Brewster's Millions

Copyright, 1904, by Herbert S. Stone & Company

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON (RICHARD GREAVES)

Fortune smiled on him before the day was over, however. He took Subway Smith for a ride in the "green juggernaut," bad weather and bad roads notwithstanding. Monty lost control of the machine and headed for a subway excavation. He and Smith saved themselves by leaping to the pavement, sustaining slight bruises, but the great machine crashed through the barricade and dropped to the bottom of the trench far below. To Smith's grief and Brewster's delight the automobile was hopelessly ruined, a clear loss of many thousands. Monty's joy was short lived, for it was soon learned that three luckless workmen down in the depths had been badly injured by the green meteor from above. The mere fact that Brewster could and did pay liberally for the relief of the poor fellows afforded him little consolation. His carelessness and possibly his indifference had brought suffering to these men and their families, which was not pleasant to look back upon. Lawsuits were avoided by compromise. Each of the injured men received $4,000.

At this time every one was interested in the charity bazaar at the Astoria. Society was on exhibition, and the public paid for the privilege of gazing at the men and women whose names filled the society columns. Brewster frequented the booth presided over by Miss Drew, and there seemed to be no end to his philanthropy. The bazaar lasted two days and nights, and after that period his account book showed an even "profit" of nearly $3,000. Monty's serenity, however, was considerably ruffled by the appearance of a new and aggressive claimant for the smiles of the fair Barbara. He was a Californian of immense wealth and unbounded confidence in himself, and letters to people in New York had given him a certain entree. The triumphs in love and finance that had come with his twoscore years and ten had demolished every vestige of timidity that may have been born with him. He was successful enough in the world of finance to have become four or five times a millionaire, and he had fared so well in love that twice he had been a widower. Rodney Grimes was starting out to win Barbara with the same dash and impulsiveness that overcame Mary Farrell, the cook in the mining camp, and Jane Boothroyd, the schoolteacher, who came to California ready to marry the first man who asked her. He was a penniless prospector when he married Mary, and when he led Jane to the altar she rejoiced in having captured a husband worth at least $50,000.

He vied with Brewster in patronizing Barbara's booth, and he rushed into the conflict with an impetuosity that seemed destined to carry everything before it. Monty was brushed aside. Barbara was pre-empted as if she were a mining claim, and ten days after his arrival in New York Grimes was the most talked of man in town. Brewster was not the sort to be dispatched without a struggle, however. Recognizing Grimes as an obstacle, but not as a rival, he once more donned his armor and beset Barbara with all the zest of a champion who seeks to protect and not to conquer. He regarded the Californian as an impostor, and summary action was necessary. "I know all about him, Babs," he said one day after he felt sure of his position. "Why, his father was honored by the V. C. on the coast in '49."

"The Victoria cross?" asked Barbara innocently.

"No, the vigilance committee."

In this way Monty routed the enemy and cleared the field before the end of another week. Grimes transferred his objectionable affection, and Barbara was not even asked to be wife No. 3. Brewster's campaign was so ardent that he neglected other duties deplorably, falling far behind his improvident average. With Grimes disposed of, he once more forsook the battlefield of love and gave his harassed and undivided attention to his own peculiar business.

The fast and loose game displeased Miss Barbara greatly. She was at first surprised, then piqued, then resentful. Monty gradually awoke to the distressing fact that she was going to be intractable, as he put it, and forthwith undertook to smooth the troubled sea. To his amazement and concern, she was not to be appeased.

"Does it occur to you, Monty," she said, with a gentle coldness that was infinitely worse than heat, "that you have been carrying things with a pretty high hand? Where did you acquire the right to interfere with my privileges? You seem to think that I am not to speak to any man but you."

"Oh, come, now, Babs," retorted Monty, "I've not been quite as unreasonable as that. And you know yourself that Grimes is the worst kind of a bounder."

"I know nothing of the sort," replied the lady, with growing irritation. "You say that about every man who gives me a smile or a flower. Does it indicate such atrocious taste?"

"Don't be silly, Barbara. You know perfectly well that you have talked to Gardner and that idiot Valentine by the hour, and I've not said a word. But there are some things I can't stand, and the impertinence of Grimes is one of them. Jove! He looked at you out of those fishy eyes sometimes as though he owned you. If you knew how many times I've fairly ached to knock him down!"

Inwardly Barbara was weakening a little before his masterfulness. But she gave no sign.

"And it never occurred to you," she said, with that exasperating coldness of voice, "that I was equal to the situation. I suppose you thought Mr. Grimes had only to beckon and I would joyfully answer. I'll have you know, Monty Brewster, right now that I am quite able to choose my friends and to handle them. Mr. Grimes has character, and I like him. He has seen more of life in a year of his strenuous career than you ever dreamed of in all your pampered existence. His life has been real, Monty Brewster, and yours is only an imitation."

It struck him hard, but it left him gentle.

"Babs," he said softly, "I can't take that from you. You don't really mean it, do you? Am I as bad as that?"

It was a moment for dominance, and he missed it. His gentleness left her cold.

"Monty," she exclaimed irritably, "you are terribly exasperating. Do make up your mind that you and your million are not the only things in the world."

IN MEMORY OF DEAD POET.

Action Taken Regarding Memorial to Late Alex. Muir.

It was the unanmiaus desire of a public meeting held in the city council chamber, Montreal, last night that some desirable memorial should be erected to keep green the memory of Alexander Muir, author of Canada's great national song. The suggestion that contributions should be asked from the entire country met with approval, while skecial subscriptions will probably be taken from school children. A striking committee was selected, and it seems likely that this committee will attempt to co-operate with the mayors and reeves of various municipalities. This committee will meet Monday afternoon at the city hall, when some definite line of action will be decided upon. A proposal was also made that besides a memorial a fund be advanced to the bereaved widow and family, from the publication of a special edition of the "Maple Leaf" or by some other means.

The home of Robert Craft, on Princess street, St. John, West end, was entered Tuesday afternoon and the sum of fifty-nine dollars stolen. Mr. Craft and his family were absent from home and the robbery must have been committed by persons well acquainted with the house and movements of the family, as the money was in a box in an upstairs room, and the family are seldom all away at one time. The money which was stolen belonged to Mr. Craft's daughter, who had saved it in anticipation of her wedding, which is to take place next month.

I. E. Dyas, M. D., of Amherst, N. S. has received a telegram announcing the death at South Africa of his brother, Capt. T. H. Dyas. No particulars have yet been received. Capt. Dyas has recently been sailing from Liverpool, G. B., and he is well known in St. John, N. B., from which port he formerly sailed, also at Yarmouth N. S. He was 30 years of age and unmarried.

MINER'S WIFE BOUND AND GAGGED.

Strange Outrage at Rossland—Police Say That Revenge Was Motive.

Rossland, July 18.—A singular story is that told by Mrs. John O'Hara, the wife of John O'Hara, who is employed in the mines. The couple reside in Nickel Plate flat. Recently she had Paul Puseya, a young Montenegrin, who was pressing unwelcome attentions on her, arrested. Shortly after this, in the same evening, she took a walk with a lady friend, and went into her house about eleven o'clock and began reading, after locking the doors. She thought that she would so amuse herself until her husband returned from the mines at twelve thirty o'clock. Mrs. O'Hara says that she had only been reading a short time when some one came behind her, put his hand over her mouth and placed a handkerchief over her face, gagging her with a portion of it. Notwithstand the resistence she gave she was overpowered and tied with a piece of strong shoestring. Her feet were bound with a piece of cotton clothesline. Then the light was extinguished and the man or men who tied her left. She could not tell who it was that tied her, as the large handkerchief was kept over her eyes, and she, therefore, could not see. She was so frightened over what had happened to her that she finally became unconscious and knew nothing until her husband reached home.

When Mr. O'Hara returned from his work he endeavored to arouse his wife, and, failing in this, he kicked open the door, and found her bound, gagged and unconscious. He cut the ropes from her lower limbs and the shoestring from her arms and summoned a physician. In a few minutes Mrs. O'Hara revived and told substantially the story as above refated.

It is certain that Puseya had nothing to do with the affair as he was in jail when it occurred and had the strongest sort of alibi. It has been suggested that some of his companions who reside with him near the O'Hara residence, may have overpowered and gagged Mrs. O'Hara in order to get even with her for her haping caused Puseya's arrest and incarceration.

The police are investigating the case and questioned Puseya's companions closely but all have given a good account of themselves and it is impossible to fasten the commission of the outrage upon any one of them.

TO ASK DOMINION TO HELP.

Toronto Globe.—Plans for a national movement for a memorial to the late Alexander Muir, "author of the "Maple Leaf," and a fund for his family were well advanced at a meeting of the special committee appointed to strike the committees, held yesterday in the city hall. Mayor Coatsworth, who presided, unfolded a plan for popular subscriptions whereby public school children would be asked to contribute five cents, high school children ten cents and adults one dollar each. The principle of the motion by Mr. C. C. Robinson was adopted, and, as enlarged by Mr. Alexander Fraser, it provided for a general committee to be comprised of the mayor and chairman of the school boards of all the cities and the larger towns of Canada, the wardens of the counties, the inspectors of the public and separate schools, the presidents of the national and fraternal societies and of the boards of trade and the industrial associations, together with about one hundred prominent citizens of Toronto and outside points, who were named.

A sub committee was named to select the executive committee, which is to be comprised of men who will work actively. On Mr. Fraser's motion, it was decided to ask Lord Grey, Lord Elgin, the colonial secretary, and Lord Strathcona to become patrons, while the honorary provincial patzons are to the the lieu. enant governors of the various provinces and Sir Sanford Fleming, Bir Wm. Van Horne, Sir William Meredith and Sir Wm. Mulock. Organization and finance committees were also appointed.

SICK WIFE SEES HUSBAND DROWN.

A. H. Ashton, of Rochester, N. Y., Sinks off York Beach, Me.—Was Expert Swimmer but Got Exhausted.

York Beach, Me., July 17.—A. H., a guest at the Hiawatha Hotel at Long Beach, here, was drowned while bathing off the beach at noon in sight of hundreds of people.

Mr. Ashton, who was an expert swimmer, went out some little distance from shore. He had started back, when he began to get exhausted, and realizing his weakening condition, he called for help while still some distance out.

Patrick E. Moran, who was on the beach, started to his rescue, but before he reached him, Ashton sank.

Mr. Moran, however, dived for his body and brought it ashore, where every effort was made to revive him but he never showed signs of life.

His wife, who was at the beach for her health, being a sufferer from nervous prostration, was on the piazza of the hotel and saw her husband drown, and is now in a serious condition from the shock.

AFFAIRS IN RUSSIA.

St. Petersburg, July 18.—(Special)—The political barometer is again falling.

Confusion which seems to have taken possession of the upper spheres since the efforts to form a coalition ministry failed, coupled with alarming reports from the interior and the attitude of parliament, make almost anything possible.

There has been a marked renewed apprehension that the crisis may end in a coup d' Etat against parliament.

The assassinations of Vice Admiral Choukin and General Kozloy and the discovery that behind the murder of General Washbig, was a plot to kill General Trepoff, Prince Putiatin and other courtiers and the general epidemic of assassination which terrorized local authorities, even police, together with the destruction of property by peasantry in half a dozen provinces during the last few days have again strengthened small part of the court, which believes in resorting to "extreme measures".

THE EGYPTIAN ARMY.

Elaborate Plans Proposed to Strengthen it by Lord Cromer.

London, July 18.—(Special—The correspondent at Cairo of the Express learns that in view of the rapidly increasing fanaticism of the natives elaborate plans for strengthening the army of occupation have been prepared by Lord Cromer, the British agent and Consul General in Egypt and his advisers.

Judge Wilbur, who retired from the Rhode Island bench last June, when the new Court and Practice Act went into effect, had for many years previously handled the criminal business of the state. He was perfectly familiar with the wiles and excuses of men who sought to evade jury duty and showed them little consideration.

One man gave as his reason for desiring to get out of grand jury service physical disability.

"What is the nature of your infirmities?" asked the judge.

"I am deaf in one ear, your honor," replied the man.

"You'll do," said the judge, "don't you know you only have to hear one side of a case in the grand jury room."
