

C. OF E. MISSION WORK.

Able and Instructive Addresses by Miss Scovil, Rev. G. A. Kuhring and Rev. Mr. Smithers.

A very successful missionary meeting under the auspices of the C. of E. Synod was held in the Church hall last evening. Venerable Archdeacon Neals presided and the hall was well filled.

The meeting opened with devotional exercises, after which the chairman made a few well chosen remarks in which he expressed regret at the unavoidable absence of His Lordship Bishop Kingston.

Miss Elizabeth Scovil, of St. John, was introduced as the first speaker, and gave a very entertaining address on mission work, in which she dealt with work being accomplished by the Church of England in Canada in the foreign field. She dealt particularly with the work in Japan which the church has maintained important missions for a number of years and is doing much good. She gave the names of a number of missionaries sent to that country from Canada and gave them a good share of the credit for what has been done in recent years to improve the standard of morality among the Japanese.

Miss Scovil also told of the work being done by the Canadian Missionary Society in China, Africa, Persia, India, South America, and other foreign countries. She said it was the testimony of those in a position to know that the missionaries sent from Canada were among the most efficient workers found in the foreign field.

Miss Scovil concluded her able and dress amidst a hearty outburst of applause.

The singing of the hymn "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" followed, after which the audience had the pleasure of listening to an able address from Rev. G. A. Kuhring, of St. John's church, St. John. His subject was home missions, and he dealt with it in a masterly manner. In Canada, he said, we have a great country which God has given us in trust and we should fulfil our trust by showing our faith in Christianity. The statement that the 20th century belongs to Canada has never been disputed and a duty has been thrust upon us which is a great one, and should not be shirked.

As the time at his disposal was limited the rev. speaker was obliged to confine his remarks to the province of Saskatchewan, and its needs. He told of the great railway development going on in western Canada. It was estimated that one hundred million bushels of grain would be brought out of that part of the country this year. No less than fifty one new railway stations were being built this year in the province of Saskatchewan alone. By the aid of a large chart the speaker was able to point out the vast districts in the province of Saskatchewan which were still without missions. On the line of the Canadian Northern there are eighteen stations without a Church of England minister. The same conditions prevail along the lines of the C. P. R., and the proposed Grand Trunk Pacific. Archdeacon Lloyd refers to the inflowing of human souls to Saskatchewan as a flood and no other word adequately describes it.

In North Battleford the minister gets through his circuit only once a month. Another minister has twenty seven points to attend to.

The Church of England Theological College of Canada would not turn out more than forty ministers each year, and that number could be swallowed up in the province of Saskatchewan alone. Complaints were now made that the colleges were turning out insufficient men to supply the

THE ANGLICAN SYNOD.

Sharp Debate Over Distribution of Divinity Scholarships—Judge Hannington's Objections Overruled.

At Tuesday morning's session of the synod, Rev. Mr. Cowie gave notice of motion, seconded by Canon Richardson, affecting the distribution of divinity scholarships.

The different reports that had been presented during the morning and had been received and taken as read were then taken up and each after a few words of discussion, were in turn on motion adopted.

Rev. Mr. McKel's resolution, providing that the record of baptism be made to include the names of sponsors as well as the grandparents was defeated.

Rev. Mr. Cowie brought up his resolution, of which notice had been given in the morning. Sub-section B of section 5 of the board of education report provides "That the divinity scholarships be paid in semi-annual payments of $50 or less to such students attending a divinity school in Canada, as his lordship the bishop and the board of diocesan missions shall determine."

The board of education, Mr. Cowie said, requested that this section be changed so as to read in effect paid to divinity students attending such institution as approved by the bishop.

The alteration was asked so that divinity students attending a non-divinity institution may receive aid.

Judge Hannington spoke strongly against the resolution. He contended that its object was to enable financial assistance to be given to two Fredericton young men now in attendance at the U. N. B. He thought it wrong that the synod, eastern dioceses of the Church of England is to continue to exist, the problem of getting more men must be solved.

The speaker closed with an eloquent appeal to the people of the diocese to heed the call of the Master and do His bidding.

In introducing Rev. Mr. Smithers the next speaker the chairman said that he had the distinction of possessing the whole county of Albert for his parish. Rev. Mr. Smithers, who was received with applause, said that he was not the only clergyman who had a whole county to himself as Rev. Mr. Hooper of Bathurst, enjoyed a similar distinction. Rev. Mr. Campbell had once said at a synod meeting that if he were twenty years younger he would go to Albert County and win his spurs. He (the speaker) had not yet won his spurs, but frequently had occasion to use them.

The speaker then entertained his hearers to an account of his experiences in the county of Gloucester, where he was at one time stationed, relating a number of witty anecdotes which created roars of laughter. He also told of his labors in Albert county, where, in the face of many discouragements, he had been able to place the church on a sure footing. At the present time he estimated the church population at about three hundred. He had heard it said that too many Englishmen were sent out here and that the diocese would never enjoy prosperity until more native clergymen were produced. He believed that was all wrong. The English clergy had rendered good service to the diocese and they were all right. He was surprised to learn that there was a deficit of $6,000 on the last year's operations of this diocese. The national debt of England was a blessing in disguise as it gave employment to a great many people. He could not say the same of the diocesan debt. It was not a sign of respectability to be in debt and he knew of men who could wipe it out with a stroke of the pen and he hoped that they would take the hint.

He had read with great interest the sermon delivered by Canon Montgomery at St. James Church, St. John, in which he urged the need of greater missionary effort at home. It was a splendid sermon, it was the canon's opening roar (laughter). The speaker strongly urged the need of greater effort in the direction of home missions. The people of his county were all right and were willing to do a great deal of good. He had done it for them. However, they were raising $225 this year and he hoped in five years time to announce that the parish was self supporting. At the present time the parish was self respecting. He was to have help this year in the person of a young man from Grand Manan, who came very highly recommended. He thought that they should all take courage and be full of hope. When beset with difficulties they should make a frontal attack all along the line with the Saviour leading them. His experience in Albert county had taught him that the church was a great missionary engine. If the church was not of divine origin it would long ago have died out in Albert County. He urged his hearers to be full of hope, full of enthusiasm, full of courage and ever pray that the church of God would be a glorious church in this diocese.

The meeting closed with the singing of a hymn followed by the benediction.

prepared to do as much to assist it as Judge Hannington. But there were exceptional cases that had to be considered. Two young men attending the U. N. B. wanted aid from the church. One of them was a particularly clever student and was looked upon by his associates as a likely winner of the Rhodes scholarship. Surely it would not be a mistake for the Board of Education to assist a young man of that kind.

On the vote being taken Mr. Cowie's motion was carried by a vote of 34 to 17.

ENJOYED THEIR VISIT.

Truro Firemen Pleased With Court-sies Extended to Them in Fredericton.

Truro Daily News.—On the 5th of this month Chief N. B. Stewart of the Truro Fire Brigade, with a company of twenty-one firemen, arrived home from Fredericton, N. B., where they took part in the firemen's tournament and old home celebration, carried out that week in that city.

On the arrival of the Truro firemen at Fredericton they were met at the station by the chief officers of the fire department, with a band, and our boys were escorted to the fire hall.

The Truro firemen were complimented on their handsome uniforms and neat, natty appearance and bearing. They say they were royally entertained by the Fredericton firemen and the citizens generally.

One special feature of their trip was the sail 85 miles down the beautiful St. John River to St. John city, where they were met by Fire Chief Kerr of the St. John fire department who escorted our Truro men about the city, showing them the different fire stations in St. John.

Chief Kerr showed every consideration to the visitors, which was greatly appreciated, and happy will be their memory of their trip to Fredericton and their short visit on their return to the city of St. John.

RED CROSS CONVENTION.

Nations of Civilized World Make Agreement.

Ottawa, July 10.—The final text of the revised Red Cross convention, whereby practically all the nations of the civilized world agree upon rules in the matter of the treatment of the sick, wounded and members of the hospital corps, and nurses in time of war, shows many changes from the antiquated convention of 1864. The protocol of this new convention gives until December 31, 1906, for the ratification of the convention by the governments concerned. The main features of the new convention follow:

Chapter I is devoted to the wounded and sick. Each belligerent is required to care for the sick and wounded officers, soldiers and others attached officially to the enemy's army who fall into its hands. Should one belligerent be compelled to abandon sick and wounded on the field, and leave members of the hospital corps, and material for their care, such sick and wounded become prisoners of the enemy, subject to stipulations made by the belligerents for the exchange of prisoners after each engagement. The final agreement of the field shall adopt measures to find all the wounded and dead and to protect them against pillage before the final disposal of the bodies by burial or incineration. The occupant of the field is charged with a scrupulous examination of the bodies of the enemy. There shall be a reciprocal exchange of information relative to the dead, and all letters, personal objects and valuables found on the field shall be gathered and transmitted to the other side.

Chapter 2 provides for the immunity of members of the field hospital corps. These immunity shall cease, should those in question commit acts prejudicial to the enemy, but the carrying of arms by members of the hospital corps, the presence of picket or sentinels around a hospital, or within a hospital do not constitute grounds for the waiver of such immunity.

Chapter 3 details the protection to be accorded to the various branches of the hospital corps, the members of which are exempted from treason, desertion, and other military offenses. Other chapters provide for the protection of hospital material and the immunity of convoys conducting evacuations, and require that the various governments adopt a repressive law against commercial use of the Red Cross emblem.

The provision relative to arbitration by the permanent tribunal of The Hague is limited to an interpretation of the terms of the new convention in times of peace. In addition to the leading nations of the world, China, Korea, Siam and the Congo were among the participants of the conference. The Russian and Japanese delegates took a most active part in the proceedings, mingling together in a most friendly spirit.

A HAT OF ENGLISH EMBROIDERY.

There is nothing more altogether charming and becoming than the lingerie hats, which crown fair heads this summer. It is rightly termed a becoming hat season for the dainty frills of flimsy whiteness which adorn some of these creations. They soften the lines of the angular face and increase the youthfulness of the round ones. The lingerie hat is the exponent of youth and beauty, the complements of the summer. These hats are not to be had for a mere song, as she who has priced them knows, but that does not debar any ambitious girl or woman from possessing one. The hat shown is designed for home evolution and if one is willing to expend a little time plying the needle she may own as pretty a lingerie hat as can be had. Patterns for the hat and embroidered design are given and anyone may undertake them with success. The embroidered crown fastens down over the soft silk scarf, which surrounds it with tabs, which gives a pretty finish. The edge of the hem is buttonholed in a scallop with the conventional daisy flowers as a border. The hat may be beautified with flowers or foliage or ribbon. One size.

One Accomplishment Already. Parent—And what do you propose to teach the children in your school of calisthenics? Teacher—To sit, stand and lie properly. Parent—Well, you need only to teach mine to sit and stand. My husband is a solicitor for a real estate firm.—Baltimore American.

The Attraction. Harry—There's something about that Miss Richmond that appeals to me. Dick—Nonsense. She's a perfect fright. But they do say she's got lots of money. Harry—By George, that's it! I knew there was something about her that was awfully attractive.—Boston Transcript.

A Perfect Match. Mr. Van Clee (examining little Hattie's Easter eggs)—Ah, this is a beautiful one! What an exquisite tint of crimson! Little Hattie—I thought you would like it. It's the same color that Sister May uses for her cheeks.—Brooklyn Life.

Restricted. "Her husband is teaching her to say 'yes' and 'no.'" "That's strange. Why does he restrict her in such a fashion?" "Because if she says any more she's sure to say it ungrammatically."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Good Thing. Weary Willie—I dunno but it'd be a good thing if a lot of them Filipinos would emigrate over for this country. Dusty Rhodes—What for? Weary Willie—I was readin' in de paper dat dey kills dogs an' eats 'em.—Philadelphia Press.

Unresponsive. "So you prefer a horse to an automobile?" "Yes," answered the irascible man. "A horse doesn't treat threats and blows with the silent contempt that an automobile displays."—Washington Star.
