CHAPTER IX.

The calm with which we had so far been favored was not, however, destined to be as permanent as we imagined, for towards the middle of the night the wind got up, and the sea, from being as smooth as glass, became more boisterous than I altogether liked. Miss Maybourne, who now seemed to be sunk into the lethargy from which she had aroused me, lifted her head from her hands, and at times glanced over her shoulder at the advancing seas apprehensively. One thing was very evident; it would never do to let our boat drift broadside on the seas, so I got to the oars again, and, to distract my companions thoughts, asked her to take the helm. She did as I requested her to, but without any sign of eagerness which she had hitherto displayed. Then, for something like an hour, we struggled on in this crab like fashion. It was herculean labor and every minute found my strength becoming more and more exhausted. The power of the wind was momentarily increasing, and with it the waves were assuming more threatening proportions. To say that I did not like the look of the affairs would be to put my feelings very mildly. To tell the truth, I was too worn out to think of anything, save what our fate would be if by chance we were on the edge of a hurricane. However, I knew that it would not do to meet trouble half way, so, by sheer force of will, I reverted my thoughts to the boat, and in thus endeavoring to avert the evils of the present, found sufficient occupation to prevent me from cross questioning the future.

Suddenly Miss Maybiurne, who, as I have said, had for some time been sitting in a constrained attitude in the stern, sprang to her feet with a choking cry.

"Mr. Wrexford," she said in a voice that at any other time I should not have recognized as being hers, "I must have something to drink or I shall go mad."

Fearing that she might fall overboard in her excitement, I leapt up, seized her in my arms, and dragged her down into her seat again. Had I not done so, I cannot say what might not have happened.

"Let me go," she moaned, "Oh, for Heaven's sake, let me go. You don't know what agony you are suffering."

I could very well guess, for I had my own feelings to guide me. But it was my duty to try and cheer her at any cost, and all my energies were concentrated on this work, at the same time keeping the boat's head in a position so that the racing seas should not overwhelm her—no light work, I can assure you. When at last I did succeed in calming her, she sat staring straight ahead of her like a woman turned to stone. It was pitiful to see a woman, who had hitherto been so brave, brought so low. I put my arm around her waist the better to hold her, and, as I did so, watched the black seas, with their tips of snowy foam, come hissing towards us. Overhead the stars shone brightly, and still not a vestige of a cloud was to be seen. It seemed like doubting Providence to believe that, after all the dangers from which we had been preserved since we had left England, we were destined to die of starvation in an open boat in mid-Atlantic. And yet how like it looked.

After that one outburst of despair Miss Maybourne gave no more trouble, and when she had been sitting motionless beside me for an hour or thereabouts fell fast asleep, her head resting on my arm. Weak and suffering as I was, I was not so far gone as to be unable to feel a thrill of delight at this close contact with the woman I loved. What would I not have given to have been able to take her in my arms and have comforted her properly!—to have told her of my love, and, in the event of her returning it, to have faced King Death side by side as lovers. With her hand in mine Death would not surely be so very terrible. However such a thing could not be thought of. I was a criminal, a murderer flying from justice; and it would have been an act of the basest sacrilege on my part to have spoken a word to her of the affection which by this time had come to be part of my life. For this reason I had to crush it and keep it down; and, if by any chance we should be rescued, I would have to leave her and go out and hide myself in the world without allowing her ever to suspect the thoughts I had in my mind concerning her. God knows, in this alone I had suffered punishment enough for the sin I had unintentionally committed.

At last the eastern stars began to lose something of their brilliance, and within a short period of my noticing this change, the wind, which had been sensibly moderating for some time past, dropped to a mere zephyr, and then died away completely. With its departure the violence of the waves subsided, and the ocean was soon, if not so smooth as on the previous day, at least sufficiently so to prevent our feeling any further anxiety on the score of the boat's safety.

One by one the stars died out of the sky, and a faint grey light, almost dove-colored in its softness, took their place. In this light our boat looked double her real size, but such a lone'y speck upon that waste of water that it would have made the heart of the boldest man sink into his shoes with fear. From the above mentioned hue the color quickly turned to the palest turquois, and again to the softest pink. From pink it grew into a kaleidoscope of changing tints until the sun rose like a ball of gold above the sea-line—and day was born to us. In the whole course of my experience I never remember to have seen a more glorious sunrise. How different was it in its joyous lightness and freshness to the figures presented by the two miserable occupants of that lonely boat!

At last Miss Maybourne opened her eyes, and, having glanced round her, sat up. My arm, when she did so, was so cramped and stiff that for a moment I could scarcely bear to moveit. She noticed this, and tried to express her regret, but her tongue refused to obey her commands. Seeing this, with an articulate sound she dropped her head on her hands once more. To restore some animation into my cramped limbs, I rose and endeavored to make my way to the bows of the boat. But to my dismay, I discovered that I was as weak as a month-old child. My legs refused to support the weight of my body, and with a graan I sank down on the thwart where I had previously been rowing.

For upwards of half an hour we remained as we were, without speaking. Then I suddenly chanced to look along the sea-like to the westward. The atmosphere was so clear that the horizon stood out like a pencilled line. I looked, rubbed my eyes, and looked again. iCould I be dreaming, or was it a delusion conjured up by an overtaxed brain. I shut my eyes for a moment, then opened them, and looked again. No, there could be no mistake about it this time. A ship was in sight, and heading directly for us! Oh, the excitement of that moment, the delirious joy, the wild, almost cruel hope that seized me! But, mad with longing thoughts I was, I had still sufficient presence of mind left to say nothing about my discovery to Miss Maybourne until I was sure of my facts. She was sitting with her back towards it, and therefore could not see it. So while there was any chance of the vessel leaving us, I was not going to excite her hopes, only to have them blighted again. There would be plenty of time to tell her when she was close enough to see us.

A WOMAN'S KIDNEYS.

What Doctors Notice and What They Don't.

Disease in the kidneys is one of the last ailments for which a doctor looks when treating women. This is a great mistake.

Women are very prone to kidney trouble and in fact many physicians attribute a woman's langour and ill health to a derangement of the genital organs, when it's simply plain kidney disease and nothing else.

Many so supposed female complaints are either kidney or bladder diseases.

Sick kidneys of course make associate organs sick also.

The result is back pains, bearing down sensations, utter weariness and headaches.

But Dr. Hamilton's Pills go right to the spot.

They put life into the kidneys that makes a worn out woman feel like new.

Indirectly the blood and nervous centres are assisted by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and the result is a proper performance of the function and a painless fulfilment af nature's command.

Thus it is that a woman can gain much happiness and abundant good health by the regular use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

From her home near Portland, Ont Mrs. A. B. Coburn writes:

"For two years past I have been sickly and weak. My color was dull and sallow, and I felt exhausted and weary, as if all my strength were being eaten up with some hidden trouble. I heard of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and decided to use them. The change in a few days was surprising. They regulated my bowels and kidneys and cured all my suffering; today I am perfectly well."

You can rely on Dr. Hamilton's Pills with implicit confidence; their effect is wonderful Sold by all dealers. Price 25c a box, five bozes for $1.00, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford Conn., U. S. A.

PLUCKY RESCUE FROM DROWNING.

St. Andrew's Beacon.—A party of young ladies from Flume Ridge went on a fishing trip on the 24th. Miss Mary E. Morrissy, one of the party, while fishing under the bridge at the Flume, slipped off the rocks and fell in. She was carried down the river by the swift current. The party on the shore gave the alarm.

Mr. Bert Campbell, who was working in the mill nearby, leaped into the river, but struck a rock as he fell and was unable to follow the girl. His brother, Thomas Campbell, formerly town marshal of St. Stephen, who had also jumped into the river after the drowning girl, was more fortunate. After a swim of almost half a mile he overtook the girl and brought her ashore in an exhausted state, but still clinging to the fishing pole. Had he been one moment later in rescuing her, life would have been extinct. She is now rapidly recovering under the skilful care of Dr. Butler, of McAdam.

YOU ARE AILING.

Not quite sick,—but robbed of ambition to work,—find it hard to think clearly. Not ill enough to thifik oj dying, but bad enough for life to be pretty dull. There is a remedy—Ferrozone—that quick,y lifts that half dead feeling. Gracious, but Ferrozone makes you feel good; it sharpens the dullest appetite, makes it as keen as a razor.

BLOOD? Ferrozone makes lots of it, the rich, nourishing kind that vitalizes the whole body. You'll be wonderfully quickened, immensely strengthened, feel hearty and vigorous after using Ferrozone. OFTEN MISTAKEN IN APPENDICITIS.

Dr. Dieulafoy Says Operations are Frequently Performed on a Wrong Diagnosis.

Paris, June 8.—A sensational statement was made Saturday before the Academy of Medicine by Professor Dieulafoy, who said that many persons merely suffering from muco-membranous or sabulous typhlocolitis are wrongly operated upon for appendicitis.

Muco-membranous typhlocolitis is characterized by periods of constipation and diarrhoea, the ejections having certain characteristic features. There is pain in the right iliac fossa, which resembles that caused by appendicitis.

Dr. Dieulafoy pointed out that it was very rare for a person to suffer from appendicitis and typhlocolitis at the same time, and in any case appendicitis is neither a consequence nor a result of typhlocolitis. He expressed the opinion that the number of errors of diagnosis and unnecessary operations performed were ever on the increase.

It has been demonstrated, he said, that muco-membranous typhlocolitis had nothing to do with the appendix, the ablation of which, consequently, had no curative effect whatever. It was necessary, therefore, that great care be taken in making the diagnosis, as it was time to put an end to useless surgical operations.

Dr. Dieulafoy said he was as much as ever in favor of the ablation of the appendix in cases of real appendicitis.

Dr. Doyen fully supports the views of Dr. Dieulafoy, and says: "I could cite many cases where an operation was decided upon merely because the diagnosis was insufficient. There has been a tendency blindly to decide upon surgical intervention, and operations have ever been carried out on patients in the early stages of typhoid fever.

"Quite recently a child was brought to me. I was asked to proceed to an operation for appendicitis. Instead of operating I examined the child and found the symptoms described to be simply due to the presence of worms in the intestines. Nevertheless the parents were so convinced that it was a case of appendicitis that an operation was performed by another surgeon the next day."

DEATH OF VETERAN.

Major Templeman Mustered Out After Long Service.

Chatham World.—Major Templeton died Monday night after a long illness. His age is given as 75. He was born in Edinburgh in 1830, and enlisted at the age of 18. He saw service first in Ireland, in the rebellion of '48, and served throughout the campaign in the Crimea as a corporal, fighting in all the battles on the peninsula. He was wounded in one battle.

After service in the West Indies, where he married, he was made a sergeant and was sent to Canada with eleven others, when the seizure of the Trent threatened to involve Great Britaio and the United States in war, to help to organize ths militia. They were popularly called the Twelve Apostles. He served under Col. Brown on Campobello Island when the Fenians were threatening to raid it from Eastport.

After being mustered out of the Imperial Service, with Long Service and Good Conduct Medals, Sergt. Templeton joined the 73rd Northumberland Regiment as adjutant, with the rank of ,ieutenant, and served in it till 1892, when he retired with the rank of captain. His title of major was a brevet one that was popularly bestowed upon him.

After several years' service as the keeper of the Almshouse, whose inmates he ruled with military, yet kindly discipline, Mr. Templeton retired, made a visit to the West Indies, and then settled down in Chatham, to enjoy the little competence ha had amassed.

He was a fine old warrior, very proud of his numerous medals, fond of wearing them, and always ready to fight his campaigns o'er again when he had good listeners. He was an honest, faithful, clear-headed, kind-hearted man, and everybody liked him.

BRITISH TEACHERS' VISIT.

Five Hundred to See Canada and the United Stares.

London, June 8.—Arrangements have been completed under a plan outlined by Alfred Mosely to , send between November and March, five hundred British teachers to the United States and Canada to study the educational systems of the two countries. They will be chosen from all parts of the United Kingdom and will represent all the classes in the schools. President Butler of Columbia University, and Superintendent of Schools Maxwell of New York will arrange the American preliminaries of the visiting teachers.

STRAINED BACK AND SIDE.

"While working in a sawmill," writes C. E. Kenney, from Ottawa, "I strained my back and side so severely that I had to go to bed. Every movement caused me torture. I tried different oils and liniments, but wasn't helped until I used Nerviline. Even the first application gave considerable relief. In three days I was at work again. Other men in the mill used Nerviline with tremendous benefit, too." An honest record of nearly fifty years has established the value of Polson's Nerviline.

TERRIBLE PAINS ACROSS BACK

SUFFERED EIGHT MONTHS WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE. WOULD HAVE TO STAY IN BED FOR THREE DAYS AT. A TIME

Doan's Kidney Pills CURED HIM

Mr. Thomas Fitzgerald, Hazeldean, Ont., writes us as follows: "I was a great sufferer from kidney trouble for eight months. I had terrible pains across the small of my back. I would have to stay in bed for three days at a time and could not do any work. I tried several remedies but of no avail, and also plasters but they were of no use.

One day a neighbor of mine advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I was so much discouraged I told him I was tired of trying remedies, but he urged me to try one box so I purchased one, and before I was through using it, I found a change for the better so I got five boxes more, and I have had no trouble with my kidneys since. I would not be without Doan's Pills in my house."

It is really not difficult to cure kidney trouble in its first stages. All you have to do is to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. They are a never-failing cure for all forms of kidney trouble. They quickly relieve the conjested, overworked kidneys, and gradually bring them back to health.

Doan's Kidney Pills 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25, all dealers or The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.
