

Paint is to a Building

what clothing is to the body. It is just as important. You should take as much care in selecting the paint to clothe your property, as you do in selecting the material to clothe your person. Paint preserves the building. Paint gives beauty to the building. In painting the labor costs more than the paint. There will be a large waste if the right paint is not used.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT

is made for painting buildings. It is not a low-priced paint, but it is cheap because the best. It is made of the purest materials—that wear the longest. The colors are bright and handsome.

Consults A Physician

But does NOT Tell Him All.

Few women confide fully in a physician. They simply will not tell him all. That's why many doctors fail to cure female diseases.

Every woman dreads the ordeal of the physician's consulting room. A sensitive, refined woman shrinks from the searching questions and the physical examination!

It is not so in writing to Mrs. Pinkham. Thousands of women owe their present health and happiness (yes, and their good looks, too) to the fact that they have told all their physical troubles to Mrs. Pinkham and followed her advice and been cured of female diseases.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cures more women every year than any other medicine in the world. If you are in doubt about your case, write in perfect confidence to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. You will receive in reply a personal letter of advice free. Mrs. Pinkham is daughter-in-law of Lydia Pinkham, and for twenty-five years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered intensely with suppressed periods and pain every month for years, and could get no relief from physicians' prescriptions or other medicine. I was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and did so, and in a very short time the flow was regular, natural and without pain.
I am, indeed, a grateful, happy woman for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

Mrs. Hayes also profited by Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Some time ago I wrote you describing my symptoms (fibroid tumor) and asked your advice. You replied and I followed all your directions carefully and to-day am a well woman.

KENDRICK'S THREE WIVES TESTIFY.

No. 3 Was the Only One Who Had Anything Good to Say of Him.

Toronto News.—"What's the rush for this morning?" asked a reporter of the guardian of the door as the crowd poured into the court room. "I guess they must be Kendrick's relatives," was the reply. "A man who has been married three times must have lots of them."
Clarence J. Kendrick was smiling at the beginning, but ceased when a sentence of three years had been passed on him for bigamy.
"What's to be done in this case to-day?" asked the judge.
"You wanted the three wives here to see how he treated them," replied Mr. Curry.
"Mrs. Ethel Taylor wore glasses and was rather thin. She was wife No. 2."
"He behaved all right for a while, but then turned to drinking and I left him. Before we were married he got my watch and chain and rings but I got them back afterwards."
Wife No. 1, Mrs. Margaret Jane Armstrong, came next. She looked the youngest of the three and had a rather stylish costume of navy blue with beaver hat and boa. She was married in June, 1906.
"Did this man get any money from you?"
"He got $150 in little sums at a time."
"Did he know you had that sum when you were married?"
"Yes."
"And he stayed with you until he got the last of it?"
"Yes."
KENDRICK INTERRUPTED.
Kendrick didn't like the evidence and broke in.
"All I got off her was a wedding ring and marriage license. She paid for these; she was so anxious to marry me."
"The lady shook her head vigorously."
"He wants to make out you married him against his will," said the magistrate.
"No," replied wife No. 1, "he wanted to marry me to get my money."
The third wife was rather older and was dressed in black. She alone seemed to cherish no ill will against the man in the dock.
"When were you married?" asked the magistrate.
"On January 30th."
"Oh, you're the last one."
Mrs. Sarah Riley, laughing said:
"Yes."
"Did he get any money from you?"
"No, and he didn't know that I had any. No man, ever knows that I have any money."
"What was the trouble between you and him?"
"He wouldn't work and I told him to get out."
"How did he get fed?"
"I kept boarders."
"Was it your fault that he married you? He says that the women would marry him."
Witness shook her head.
"I didn't work because I was kind of sickly when we were married," put in the husband of the three.
"He was a good man to me and that is all that I have against him," were Mrs. Riley's concluding words as she stepped down and went to sit beside the other two.
PRISONER'S REQUEST.
"Have you anything to say," asked the magistrate of Kendrick.
"Ask them if I ever misused them," replied Kendrick.
His Worship looked surprised.

ONE MILLION IN WANT.

Commercial Agent Report Upon Famine of Japan.

Mr. Alex. MacLean, commercial agent of the Canadian government to Japan in his last report to the department of trade and commerce offers the following interesting information regarding the rice famine in the northern provinces of the Mikado's realm:

"Public and private munificence is directing its best efforts towards the famine stricken districts. The first official reports stated that about 700,000 persons would be in a suffering condition; but this estimate is now increased to a million, more or less. Relief contributions are coming, and further anticipated, chiefly from the following sources:

"From well to do wealthy Japanese persons, families and corporations. From foreign residents in Japan and their connections, and from foreign countries. From government and prefectural appropriations and public works.

"In the first return of the 'Foreign Committee of Relief' just issued, it is stated that 'thousands of Japanese have made contributions in sums ranging from 50,000 yen of the Emperor down through the 10,000 yen of the Japan Railway Company, to the yen and even sen of individuals philanthropists. The authorities, Imperial and Provincial, especially the former are carrying on millions of yen worth of public works, that every day give employment to thousands of poor people. All funds are being administered in full consultation with the authorities of the three provinces chiefly afflicted.

"Public works initiated for charitable reasons, are regarded as being the least objectionable and most effective means of relieving want, inasmuch as assistance received in that way is felt to be the least humiliating. The officials charged with the distribution are elected by the people themselves. They are bound up with the peasantry they represent, have very complete information of the details of actual distress, and there is no question as to the best use being made of contributions in whatever form. As to actual distress, there is no doubt of it whatever. As described by the second official report, which is in great part an appeal, the conditions are appalling. A leading foreign newspaper says that the nature and extent of the distress call for the most prompt and continued aid."

GOT AN INFERNAL MACHINE, STRIKES ARE SUSPECTED.

Attempt to Kill or Maim in Brownsville Factory Office is Frustrated.

New York, March 23.—An attempt to kill or maim members of the office force of J. Elmsner & Co., garment manufacturers, of Brownsville, was made this morning. An infernal machine, cleverly constructed and sent through the mails, was received at the firm's office, but the nature of it was discovered before it was opened, and there was no explosion.

J. Elmsner is the head of one of the largest garment factories in the city, located at Sheffield street and Belmont avenue. For the past month his seven hundred operators have been on strike and the police of the Fifty-third Precinct have had much trouble in preserving order. At present two hundred non-union men are at work in the factory. Only last week one of these men was arraigned in the Gates avenue court for firing a pistol which he claimed he carried in defense of his life.

Two weeks ago a package arrived at the factory addressed to A. Aram. Mr. Aram is the superintendent. He opened it and found it was simply a lot of dirt with a note, which said: "Next time you get a package, both you and Elmsner will go out the window." The superintendent paid little attention to the incident.

This morning the second package arrived addressed to J. Elmsner & Co.

It had been mailed in Greenpoint and bore five 2 cent stamps. Superintendent Aram, who opens the mail at the factory, tore off the paper wrapper and found inside a cigar box with the cover tied on with a string. As he lifted the box, a few grains of black powder fell out on the desk. This greatly alarmed the superintendent, who dropped the box and jumped away from the desk.

Clerks and typewriters in the office immediately believed the infernal machine was about to explode and ran out of the building in panic. The police who are on duty at the factory every day were called in and Roundsman Fox got a bucket of water and dropped the cigar box into it. Then he sent for Captain Cullen, of Fifty-third precinct, who came and took the box away to the station house. Captain Cullen, who is something of an expert on bombs, opened the box at the station house after it had been well soaked in water.

He found that the string which tied the box up was so arranged that, when it was removed, it lifted up the cover. The lifting of the cover drew several matches which were attached to it across a piece of sand paper. The matches were so arranged as to ignite a fuse, which led into another compartment that contained a small tin can. The can was filled to the brim with black powder. Around the can, tightly packed, in order to keep it from jostling about, was a carbon preparation such as is used in automobile lamps and which is very inflammable.

Captain Cullen said the machine was one of the most ingenious he had ever seen and that, while it might not have been powerful enough to have destroyed life, it would probably have blinded the person who opened it.

It was noticed by members of the firm that an unusually large number of strikers were hanging about the building this morning, in apparent expectation of some event. The police have no clue to the senders of the machine.

Invention is the mother of riches.

"Don't you think that it was misusing them to marry them when you were already married?"

"It's the fault of the first two who spoke; the last one is worth a dozen of them," said Kendrick, mindful of the good references that Mrs. Riley had given him.

"I suppose you should be an expert on the value of wives?" replied the magistrate.

"Make the sentence as light as possible," said Kendrick.

"No, make it as heavy as possible," called out wife No. 1 from the side benches.

"I'm going to lock you up as it is not safe to have you outside," replied his Worship. "You will go to the penitentiary for three years."

Kendrick said nothing, but wife No. 1 said:

"That's not long enough."

"And this is the end of the story of Clarence J. Kendrick and his three wives."
