London, Feb. 12.—Former premier A. J. Balfour was the principal speaker at a banquet given tonight by the Conservatives of the City of London to Sir Edward Clarke.

Mr. Balfour, whose speech had been anticipated with intense interest as his reply to Joseph Chamberlain's pronouncement, spoke at length, confining himself mainly to fiscal questions.

Mr. Balfour maintained that the result of the general election could not be accepted as a final verdict against fiscal reform. He declined to argue the question of protection versus free trade, but maintained the policy he had hitherto advocated is altogether apart from controversy. Mr. Balfour said that his policy was designed so far as might be to diminish the burden on British industries which policy is hostile to the tariffs other industrial countries have imposed. In countries where hostile tariffs did not exist it was the intention to preserve the interest of the British colonies on an equal footing. It was, he said, a policy intended to maintain an increased foreign market for British manufacturers. Protection was an attempt to keep the home market against equal competition from foreign countries.

Mr. Balfour said he viewed the industrial conditions in the United Kingdom with the greatest alarm. He said possibly nations which built up industries behind tariff walls were acting foolishly, but, nevertheless, they did it, and the result undoubtedly was injurious to the United Kingdom. Mr. Balfour asked, was it possible to carry out retaliation unless a part of the scheme? He declined to commit himself on that point, but he said what the country had to

FREDERICTON JUNCTION.

Feb. 12.—Today people were startled by the intelligence that Charles Alexander, one of the best known citizens in this locality, was dead. He had been ailing for over a year, but had not given up work until a short time ago. Sunday morning he showed signs of pneumonia. Later in the day his condition became alarming and at 8.30 p. m., the spirit which had so heroically battled with disease and weakness passed away. He was about 35 years of age and leaves a widow and one young daughter, besides a widowed mother and one brother and three sisters. His father, Thomas William Alexander, died over a year ago.

The last case of smallpox in this parish has been discharged from quarantine. The disease is now extinct here. There are, however, several cases in Blissville. They came to Blissville via Greary.

BALFOUR IS STILL HOPEFUL

make up its mind to was, is the end at which we are aiming worth making worth a sacrifice for?

The cause of tariff reforms, Mr. Balfour said, must be delayed some years, but in the meantime it was the duty of the opposition to the present government to point out the mistakes of the latter and direct the country along the best lines looking to the future of the country.

Continuing, Mr. Balfour said that never had a government been returned with a larger majority without a cause which it wanted to carry out and without any great personality to guide it, but he was ready to concede the present government even longer life than five years.

In conclusion, Mr. Balfour welcomed the workmen in parliament, but said he doubted if the present labor representation was destined to introduce legislation beneficial to the country, or which the unionists could support.
