GAME LAW VIOLATIONS.

While Aid Wyse of Chatham was making a business call at the office of Rich & Mator in that town, Friday he noticed a quantity of skins. He was surprised to see the skin of a newly killed mink among them and communicated with Game Warden Robinson, of Newcastle. Aid Wyse and the game warden went to the store next day and found it locked but effected an entrance with the aid of a policeman and in a few minutes found the skins of two large moose, a cow moose, and five caribou, which were taken to Mr. Wyse's office. The impending case will probably be an interesting one as the penalty for buying, selling or having for sale during the close season is $150 or three months' imprisonment for a moose, and even higher for a cow moose.

SIMASSIES COLORS LOWERED.

Nova Scotia Flyer Lost Match Race to Terrace Queen

---Some Exciting Incidents.

About seven hundred people witnessed the horse races at the trotting park yesterday afternoon and were treated to a splendid program of sport. The great Simassie hitherto the Queen of the maritime turf, had her colors lowered in a match race with Terrace Queen, a recent importation from New York. The 2.24 class was won by Burline after a seven heat race. Kremont, owned by Mr. J. H. Calder of this city got second place and Badger of Chatham got third.

The rain storm in the morning made the track heavy, consequently none of the horses approached their records, and the track record of last year holds good.

2.24 CLASS.

Badger drew the pole in the 2.24 class with Daisy Wilkes in second position. The latter kept her place until the three-quarter pole was reached when she went into the air. Louise M. also acted badly in the first heat. Badger finished first with Kremont a good second.

The second heat was taken by Daisy Wilkes in 2.27, the fastest time made in the race, Kremont finishing third. Badger took the lead in this heat and lost by less than a neck.

The fourth heat was won by Kremont by a very close margin over Burline, and it became quite evident to many spectators that Driver Rideout was purposely holding back the gelding to prevent his getting a mark. A protest was made to the judges and after consideration they compelled Rideout to step down and out and Boutillier was put in his place. The fact that Burline captured the next three heats and the race showed the wisdom of the judges' decision.

Louise M. got a very bad start in the fifth heat, but by a wonderful burst of speed succeeded in losing the heat only by a neck finishing second. Her owner Sheriff Stirling entered a vigorous protest with the judges, and claimed the heat, but the claim was not allowed. As the sheriff's mare had not won a heat out of the first five she had to be withdrawn under the rules. The sheriff considers that he was very badly treated by starter Teed.

The final heat of the race was won by Burline with Badger second and Kremont third.

At the end of the fourth heat Mr. Calder, owner of Kremont, and Mr. O'Neill, the owner of Daisy Wilkes, got into an altercation. The former challenged the latter to a matched race $500 a side and placed ten dollars in Mr. McCoy's hands to bind the challenge. Mr. O'Neill accepted the proposition and covered the deposit. The parties agreed to meet this evening at McCoy's hotel to draw up an agreement and settle upon a time.

MATCH RACE.

The first heat of the matched race was a pretty exhibition. Simassie had the pole and took the lead at the start. For over three quarters of a mile they continued in that position, not half a length separating the flyers. Along the home stretch the mares came on even terms, but Queen passed under the wire first and won the heat.

In the second heat Simassie passed her opponent at the quarter, but lost the lead at the half. The Queen showed a wonderful burst of speed and before the three quarter pole was reached was fully forty yards ahead. She came home a winner and apparently did not try to increase the distance.

In the third heat Terrace Queen led from the start and came in an easy winner by some 30 yards, but with a fast track the result might have been different.
