Beverly of Graustark

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON, Author of "Graustark"

Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company

"Marlanx! By all the gods!" cried Baldos in despair. He had wounded his man several times, though not seriously. He dared not turn to Beverly's aid.

The scene was thrilling, grewsome. Within this narrow, dimly lighted underground passage, with its musty walls sweating with dampness and thick with the tangled meshes of the spider's web, a brave girl and her lover struggled and fought back to back.

To her dismay, Beverly saw the point of a sword at her throat.

"Out of the way, girl!" the man in the cloak snarled, furious at her resistance. "You die as well as your lover unless you surrender. He cannot escape me."

"And if I refuse!" cried the girl, trying desperately to gain time.

"I will drive my blade through your heart and tell the world it was the deed of your lover."

Baldos groaned. His adversary, encouraged by the change in the situation, pressed him sorely.

"Don't you dare to touch me, Count Marlanx. I know you!" she hissed. "I know what you would do with me. It is not for Graustark that you seek his life."

The sword came nearer. The words died in her throat. She grew faint. Terror paralyzed her. Suddenly her heart gave a great thump of joy. The resourcefulness of the trapped was surging to her relief. The valor of the south leaped into life. The exhilaration of conflict beat down all her fears. "Take away that sword, then, please!" she cried, her voice trembling, but not with terror now. It was exultation. "Will you promise to spare his life? Will you swear to let him go, if I"—

"No, no; never! God forbid!" implored Baldos.

"Ha, ha!" chuckled the man in the cloak. "Spare his life! Oh, yes, after my master has reveled in your charms. How do you like that, my handsome goat hunter?"

"You infernal scoundrel! I'll settle you yet!" Baldos fairly fumed with rage. Gathering himself together for a final effort, he rushed madly on his rapidly weakening antagonist.

"Baldos," she cried hopelessly and in a tone of resignation, "I must do it! It is the only way!"

The man in the cloak as well as Baldos was deceived by the girl's cry. He immediately lowered his sword. The lantern dropped from Beverly's hands and clattered to the floor. At the same instant she drew from her pocket her revolver, which she had placed there before leaving the castle, and fired point blank at him. The report sounded like a thunderclap in their ears. It was followed quickly by a sharp cry and imprecation from the lips of her persecutor, who fell, striking his head with a terrible force on the stones.

Simultaneously there was a groan and the noise of a limp body slipping to the ground, and Baldos, victor at last, turned in fear and trembling to find Beverly standing unhurt staring at the black mass at her feet.

"Thank God, you are safe!" Grasping her hand he led her out of the darkness into the moonlight.

Not a word was spoken as they ran swiftly on until they reached a little clump of trees not far from one of the gates. Here Baldos gently released her hand. She was panting for breath, but he realized she must not be allowed to risk a moment's delay. She must pass the sentry at once.

"Have you the watchword?" he eagerly asked.

"Watchword?" she repeated feebly.

"Yes, the countersign for the night. It is Ganlook. Keep your face well covered with your hood. Advance boldly to the gates and give the word. There will be no trouble. The guard is used to pleasure seekers returning at all hours of night."

"Is he dead?" she asked timorously, returning to the scene of horror.

"Only wounded, I think, as are the other men, though they all deserve death."

He went with her as close to the gate as he thought safe. Taking her hand he kissed it fervently. "Goodby! It won't be for long!" and disappeared.

She stood still and lifeless, staring after him, for ages, it seemed. He was gone. Gone forever, no doubt. Her eyes grew wilder and wilder with the pity of it all. Pride fled incontinently. She longed to call him back. Then it occurred to her that he was hurrying off to that other woman. No, he said he would return. She must be brave, true to herself, whatever happened. She marched boldly up to the gate, gave the countersign and passed through, not heeding the curious glances cast upon her by the sentry, turned into the castle, up the grand staircase and fled to the princess' bedchamber.

Beverly, trembling and sobbing, threw herself in the arms of the princess. Incoherently she related all that had happened, then swooned.

After she had been restored, the promise of Yetive to protect her, whatever happened, comforted her somewhat.

"It must have been Marlanx," moaned Beverly.

"Who else could it have been?" replied the princess, who was visibly excited.

Summoning all her courage, she went on: "First, we must find out if he is badly hurt. We'll trust to luck. Cheer up!" She touched a bell. There came a knock at the door. A guard was told to enter. "Ellos," she exclaimed, "did you hear a shot fired a short time ago?"

"I thought I did, your highness, but was not sure."

The above design is a beautiful motif of real Battenberg lace collar, which is lastly worked with the aid of our patterns. A pattern of this design, stamped on cambric, with full working directions, costs 40c. Working material consists of linen braid, crocheted buttons, thread, etc. 65c.

By enclosing the price of the perforation or of the stamped materials to the Needlework Department of this paper, the design will be sent to any address without delay.

These perforations are far superior to the transfer patterns sold by some newspapers and magazines.

The transfers can only be used once, and often it is impossible to stamp an article from them, unless the transfer is used with exceeding care.

A perforated pattern may be used again and again, and there is no possibility of failure in stamping with them.

Any information in regard to the working of these designs will be gladly furnished if a letter of inquiry is addressed to the Needle-work Department of this paper.

Shrimp Fricasse—Put a teaspoonful of lard in a saucepan, when it is hot stir in one spoonful of flour, stir over the fire until the flour is a rich brown, then add one onion chopped fine and when that has fried a little (but before it browns) add two table spoonfuls of tomatoes. Let it stew a little with the saucepan covered on a slow fire, then when the tomatoes have melted down add two cups of hot water, season to taste with salt pepper and cayenne. Let it stand a few minutes before dinner, then put in the shrimps, one or two cans, according to the number of guests. The shrimps will break if put in too early.

One of the new tones that is having its run on the hosiery counters is ox-blood red. It is quite effective when peeping out from under a white house frock above white leather pumps.

Canned fish of all kinds, if the best brands are purchased, help to change the menu during the cold winter days and the receipt for shrimp fricasse that follows will make a very appetizing dish when old receipts gave grown stale.

Invalid Ladies

This Is For You.

There are thousands of females who suffer untold miseries common to their sex.

This is largely due to the peculiar habits of life and fashion, and the improper training of girlhood. Then, too, the physical changes that mark the three eras of womanhood (the maiden, the wife, and the mother) have much to do with her sufferings, most of which are endured in silence, unknown by even the family physician and most intimate friends.

To all such whose hollow cheeks, pale faces, sunken eyes and feeble footsteps, indicate nervousness, palpitation of the heart, weak, faint and dizzy spells, we would earnestly recommend a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Jos. Sharp, Brighton, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with palpitation of the heart, weak spells and nervous trouble, and found no relief until advised to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got one box and that helped me so much I sent and got five more. I am now cured completely."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

AMHERST WINTER FAIR

Big Show will be Opened by Governor Tweedie.

Amherst, N. S., Nov. 23.—The entries for the Maritime Winter Fair are in excess of any previous years, and from a wider range of territory, and also a greater variety.

As an object lesson this fair offers opportunities, never before equaled in the Maritime Provinces.

His Honor Lieut. Governor Tweedie delivers the opening address for the Seventh Maritime Winter Fair, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 2nd, at 6 p. m. Other leading gentlemen from the three provinces will be present and deliver addresses.

Look up the adv. of the Maritime Winter Fair, in this issue, and observe how cheaply you can reach Amherst, and avail yourself of the pleasure and profit of the greatest Agricultural Education in the Maritime Provinces.

Amherst is everywhere spoken of as one of the most progressive towns in town in the Maritime Provinces. You should attend the Winter Fair, and while in Amherst, look over the different industrial enterprises, and see if some of them cannot be profitably duplicated in our own county.

Creole Rice—Wash one half cup of rice and cook in a double boiler until tender. Lay two good sized pieces of bacon into a hot frying pan and cook to a crisp, but do not burn. Add to these drippings half an onion sliced fine and brown then add half a cup of tomatoes and the rice, season with cayenne pepper and salt and stew together until it has all blended.

Griades—Take two pounds of beef (the bottom round if possible) slice thin, trim off all the fat and cut ib pieces about the size of the inside of your hand. Put one spoonful of lard in a saucepan. When the lard is hot drop your meat, which must be first properly washed, in the hot lard, add a little salt, black pepper and cayenne, cover the saucepan and let the meat stew, or rather boil, for the juice of the meat will boil out when it begins to get dry stir it till it browns. When it is of a nice brown color sprinkle in the saucepan about one teaspoonful of flour, when that is brown move it off the hot fire so tha it will not burn and add three or four good sized onions sliced and three or four large tablespoonfuls of tomatoes. Let it all smother with the cover on the saucepan, stirring once in a while till the onions and tomatoes are all melted to a rich gravy, then add two teaspoonfuls of boiling water and season to taste and let it boil about one hour more. A tiby bit of garlic adds flavor if you like it.

A COUGH COLD IS DANGEROUS.

There are different kinds of colds, and various ways in which they affect different people. Some constitutions will throw off a light cold, while to others it will stick tenaciously. There is one kind—the kind accompanied by a cough, the kind that turns to bronchitis, the kind that ends in consumption — that should never be neglected.

Many a life history would read different if, on the first appearance of a cough, it had been remedied with

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

This syrup contains all the virtues of the "Norway Pine Tree," combined with Wild Cherry Bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks.

Mrs. E. S. Akerly, Akerly, N.B., writes: "My little boy had such a bad cough he could not sleep at nights. I tried several remedies but nothing seemed to relieve him until I got Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. From the first few doses he commenced to improve, and when he had taken one bottle he was completely cured."

Be careful in purchasing to see that you get the genuine Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark. Price 25 cts.
