THE MEDICINAL VALUE OF FRESH FRUIT JUICES

One of the Greatest Wonders of the Age.

Hundreds Have Been Made Well by Taking Advantage of an Ottawa Physician's Discovery.

Everyone knows how beneficial fruit is, when eaten regularly. Fruit is nature's laxative—the finest kidney regulator—and the ideal skin tonic. Unfortunately, the medicinal principle of fruit occurs only in minute quantities. In order to consume enough fruit to relieve biliousness, one would also consume a large amount of woody fibre or pulp, which would upset the stomach and impair digestion.

An Ottawa physician discovered a way to get around these difficulties. He pressed the juice from apples, oranges, figs and prunes—and then forced one more atom of the bitter principle from the discarded orange peels, into the concentrated juices. This formed a new compound, having all the curative effects of fresh fruit—and in a highly intensified degree. Then valuable tonics and internal antiseptics were added and the whole pressed into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives" the wonderful Liver Tablets you hear so much about. "Fruit-a-tives" cure the most obstinate cases of non-action of the bowels, biliousness, headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness, kidney trouble, rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia. They are the greatest blood purifying medicine in the world, while their action on the skin, in clearing and beautifying the complexion, is nothing short of marvelous. Ask your druggist for "Fruit-a-tives" and see that you get them. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. By mail, postpaid, from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

MR. AYLESWORTH'S HEARING.

Minister of Justice Only Temporarily Afflicted: Will Not Retire.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 18.—The alarmist reports appearing in some sections of the opposition press, predicting that Hon. Mr. Aylesworth will have to retire from the ministry, on account of his present attack of deafness, are entirely unwarranted by the facts. The Minister of Justice is not worrying over the temporary partial loss of hearing. Under surgical and medical treatment his hearing is now steadily improving, and he stated today that there had been no thought of his having to resign his portfolio and retire from public life.

TITLED WIDOWS OF THE OLD LAND.

Gossip Says They Can Wed Easier After Being Married Once.

Many of the widows of English society are widows not once merely, but twice. Witness Mrs. Kennard, by courtesy Cora Lady Stafford, who has Mr. Kennard as her third spouse. If a woman has been married once it is much easier, should she so desire, to marry again than the single woman, even though the latter be much younger and more beautiful. Marriage usually blesses even the silly woman, with the addition of a certain amount at least of good sense, and takes from her some of her self-consciousness and conceit almost inseparable from the spinster, and even a foolish man likes good sense—in limited quantities maybe—and the absence of self-adoration.

Lily Duchess of Marlborough, has been widowed three times; she started as Mrs. Hamersley, her second marriage was to the Duke of Marlborough, and her third, this time for love, it is said, to Lord William Beresford, by whom she had a son.

The Dowager-Duchess of Roxburghe, mother-in-law of the former Miss May Goelet, is still handsome and attractive. Other Dowager Duchesses include Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester, who was Miss Yznaga, an American girl, now visiting this country; the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland, the Dowager Duchess of St. Albans, the Dowager Duchess of Newcastle; the latter has a home of her own in the squalid East End of London, and devotes much time to clubs for factory girls. She is devoted also to music, and retains her beauty.

Eleanor, Duchess of Northumberland, was a Grosvenor, and her voice is as soft as her will is strong. She is a great aunt of the Duke of Westminster, and long ago planned and saw carried out the magnificent redecoration of Alnwick Castle.

The widowed Marchionesses include Lady Anglesey, who is famed for her masses of golden hair, her handsome emeralds, her collection of Italian furniture and her love of travel.

Lady Dorella, the Canadian girl, (Miss Violet Twining), who married her late husband when he was over eighty, is a fine singer. Her little son is now three years old.

The Dowager Lady of Bute is one of the old school peeresses and a Roman Catholic. She owns some wonderful black opals and rubies.

Lady Cork, another widow, owns some of the finest pearls in England; she is witty and a brilliant conversationalist.

Among the young widowed Countesses are Mary Lady Ilchester, who has lately written a book and is also a noted dog fancier. She owns superb black pearls worth $150,000. The beautiful Georgiana Lady Dudley is also in this list.

Lady Dorothy Neville, now 80, has just published a book. She is esteemed by the English as one of the greatest wits of her time, and leads the list of widowed Viscountesses. Lady Gort, another widow, entertained the officers of the French fleet during Cowes week. Mary Lady St. Helier, is a famous hostess, and to be asked to one of her dinners or other parties is an honor desired by all.

Lady Gerard is a noted rider to hounds. Lady Howe, one of the old or widowed Marchionesses, is a social power in London. She is refined, worldly wise, and clever, with a soft voice, and not at all strong-minded. She dresses in a manner that we should not hesitate to call commonplace in a simple black gown and bonnet, but with these she wears superlative diamond solitaire earrings, some of the largest pearls in London, and in winter wears magnificent Russian sables of fabulous value. In olden times she was a member of the smart racing set. She is fond of flowers and gardening, and raises marvelous carnations and roses.

THERE ARE OTHERS.

Don't imagine, my boy, if you throw up your job That the firm that employs you will fail; That the whole office force in their anguish will sob, And the senior partner turn pale. You are highly efficient, and active and bright— So you say. I'm unwilling to doubt you; But the chance of all this is incredibly slight, There are plenty of others without you.

Don't get mad with the girl, and to make her feel bad Fail to go for your usual call. It's the truth, though I know it sounds awfully sad, That she may never miss you at all. It's a mighty poor policy staying away, Though I grant that at times she may flout you, But I know that I'm in a position to say There are plenty of others without you.

Don't get soured on the world and do anything rash; Not to speak of the good of your soul, If you jump in the lake you may make a small splash, But you'll never leave much of a hole. Don't expect folks to make such a terrible fuss When they think very little about you, And to use common language, aren't caring a cuss, There are plenty of others without you.

ADVICE TO HOUSEHOLDERS.

Fredericton, N. B. Oct. 11th, 1907.

Mr. Editor: Sir—The season off all house cleaning with its specters of furnace pipes, stoves, rugs, carpets and draperies, at sweeping and dusting, looms up to confront the housekeeper.

Right here one of them desires to enter a plea for the banishment, once and forever of some of the household goods. How sweet and inviting many of our homes looked during the past two months in their simple summer dress.

The housekeeper knows a thing or two has simplified the summer labor by taking down and removing draperies and ornaments.

We have enjoyed the extra breathing space.

Now sisters, are there not a dozen of those things which might profitably remain in the limbo to which they have been assigned, or with equal profit be turned over to the Salvation Army man when he comes on his collecting rounds.

Think of the hours of moving and dusting which might be spent in reading or resting. There is scarcely a household which has not accumulated ornaments bric-a-brac albums and the like. In many homes there is the crayon portrait which is a cruel caricature upon some dear friend or relative.

Get rid of these cumbering things I beg of you, clear your tables of the stuff and put some books and magazines in place of cups and saucers.

Why do we keep such things about us? Not for the Man-of-the-House, he loathes them. Perhaps it is for the occasional visitor who will criticise or mistakenly admire, or because the objects are gifts or heirlooms. But if they are in bad taste banish them remorselessly. Think of our dressing bureaus and tables and count the time it takes to keep the silver polished and the jinnicks in place, and recall the dignity of our grandmothers mahogany and brass candlesticks.

Just as an experiment, look around your room and see what might well be dispensed with.

One needs to live in a tent or at pine bluff to appreciate true luxury, or is not in the multiplication of accessories but in the diminution of them that we live and grow, and our hearts and minds expand unhampered by our surroundings.
