A Peep Into the World of Base Ball, Racing, Golf Bowling and Athletic Sports Generally.

HOCKEY.

MOBBED AT HOCKEY MATCH.

The Montreal Star has a description of a hockey match at Valleyfield, P. Q., between the Empires and Huntingdon, which was certainly a disgraceful event. The account says: Before the game was half over the crowd started to throw eggs at the Huntingdon goal keeper, and point, and when two of the Huntingdon supporters asked them to stop they were mobbed by a number of Valleyfield citizens and came out of the scrimmage badly pounded. During the second half one of the Huntingdon supporters, who had two sons playing on the team was cheering on the boys when he was mobbed but without any success as there were a number of Huntingdon supporters with him. During the course of the game whenever any of the Huntingdon players came near the side of the rink they were kicked or struck with sticks. When they attempted to leave the rink they were mobbed on the outside and some of the players, and also supporters were handled roughly. The mob followed them to the Larocque House, where they attempted to get in, but were driven out. When they arrived at the station the mob had followed the crowd. When the train was starting one of the mob threw a bottle, breaking one of the car windows.

BASE BALL.

THE STAR PITCHER.

Pitching records of the National League for the season of 1905 are interesting to New York fans because of the number of the twirling staff of the champions figures prominently and for the further reason that "Noodle" Hahan, who will pitch for the Yankees next season, averaged less than one base ball game than one base on balls a game, a wonderful showing for a left handed pitcher.

Christie Mathewson looms up as a champion among champions. He hit but one man during the entire season and allowed the smallest average of runs. Leon Ames struck out more men on an average than any other twirler in the league, and Elliott allowed the smallest average of hits, though his record is not to be seriously considered, as he showed in the box only a few times.

Following are some of the facts disclosed by the records:

Mathewson hit but one man during the entire season.

Hahan averaged less than one base on balls per game.

Fraser, Boston, allowed the greatest averages bases on balls per game 3.8.

Ames struck out most men per game, average, 5.8.

Lever led in percentage of victories, 800.

Pittenger and McGinnity pitched in largest number of games, 46.

McFarlane, St. Louis, allowed the greatest number of hits, 9.1 per game.

Elliott, New York, allowed the smallest average hits per game, 4.1.

Mathewson allowed smallest average runs per game, 2.

Mitchell, Brooklyn, allowed largest average runs per game, 4.1.

The true reason for the National League's strange opposition to a proposed modification of the foul strike rule at the session of the rules committee last week became public yesterday. It appears that Edward the committee, made the bold statement that the National League would insist upon the continuance of the foul strike, for the reason that, were it abolished or modified, three clubs in that circuit, Brooklyn, Boston, and St. Louis—would be so crippled that interest in the championship pennant race would be killed from the start. Hanlon said that these clubs were so weak that without the foul strike they would be the easiest of victims for the other clubs, which would probably result in a heavy financial loss to them, and also to the league.

THE TURF.

GEERS THREE HORSE MILE STANDS.

New York, Feb. 19.—Harness horse enthusiasts talk glibly about last season's record of Ed Geers, who led all the other grand circuit drivers, but few of them remember the veteran's greatest performance. This was when he drove Belle Hamlin, Justina and Globe three abreast, to an old fashioned high wheeled skeleton Ragon, and covered a mile in 2.14.

This record has never been equalled and in all probability never will be, for it will be difficult to find a driver who can handle three gorses as Geers can. It will also be hard to get three that will work in such perfect unison as this trio did.

E. E. Johnson had talk with Geers just before the exhibition at Glenville was to be run, and he gained an insight into the judgment of Geers as to what a gorse can do.

"My bc," said Geers, "never mind what the wise book makers tell you. I will beat 2.18. Here is a chance to pick up some stray coin if you care to take the chance."

Johnson acted accordingly, and the result justified his faith in "The silent man's" judgment.

Thirty thousand persons were on hand to see the trial, for Geers' name is a magnet of the first calibre when it comes to crowd drawing ability. The day was perfect. Col. William Edwards, white haired, stood in the judges' stand, and requested the crowd to abstain from all demonstration until the horses had crossed the finish line.

Here Geers received another compliment such as is the fortune of a few to win. In all that vast throng not a voice was raised as those three horses turned into the stretch for home and a record. It was like watching the working of a delicate piece of mechanism which the slightest jar would ruin.

Geers drove past the judges' stand and told Col. Edwards that he would not if he intended to get away then he drove up the stretch and turned to secure. The trio came down as one horse without a slip. But evidently they were not moving to Geers' liking and he turned back for another try.

Down they came a second time, the click of their shoes keeping perfect time. Geers bent forward slightly, slightly, there was a perceptible tightening of the reins, the veteran inclining his head a bit, the timers' watches clicked, and Belle Hamlin, Justina and Globe were away on the journey which placed their names far up on the roll in racing annals.

Up the back stretch they went, but those holding watches on the three shook their heads, for the horses seemed to be going slowly. The book makers looked satisfied, for they stood to lose considerable more than "the railroad fare back to New York" should Geers get under 2.18. Geers' seemed, was even taking the back turn a little slowly, and the satisfied look of the book makers changed to a smile.

But the three turned into the stretch at a terrific clip, and in all that long journey there had not been a skip or a break. The movement of the horses was like watching a moving picture, far as yet they were not close enough for the crowd to hear the click of their shoes. When they did come it was as one horse.

The crowd leaned far forward to catch every move. The timers, to whom the magnificent spectacle was denied, kept their eyes glued to the all important line where the time was to stop.

On and on they came, nostrils seemingly struggling for air and every muscle strained to the breaking point. A break now would be fatal; a few more seconds and it all would be over. The love of the fight shone in the eyes of "The Silent Man" who was up behind them.

With a last final effort the three flashed across the finish line, leaving a trail of dust behind them in 2.14 flat. The demonstration which followed has never been equalled on any track.

In slowing down Geers took his charges far around the turn, and then came back with a smile on his face to the judges' stand. "Two fourteen," he said to Col. Edwards before glancing at the numbers. "Well, I mark at 2.18 for them to shoot at didn't I?"

Geers knew the time as soon as he had finished, for his watch on the reins told him all about it. In this way he had timed his burst of speed to a nicety. There was no floral horseshoe for Geers. He was content to go back to the barn, where he could be by himself and where the welcome of a little scrawny-looking dog was waiting for Geers, "The Silent Man."

WIFE PRAYED, SPOUSE RAN.

Sorry Ending to a Winnipeg Court Wedding.

Winnipeg, Feb. 20.—Desertion at the church door was the ending to a match arranged at the police court last Saturday. Demytro Tychofil was arrested on the information of Marie Wowko, and the magistrate gave the prisoner the choice of marrying the girl or of going to jail for a spell. Demytro decided in favor of marrying. Under the watchful eye of a detective a marriage license was secured, and the couple adjourned to the church of St. Nicholas. Here, according to the ancient custom, both parties were asked if they were satisfied with their choice. This question is always asked at the church door, and both parties replied in the affirmative. The marriage was then solemnized, and the twin pronounced man and wife. While the woman on her knees was offering up prayers Demytro did some more hard thinking. He had obeyed the magistrates of the courts, and feared them no more, therefore he made a bold bid for freedom and rushed from the church at top speed, and before the astounded on-lookers had got over their astonishment he had disappeared from view.

LUMBER CAMP NEWS.

An Interesting Budget From a Canadian Boy in a Maine Lumber Camp.

South Bancroft, Me., Feb. 15, 1906.

To the Editor of the Herald:

Dear Sir,—As we have been favored with your valuable paper by our friends and have seen correspondence from many camps, we wish to tell you something about ours.

Although being employed by an American lumber company we are all boys of the Province of New Brunswick, except two men and the boss, one of which is a Nova Scotian, the others American.

Our foreman is O. B. Patchell, son of J. C. Patchell, the well known lumber and mill man of Wytopitlock, Maine.

Our crew is not very large but all jolly good fellows and we are doing a hustling business, though the snow is scarce.

We have two sleds hauling from Hot yard and our worthy tapsters, John Scott and Wesley Hamilton, are more than hustling the lumber to to the brow, while J. J. Meegan is yarding for them.

W. S. Muise and J. H. Gallagher are tripping the lofty timber. D. J. Nelson and C. H. Clark are preparing roads.

Our other two "Jolly Giants" the team tenders are James Gallagher and Geo. Shannon, while our cook, one of the finest in the state, is W. J. Keegan of Eaniskillen, N. B.

Our foreman is one of the jolliest persons in our state.

Last, but not by any means least, is our noble landing attendant, L. R. Bell, of Wytopitlock.

If the weather remains favorable until the last of March we will have a nice summer's cut of lumber for Mr. Patchell's mill. It is very pleasant here, being so handy to a settlement and post office.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain yours respectfully,

"CANADIAN J."

JUDGE ANDREWS IS DEAD.

Quebec, Feb. 17.—His Lordship F. W. Andrews, Judge of the Superior Court of the Province of Quebec, died at 1 o'clock this morning at the family residence, Little River road, after an illness of some weeks' duration. The deceased jurist was the eldest son of the late Mr. F. A. Andrews, K. C., of this city, and was born here on September 10, 1835. He was educated at the high school, was called to the Bar in 1856 and practiced his profession in partnership with his father and Sir A. P. Caron. He was created a K. C. by the Marquis of Lorne in 1882, and was raised to the Bench as a puisne Judge of the Superior Court of the Province of Quebec March 16th, 1885. In 1886 he was appointed by H. M. S. Government a Deputy Judge of the Vice-Admiralty Court of Quebec. His Lordship was a member of the Church of England and served as a delegate of his church to the Provincial Synod. He married on April 23, 1862, Miss Agnes Campbell, daughter of the late Daniel Campbell, Esq., of Starmans, Que. He received the honorary degree of D. C. L. from Lennoxville University in 1895.

The offices which Secretary Bliss will occupy in the county court house have been selected. They are the suit of rooms upstairs on the upper side of the hall leading to the court room. These rooms will be occupied by the Secretary early in the spring and in the meantime will receive some badly needed remodeling. Messrs. W. H. McGinn and D. J. Stockford have the contract for installing an electric light plant into the building. If the municipal authorities will only turn their attention in the spring to improving the surroundings to the building, they will have a creditable structure. The office of the clerk of the peace also needs to be remodelled to make it up to date.
