PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD.

Rev. Mr. Annand Unanimously Elected Moderator--Educational Reports Encouraging.

Moncton, Oct. 3.—The synod of the Maritime Provinces of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, met in St. John's Church last evening, a large number of delegates being present. Public worship was conducted by the moderator, Rev. Dr. Miller, of Yarmouth.

The synod then unanimously elected Rev. Dr. Joseph Annand of Santo, New Hebrides, moderator.

The new moderator was born at Gays River, Halifax County. He studied at Halifax in 1872. He graduated and immediately upon being licensed to preach he was appointed to the New Hebrides. Some years ago he was appointed principal of a seminary established at Tangoa. This is Dr. Annand's second tour of duty in thirty-four years. He is still healthy and vigorous. Dr. Annand is a brother of Mrs. A. J. Mowatt of Montreal, formerly of Fredericton.

Moncton, Oct. 3.—(Special)—The Maritime Synod got down to business this morning. After a half hour's devotional exercise the clerk drew attention to the presence of Rev. Dr. Falconer, moderator of the General Assembly, and he was called to the platform.

Rev. G. S. Carson, business manager of the Witness, presented the claims to the denominational paper, and a resolution was passed recognizing the service with the Witness is doing for the Church and commending to the whole membership.

The Halifax Ladies College was the next matter to engage attention. Rev. Dr. Smith, of Musquodoboit, submitted a report from visitors to the college. The committee had made two visits and heartily endorsed the valuable services of the institution. The general moral tone of the college is good, and worthy of the confidence of our people.

Rev. Dr. Robert Laing, president of the ladies' college submitted a report of the institution. It referred to the success of the college and expressed the feeling that there should be closer relationship between the institution and church.

The financial statement gave the cost of the building and equipments, $102,513, with a mortgage of $25,000.

Judge Forbes, Dr. Sedgewick, Rev. Thomas Fowler and others discussed the reports, endorsing the view of closer relationship between the church and college.

Dr. Sedgewick pointed out that Presbyterians were doing nothing with the church towards the education of legislators, professional men, etc. in the provinces. Presbyterians would have to show greater interest in denominational institutions in the future.

Resolution moved by Dr. Sedgewick seconded by Judge Forbes was passed adopting and endorsing reports of the visiting committee and board of directors and approving the appointment of a committee of visitation as follows:—

Moderator and ex-Moderator, President Forest, Principal Falconer, Dr. Calkin, Dr. Edwin Smith and Thos. H. Somerville, St. John.

The report of the synod fund, submitted by Dr. MacMillan was under discussion at adjournment.

THE COCHRANE RIOT.

Young Cole Still Living, but in Critical Condition--Enraged Italians Made Lively Time.

Calgary, Alta., Oct. 3.—(Special)—News from Cochrane indicates that young Cole, who was stabbed by enraged Italians in a riot on Saturday, is still hovering between life and death. He is in quite a precarious condition. Cole was in no way associated with the riot.

People who saw the encounter, tell of its intensity. After Hewitt, who caused the row, had assaulted the Italians, the entire 30 went mad. They got Hewitt and all began stabbing at him at one time.

One Italian drew a revolver and began shooting Hewitt at random running all round the infuriated men who encircled him. He would have done damage, but for the fact that a spectator hit him with a brick knocking him insensible.

Then the riot began in earnest, Residents of the town attempted to rescue Hewitt, when Italians started in on them, and it looked as though there would be a pitched battle. As the residents got reinforcements the Italians retreated.

Just before the end came, Cole was wounded. He is a rancher and had come to Cochrane to meet his father and mother who were coming in on the train. He was carefully keeping out of the fight, when an Italian broke away from the rest and ran over to him, pulled a knife and plunged it into the young man's liver.

The Italians retreated to the car and were taken in shortly after by the mounted police.

Two Italians who did the wounding are held in cells here. Others were fined from $5 to $25 and released.

DIGBY SUICIDE.

Prominent Merchant Found Hanging in His Barn--No Motive Known.

Digby, N. S., Oct. 3.—(Special)—Wallace Trask, general merchant of Little River, Digby Co., and one of the most prominent citizens in that village, committed suicide at 6:30 o'clock this morning by hanging himself in the barn near his store and residence.

He got up as usual and seened in the best of spirits. After going to the store and waiting on a customer, he returned to the house for his milk pail.

Another customer wanting to get in the store, Mrs. Trask went to the barn to call her husband, but she found the door fastened on the inside. She entered from the rear and found her husband hanging by a rope from a beam with his feet just clearing the floor.

Assistance was immediately summoned but he soon expired. An inquest is now being held, but the verdict can be nothing but suicide.

No motive is given. He was comfortably fixed financially, and had no business or family trouble.

He is survived by a widow but no family. He was of cheerful disposition, well liked by everybody, a careful business man and honest in his dealings. He was well known among wholesale merchants of St. John and his credit was excellent.

The whole village was thrown in a state of excitement. Deceased was 55 years old.

Fitting a Sleeve.

Nine out of ten amateur dressmakers will try to put a small sleeve top into a large arm eye, or vice versa, without the least idea of the relation of size between the two. Another evil lies in "taking in" promiscuously. "It is too big under the arms" or "it is too long in the shoulder seam; I shall have to take it in a little." Now, you will only make matters worse by constantly pinching in and cutting off any portion of your material in one place. You must take it in by gentler methods. Slope it away gradually down the seam or work the material out in two or three places. Never take the material out abruptly in one spot.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS.

Delegations Heard at This Morning's Session--Interprovincial Conference.

The local government held a meeting here this morning with Hon. Messrs. Tweedie, Pugsley, Faris, LaBillois and Jones in attendance. Most of the time of the meeting was taken up with hearing delegations.

ST. ANDREW'S WELFARE.

Mr. R. E. Armstrong of St. Andrews, editor of the Beacon, and Mr. George M. Byron, of Campbell, who interviewed the government this morning, urging assistance for the extension of the market wharf at St. Andrews to deep water, were very cordially received by members of the executive.

The necessary expenditure will probably reach some $10,000 or $12,000 and is authorized by legislation passed in 1891, when $40,000 was granted for wharf building and extension at St. Andrews and the Ledge, St. Stephen. The latter work was completed in 1898 at a cost of $8,000 but no part of the authorized amount has been expended at St. Andrews.

Messrs. Armstrong and Byron made out a strong case, and were backed up by legislative authority, and the government recognizing the justice of their request readily promised to carefully consider the matter. In fact the delegation was given to understand that if they filed plans of the proposed wharf and the Dominion government would do the necessary dredging to enable vessels of modern tonnage, the application would be granted.

Mr. Cyprion Martin, M. P., was heard in regard to having registry for titles in Madawaska county copied from the Victoria county records. These documents date back to the time before the two counties were separated.

Messrs. T. M. Burns and Joseph Poirier, M. P.'s were heard in regard to some Gloucester county matters.

This afternoon Messrs. J. M. Stevens and J. H. Barry, K. C. were heard in regard to the incorporation of the town of St. Leonard's.

Dr. C. C. Jones' appointment as chancellor of the U. N. B., will be gazetted this afternoon.

The premier and attorney general will represent New Brunswick at the interprovincial conference which opens at Ottawa on Monday next.

A meeting of the board of education is being held this afternoon.

THE STOCK MARKET.

Canadian Pacific Drops Off a Few Points.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—(Special)—The chief characteristics of the stock market today were weakness in the Canadian Pacific and strength in the Hochelaga Bank.

Hochelaga Bank on the prospects of a new issue of stock and an increased dividend, rose to 163 after opening three points lower.

Canadian Pacific opened at 181 and later sold at 180 1/2.

Other features of the trading were: Montreal Power, 95 1/2; Rio, 40 1/2; Detroit United 95 1/2; Dan. Iron, 29 1/2; Pfd, 78 1/2; Bonds 83 1/2; Havana, pfd., 89; North Star Mining, 28.

Not All In the Air.

The incident below—which Daniel Colt Gilman, LL. D., late president of Johns Hopkins university, incorporated in his sheaf of remembrances, "The Launching of a University and Other Papers"—could not happen at the present time, when each new institution of learning has its millionaire sponsor.

It belongs to the pioneer period of education, when starting a college meant breaking the wilderness.

A gentleman, President Gilman says, once introduced himself to Dr. Day, then president of Yale, as chancellor of a western state university.

"How large a faculty have you?" President Day inquired, with genuine interest.

"Not any," answered the western gentleman.

"Have you any library or buildings?"

"Not yet."

"Any endowment?"

"None."

"What have you, then?" persisted President Day.

The visitor's countenance brightened. "We have a very good charter," said he.

RICHARDSON WON.

Rector of Trinity Church, St. John, Elected Coadjutor Bishop of Fredericton on Eleventh Ballot.

A Struggle That Extended to Two Thirty O'clock in the Morning.

The Rev. Canon Richardson, rector of Trinity church, St. John, has been chosen coadjutor bishop of the diocese of Fredericton with the right of succession to the See. The choice was made by the diocesan synod at 2:30 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning.

The contest which continued for twelve hours with only a short intermission, was a notable one and will long be remembered by those who took part. Eleven ballots were taken before the successful candidate had received a separate two-thirds vote of clergy and laity as required under the rules of the canon.

After the third ballot had been taken the clergy and laity each held a conference, but failed to arrive at an understanding. The first vote following the conference resulted in Canon Richardson securing two-thirds of the laity, but Archdeacon Neales' supporters among the clergy would not yield. They held out bravely until nearly midnight when one by one they began to transfer their votes.

The last ballot was taken at 2:30 o'clock and showed that 35 clerical votes had been cast for Richardson against 17 for his opponent and 42 lay votes against 13 for the Archdeacon. This settled the question and the building fairly shook with the applause that greeted the announcement.

The adjourned meeting of the church of England synod for the election of a coadjutor bishop was called to order in the church hall at 2:30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, with the commissary Rev. Archdeacon Neales of Woodstock in the chair. Rev. Canon Newham of St. Stephen acted as secretary. The attendance of delegates was larger than at the July meeting there being about 120 present.

After roll call the secretary read a resolution adopted at a recent meeting of the deanery of Shediac expressing strong disapproval of the proposal to make up a portion of the bishop's salary from mission funds.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT.

Mr. A. C. Fairweather presented the following report from the standing committee:

St. John, N. B., Sept. 17, 1906. To The Diocesan Synod of Fredericton.

The standing committee reports that in consequence of the criticism regarding the financial arrangements necessary to provide the salary for the payment of a Bishop coadjutor, made in this synod in July last, and also because of inquiries and suggestions since received from members of the synod, it was decided to ask the Bishop whether he could surrender a portion of his episcopal income towards paying the stipend of a Bishop coadjutor.

As a result of a conference his lordship has placed at the disposal of the synod the entire income arising from the local endowments of the See, amounting to $766.68 per annum.

The capital from which this income is derived, constitutes the entire contributions of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia towards the Episcopal Endowment Fund of the Diocese of Fredericton.

The committee therefore reports that the income arising from said capital fund, is at the disposal of the synod and that the amount proposed to be debited to the mission fund of the diocese may be reduced by the sum of $766.68, making the charge upon that fund $433.32 per annum, instead of $1200 as heretofore proposed.

The committee suggests this change in deference to the wishes of those members of the synod who urged that a contribution should be made by his lordship. It is only proper to state that the personal preference of the committee, is that the original proposal should stand, as it is thought by the committee only just to the Bishop.

The necessity of providing episcopal assistance, is however, so urgent that it was thought to be the duty of the committee to take any steps which would facilitate an election and thereby insure as speedily as possible a more effective administration of Diocesan duties.

On motion of Dr. Raymond and Judge Hanington the rule was suspended to allow Rev. G. M. Campbell to address the synod on behalf of the Canadian Auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society. Rev. Mr. Campbell delivered a stirring address of fifteen minutes duration in which he ably set forth the claims of the society for the support of the synod. The hearty applause which greeted the Rev. gentleman's utterance, caused one delegate to express regret that Mr. Campbell was not a candidate for the coadjutorship.

When the order of business was resumed the commissary said that the Bishop had requested him to state that he did not feel strong enough to attend the meeting and had requested him (Neales) to preside in his stead.

THE COADJUTOR ELECTION.

On motion of Justice Hanington, seconded by Chancellor Allen it was resolved to proceed with the election of a coadjutor bishop.

Mr. Fairweather moved that the report of the standing committee be adopted.

A STRONG SPEECH.

Judge Hanington at this stage addressed the meeting at some length. He congratulated the committee on the action they had taken, but thought that it was for the synod to say whether or not the trust funds of the church should be taken for the coadjutor's salary. He had heard read the memorial of the deanery of Shediac, and it went to show that there was a feeling among the people that the trust funds should not be touched. He had felt strongly on the question in July and had not since changed his opinion. He regretted the illness of the Bishop as much as any man could, and wished to see him restored to health. But his duty to his church made it necessary for him to oppose the proposal to pay the coadjutor out of trust funds. It would be perverting a sacred trust to use the funds of the church to pay the coadjutor's salary. If this fund is taken it will be in his judgment to dry up the fountain of generosity to the cathedral. The generous gifts of the early days are not forthcoming, for some reason, and he would repeat if the trust funds were taken it would dry up the rivulets of generosity. He entertained the best wishes for His Lordship, but now that Providence had disabled him he thought he should contribute at least $2,000 per annum towards the coadjutor's salary. There are other able men in the church but what do they get when incapacitated?—a paltry $300 or $400 a year. The late Bishop Medley gave up half his salary, when still able to do half the work. If the synod failed to elect a coadjutor let the responsibility face upon the gentleman who declines to give up his salary. He had been informed that the bishop's salary was $6,200 per year, then let him retain the sum of $3,000. If he (Hanington) were a clergyman, and was offered the position of coadjutor under the circumstances by God's help he would refuse it. He would be taking the dean's salary and would be unable to do the dean's work. If the bishop coadjutor cannot be appointed because there are no funds with which to pay him, let the responsibility come upon the man who draws the salary and cannot do the work. Let the mission funds go to the purpose for which they are intended, and let us stand firm and in the right. We should raise the coadjutor's salary ourselves or let the bishop provide it out of his stipend.

The judge closed by moving, seconded by Mr. W. C. H. Grimmer, an amendment, the purport of which was that it is inadvisable to provide a stipend for the coadjutor bishop from trust funds or any funds raised for missionary purposes, and that any resolution to that effect be rescinded. The judge said he did not take this action to delay the appointment of a coadjutor bishop as the church was suffering for efficient administration, but he was taking it for the reasons he had already given. The judge went so far as to say that he thought the blessing of God would be taken away from the cathedral if its trust funds were perverted.

MR. OTTY'S VIEWS.

Mr. G. O. D. Otty, in reply denied that there was any perversion of trust funds contemplated. The judge, he said, had spoken plainly and he proposed to speak plainly in reply. Judge Hanington had given his opinion as to how much the bishop should have to live upon.

Judge Hanington here arose amidst cries of "order!" and denied that he had said what amount the bishop should have to live upon.

Judge Hanington—I didn't say he would have it to live upon.
