DIVORCE COURT.

Further Evidence in Lottimer's Case Submitted this Morning.

Spicy Dialogue between Judge and Plaintiff who Gave Way to Tears.

At an adjourned sitting of the divorce court this morning, Judge Gregory heard further evidence in the case of Ida Lottimer vs. Robert M. Lottimer and Joseph Holmes vs. Elizabeth Ann Holmes, and reserved judgment in both cases until the February term.

In the Lottimer case, Mr. O. S. Crockett, proctor for the plaintiff, offered evidence to show that the plaintiff was married in Sept., 1889, her husband left her in Sept., 1890, and her child was born in December of that year.

Mrs. Lottimer was called to the stand and questioned by the Judge in regard to a letter she claims to have received from her husband shortly after his removal to New York, requesting her to come and live with him. The witness said the letter had been lost, which explanation elicited from the Judge the remark that it had an important bearing in the case and should have been preserved. The witness said she had answered the letter the same week, and had not afterwards heard from her husband.

The Judge thought it rather remarkable that the plaintiff's father and brothers had not interested themselves in her behalf, sufficiently to ascertain the whereabouts and doings of her husband. "It is a long time since you separated," he continued, "and the law doesn't favor stale applications and delays."

The plaintiff replied that she could not take proceedings for a divorce without some grounds, and her brothers and father did not have the means to help her.

The Court—What set you on the track after the lapse of so many years?

The plaintiff—I heard he was married again. I heard it through a friend of mine who heard it from another friend. This was last fall, and it was the first intimation I had that he was married again.

The Court—You were not long in starting after you heard that.

The plaintiff—I would have started before had I known.

The Court—You said you had no means. How did you get them?

The plaintiff—I worked and earned money for five years.

The Court—Have you been saving money?

The plaintiff—Not lately.

The Court—What effort did you make to get on your husband's track?

The plaintiff—I enquired from different persons, but could not find out anything.

The Court—Did you enquire of his co-workers?

The plaintiff—His people are all in New York, and I could not find them.

The Court—He has an uncle, and cousins here, did you make any enquiries from them?

The plaintiff—No, I didn't, because they would not tell me anything.

The Court—How did you know this?

The plaintiff—Other people enquired for me.

The Court—I should think you would have gone to New York. Very

SAVED THE CO.

Three weeks ago a scow loaded with one hundred ton of hard coal, while being towed from St. John to this city, struck a sunken log near MacGowan's and sank to the bottom. The coal was consigned to Mr. F. H. Everett of this city, and was being delivered by Mr. J. A. Ruddick. A crew of men and a tug started right in on an effort to float the scow and a few days ago succeeded in bringing it to the surface. It was found that a large hole had been stove in the bottom of the scow. Mr. Ruddick had the scow propped up between two others and towed back to St. John.

REWARD.
