Capt. are usually very good friends, and the little tempest in a teapot will soon blow over. Judges are very jealous of the dignity of their courts and lawyers sometimes do not like to be dictated to from the bench.

Billy Sherring, the young Canadian who won the Marathon twenty-four mile running race at Athens, is home again and is received as a conqueror. People ever honor brawn and muscle and Sherring's achievement was one worthy of pride. The city of Hamilton, his home, has gone wild over its son, and both the Ontario and federal governments have taken a hand in marking Sherring's triumph. The former voted $500 in cash and the Ottawa authorities have given him an appointment in the Hamilton customs house.

The 2nd battalion of the Durham Light Infantry of the British Army recently celebrated the twenty-first birthday of "Jimmy Durham," a Soudanese who plays a clarinet in the band and has had a romantic career. During the Soudan campaign of 1885 a body of Devises fled, leaving a naked child on the banks of the Nile. It was picked up by a Lieutenant Delisle, now the adjutant, and ever since he has been the pet of the regiment. When three years old he could prattle in Arabic and English, ride the horse bare back to water and give a song and dance to the barracks room table. He was allowed to accompany the troops to India, and in 1899 a special sanction was given by Lord Roberts for him to join the regiment.

BITS OF NEWS.

W. H. Harper, city ticket agent of the C. P. R., at Chatham, Ont., was burned to death at his summer home at Erieau early Monday morning. The fire is supposed to have originated from a spark from a chimney or a stove. The house, along with two others, was burned to the ground.

Mrs. H. W. Charlton, who died at St. Luke's Hospital, Ottawa, on Saturday, was Pearl Haley, daughter of the late Dr. Haley, M. P., for Hants, N. S. Her early death caused great regret in a large circle. She had recently married. Her remains will be buried at Windsor.

The negro who attempted a criminal assault on Mrs. Bettle at Passake station on the I. C. R., Kings Co. Monday afternoon was arrested shortly afterwards and lodged in Hampton jail. He is a youth of 17 years, George Hector by name, and belongs to St. John. Mrs. Bettle is a woman of 25 years and has been four years married.

Halifax Chronicle: At a meeting of the corporation of St. Luke's Cathedral, Halifax, on Friday, it was decided to accept the terms of the City Council as regards the transfer of the old exhibition lots. There are six lots and the price set on each was $3,000, making a total of $18,000. A committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions for a cathedral which will cost a quarter of a million dollars. The organization have already $70,000 on hand.

WILD SCENE AT BIER.

Lillian Nangle, of Boston, Sees Body of Boy who Shot Her and Tries to Die.

OFFICER AND FRIENDS SAVE HER FROM THE RIVER.

Boston Herald.—That Miss Lillian Parks Nangle, of Allston, the step-daughter of John G. Thorogood, and the girl whose life was attempted on Thursday night by George DeWolf of Cambridge, who took his own life a few minutes later, is in a condition of mind and body bordering upon hysteria was very apparent yesterday when she went to Cambridge and created a scene by insisting on seeing the body of her rejected suitor and laying a floral tribute on his bier, to both of which demonstrations the family of young DeWolf had decided objections. Her wish to see the remains was finally granted, however, in order to avoid a scene still more painful, as it was only a few minutes before the time for the funeral services to begin. She was not allowed to remain at the services. On her return, frantic with grief over the events of the past few days, she tried to throw herself into the Charles river, but was restrained by two companions who were a police officer, and was finally induced to accompany them quietly to her home in Allston.

Miss Nangle was first noticed on Hamilton street, where the DeWolfe's live, about 1.30 o'clock. She presented a peculiar appearance, was without a hat, and in her hands she bore a floral offering.

ORDERS WERE TO KEEP GIRL OUT.

Friends of the family of the young man were already gathered at the house of mourning for the funeral exercises. Mrs. DeWolf, the mother of the dead boy, had previously asked the neighbor who had consented to receive those who came to the funeral and to assign them to seats, not to allow Miss Nangle to enter should she present herself. She had also asked her friends not to allow Miss Nangle to leave any floral offering, should one from her be presented at the house.

Miss Nangle, unaccompanied, walked up to the DeWolf house and knocked at the door. The neighbor who answered her knock told her that she could not enter, and immediately closed the door. Added to her already excited condition this last refusal was too much for her, and she threw herself on the steps, sobbing and shrieking.

While this scene was going on outside the house, there was another exciting incident taking place inside. In the parlor where the casket rested was an intimate young friend of the deceased. He had seen that Miss Nangle was outside and becoming enraged, wanted to get at her, threatening bodily harm because he believed that she was responsible for the untimely end of his friend. He was finally prevailed on to remain in the house and induced to go into another room.

A hasty consultation then followed, but to any class, the class of 1901 coming next with three representatives.

G. R. Long is to be the valedictorian of the class at the convocation and stands a good chance of winning the alumni life membership. For the past two years he has held one of the Fred Tyler scholarships of $60 a year. He expects to spend next year at Harvard and to apply for the P. E. I. Rhodes scholarship for 1907, in which application it is thought that he stands a good chance of being successful. He is a son of Dr. Alfred E. Long of Tyne Valley, P. E. I. formerly of Fredericton.

Young Wheeler is a son of William Wheeler formerly of Fredericton.

CANTERBURY STATION.

May 19.—The weather is now beginning to get more like summer and the farmers are busy putting in their seeds. The roads are quite dry but rough.

Fishing seems to be the recreation of both old and young now. Every day there are some who go to Skiff Lake to try their skill.

Inspector Meagher is here on his trip to visit the schools.

Miss Lizzie Jamieson, who was visiting friends at Martin Settlement, has returned home.

A pie social was held at the Orange and it was deemed prudent for Miss Nangle to enter and view the body in order to avoid further sensational scenes, and that she might be gotten out of the way before it was time for the service to commence. She entered the parlor, where the remains of her rejected suitor lay. The sight of the body was too much for her, and she almost fainted, all but collapsing. She was immediately led out of the room and out of the house.

On the street she was met by "Jack" McCann, and one of the Dwyer girls, both of whom were with her last Thursday night when the shooting took place. They immediately took her in charge and the three walked down Magazine street. All this time Miss Nangle was in a hysterical condition, and it was with great difficulty that they were able to get her to proceed. At the corner of Florence street they passed Police Officer McCaffrey, who noticed that the girl was crying loudly. A ver, but was restrained by two companions who were a police officer, and was finally induced to accompany them quietly to her home in Allston.

Miss Nangle was first noticed on Hamilton street, where the DeWolfe's live, about 1.30 o'clock. She presented a peculiar appearance, was without a hat, and in her hands she bore a floral offering.

NEAR SUICIDE SHE THINKS SHE WAS.

Officer McCaffrey then took a hand in the affair and told the young woman that she would have to restrain herself and not make a scene. She finally quieted down and, escorted by the officer, they went to the Western Avenue and across the bridge to Allston. Officer McCaffrey told The Herald man last night that he believes the young woman intended to commit suicide and that she would do so unless restrained by those about her.

The funeral of young DeWolf was held at two o'clock, and was attended by a large number of friends and acquaintances, associates of the unfortunate young man, with whom he was popular. The service was also attended by a uniformed delegation from the Roxbury Horse Guards, of which DeWolf was a trooper. DeWolf's horse, with saddle, boots and carbine in charge of Private Shuttleworth, followed the hearse to the cemetery. The service was conducted by the Rev. George F. Durgin, pastor of the Grace M. E. Church. Burial was in the family lot in Cambridge cemetery where a salute was fired over the grave and taps sounded.

Hall on May 12. Through the kindness and generosity of the people the sum of $27.82 was raised to purchase a flag for the school.

Mrs. Duffy, of Fort Kent has been visiting her parents here.

Depow Bros. have improved the outside of their house with a nice coat of paint and are also having the inside finished.
