AWFUL TRAGEDY.

Mr. Charles Moffat of this City Ended His Life While on a Visit to New Maryland.

While in a fit of despondency, brought on by illness and business troubles, Mr. Charles Moffat, the well known carpenter and builder of this city, committed suicide at New Maryland, Sunday, by shooting himself with a razor. He passed away a little more than an hour after committing the rash act. News of the melancholy affair spread quickly and was heard on all sides with expressions of sorrow and regret. Mr. Moffat had a partial stroke during the summer, and never seemed to recover from its effects. He acted rather strangely at times, and his relatives found it necessary to keep a sharp watch upon his movements. In the spring he contracted with a citizen to build a house, and of late he got the impression that he stood to lose considerable money on the job. He seemed to brood a great deal over his troubles and it is said repeatedly threatened to take his life. On one occasion about a fortnight ago he attempted to make good his threat by swallowing acid. It proved to be a weak solution, however, and a physician who was promptly called, succeeded in saving his life. On Friday Mr. Moffat went to New Maryland to spend a few days with his brother-in-law, Mr. John Kirk, Mrs. Moffat joining him on the following day. Sunday morning he accepted an invitation to spend part of the day at the residence of Mr. Dell McKnight, another brother-in-law, and went there in time for dinner. Mr. Moffat appeared to be in a cheerful mood, and chatted entertainingly with the members of the household, and ate a hearty dinner. At the conclusion of the midday meal he went out into the kitchen to smoke, and afterwards slipped outside of the door. When Mr. McKnight started for the barn a few moments later to feed the horses, Mr. Moffat was invited to go along with him and did so. Mr. McKnight entered the horse stable, while Mr. Moffat dodged into the cow barn a few feet away. After feeding the horses Mr. McKnight joined his companion in the cow barn, and was rather surprised to notice that he had become deathly pale. "I have cut myself," was Mr. Moffat's rather startling reply to a question, and the sight of blood flowing from a deep gash under his right ear bore out his statement. Mr. McKnight took the unfortunate man to the house, and made him as comfortable as possible, while he had a telephone message sent to the city for a physician.

Dr. H. H. McNally, responded to call and was at the scene of the tragedy in less than an hour. He found Mr. Moffat still alive but very weak, and he passed away a few minutes after the doctor's arrival.

An examination of the neck showed a deep and clean cut wound about three inches in length. The jugular vein had been completely severed, and the gash extended to the centre of the back of the neck. Had medical attendance been available immediately after the deed was committed the man's life could not have been saved. The razor with which Mr. Moffat snipped out his life belonged to Mr. McKnight and he had, unobserved by the members of the household, taken it from a shelf in the kitchen and concealed it about his person. Strange to say Mr. Moffat had shaved himself with the razor that same morning.

The body was brought to the city Sunday evening by Undertaker John G. Adams, and taken to the late home of the deceased on Charlotte street. The funeral will take place at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon, with interment in the rural cemetery.

The victim of the sad tragedy was a son of the late Mr. Charles Moffat of this city and was forty-five years of age. He is survived by a widow formerly Miss Kirk of New Maryland and a young daughter. His only sister, Miss Jane Moffat, is visiting in Boston, but the sad news had been sent to her by wire and she will return home this evening.

Mr. Moffat was a splendid workman and had a large circle of friends and acquaintances. He was looked upon as a model citizen and his tragic death has greatly shocked the community. The greatest sympathy will be extended to the widow and relatives in their great bereavement.
