MONCTON BUDGET

Westmorland Temperance Workers Organize to Resist Repeal of Scott Act--The Bread Supply.

MONCTON, Nov. 19.—(Special)—In view of the fact that a petition is being circulated in the county for the purpose of bringing an act to repeal the Scott act, temperance workers have decided it advisable to call a general meeting to devise means for the maintenance of the Scott act, and its better enforcement. The Westmorland temperance alliance will therefore meet here next Monday.

There promises to be difficulty within a short time concerning the local bread supply. One of the local bakers has been forced out of business because other bakers have refused to raise prices.

A third baker advanced prices yesterday a cent per loaf, and grocery men refuse to buy from him. It is claimed that labor and flour have both increased in price of late, necessitating a raise.

Two Scott Act dealers were fined $50 this morning, making two hundred and fifty dollars worth of fines imposed in the last two days.

TOOK WISE PRECAUTION

Chicago Woman came all the way to London Ont. to Deposit her Fortune

LONDON, ONT., Nov. 19.—(Special)—A middle aged woman entered the Bank of Montreal here and stated that she had come from Chicago to deposit $4,000 in gold and American one dollar bills, which she had tied up in a towel, feeling that the money would be safer in the Bank of Montreal. She said she had been told there was a branch of this bank in Chicago, but did not believe it, hence her trip to London. The money represented the life time savings of her grandmother, her mother, and herself.

AFRAID OF THE PIPES

Scotchman Drove off Wolves by playing National Instrument of his Country

PETERBORO, Ontario, November 19.—(Special)—Donald McLean, of Warsaw, recently out from Scotland, while deer hunting at the head of Stoney Lake, returned to camp only to hear the distant howling of timber wolves.

Realizing that his rifle would be useless in the dark, McLean, who had learned that noises of various descriptions had been effectively used to frighten off wolves, seized his bagpipes and playing them incessantly, walked constantly around a large tree for several hours.

The howling of the wolves grew distant, and finally died out. McLean declares that he owes his life to the lively skirling of the bagpipes.

BACK FROM GETTYSBURG

Minister of Militia and General Lake Return from Investigation with American Plans of Memorial Park.

OTTAWA, Nov. 19.—(Special)—Sir Frederick Borden and General Lake returned at noon today from their visit to Gettysburg, where they were invited to look over the national park.

The idea of the visit was to obtain some information which might prove serviceable in carrying out the proposition to make the Plains of Abraham a national park, in this was following the example of the United States, which has made some of its battlefields memorial parks.

Sir Frederick and General Lake stayed over a day or two in Boston.

IN DEATH NOT DIVIDED

Mother Died on hearing of her Son's Drowning

NEWCASTLE, N. B., Nov. 19.—(Special)—Geo. Crocker, 30 years old, of Milltown, was drowned near Denver, Colo., yesterday. He was overseer of David Brown's ranch.

His mother lived with him and when she learned of her son's death, she died from the shock.

Mrs. David Crocker was about 60 years old, and was a native of Chatham Head. She leaves one son, Randolph Crocker, of Milltown, Northumberland.

OTTAWA, Nov. 19.—(Special)—The proclamation opening a branch of the Royal Mint here on the 9th of Nov. was withdrawn. It will be opened on January 1.

THE McMANUS FAILURE

Memramcook Contracting Co. offer Creditors Forty Cents on the Dollar

MONCTON, Nov. 19.—A meeting of the creditors of J. B. McManus, Ltd. was held yesterday afternoon in the office of the provisional liquidator, E. A. Reilly, with a view of considering a proposition of a compromise. The provisional liquidator submitted a report of his investigation of the assets and liabilities from which it would appear the liabilities are about $143,000 and the assets about $68,000, showing a large deficit.

The creditors present and represented included Amherst Boot & Shoe Co., Chas. Fawcett Mfg. Co., M. Wood & Sons, J. R. Douglas, Jas. Friel, Royal Bank of Canada, John Abrams & Sons, A. A. Tuttle, M. E. Meith, P. S. McManus, F. P. Reid & Co., Azed Landry, G. A. Robertson, A. W. Bennett, D. I. Welch, A. A. Allen.

Harry McManus made an offer of forty cents on the dollar cash to be paid within ten days. The creditors looked upon this proposition with some favor but thought it advisable in the meantime to allow the present proceedings to continue.

YALES' GREAT VICTORY

35,000 People saw the Football Struggle between the famous Gridiron Eleven and Princeton.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., November 17.—Yale won her greatest football victory here yesterday. Swept off their feet by a wonderful combination of trick plays by the Princeton Tigers in the first half of the annual game on Yale field, the Eli warriors came back in the second period, and by a brilliant rally, turned the tide in their favor. The score at the end was 12 to 10, the Tigers leading by 10 to 0 at the conclusion of the first period of play.

Thirty-five thousand spectators witnessed the battle, and they never saw a better exemplification of the great college game under the new rules. Practically every trick known to the open style of play was exploited at one time or another, while the old familiar line bucking and end runs were often in evidence. Both teams used the new and the old, Princeton reveling in many surprising formations. Yale, after getting her second wind, marched triumphantly up the field to victory mainly by old methods, moderately sprinkled with the new ways, consisting mainly of the forward pass.

The Tigers ran rampant during the first half. It looked as if they were destined to maintain the precedent established long ago, that no class would be graduated without at least one victory over its old time rival. The record for the three preceding years had been two defeats and one tie, so that when the half ended with ten points rolled up in favor of Old Nassau, the Princeton cohorts decided that it was only a matter of points.

True, their touch-down, which was scored in the first ten minutes of play, had all the earmarks of rare good luck, being the result of a missed outside kick followed by a sensational 70-yard run by Booth, but it was all in the game, and should not be disparaged. The goal from the field by Harlan was well earned, and had the left half-back's toe been more accurate the Tigers would have rolled up a score that would have smothered the Eli warriors.

TRIED SEVEN TIMES FOR GOALS.

Seven times did Harlan try for goals from the field. Six of his drop kicks missed fire, at least two by the fraction of a foot. There was little or no wind and Harlan furthermore was favored by having the bright, warm sun at his back, consequently, there was no excuse for his numerous failures.

Yale played the better football throughout, and it is difficult to explain its impotency in the first half. Two reasons may be given: The unexpected trick plays sprung by Princeton may have had all to do with it. Early, the Tigers discovered that they were poor at running back punts and quit that feature. Line bucking then was resorted to with little success. McCormick made great gains for a while, but soon the Yale line held. Then came a series of fake kicks for end runs that had the Eli practically standing on its head and was practically responsible for the fact that much of the playing was in Yale's territory.

The other reason was that Yale's new formation on the defence was valueless. Four men were used on the line, the tackles and the guards, the rest of the players standing behind with the quarter-back well in the rear ready for kicks. It was intended, apparently, to break up the forward pass and the outside kick, but Princeton refused to resort to this style of play during the early proceedings, thereby having the Eli warriors all at sea on the end runs. It is significant that Yale abandoned this defense in the second half, and besides sprang a number of the new style trick plays that were almost invariably ground gainers.

It was remarkable how the game veered during the halves. Yale, apparently beaten when the teams sprinted off the field at the end of the first half. The margin seemed unsurmountable. The Tigers had fairly overwhelmed Captain Biglow and his warriors. During the intermission the Yale squad was an unusually long time in making its reappearance. Was it Yale luck, pluck or foxiness that turned the tide?

KEPT WAITING SEVEN MINUTES.

To many the Eli advisers played a neat trick on their rivals. They were seven minutes overtime in returning to the field; in fact, the officials were compelled to send for them. In the meantime the Tigers were exhausting their pent up energy practicing for what they believed would be a triumphant march through the Yale defense.

The opening play indicated this. The Tigers sprang another neat trick, this time introducing a kick-off never before attempted by the two elevens, and probably by no other team in a big game.

Harlan kicked off at an acute angle toward the right end, the ball travelling ahead about ten yards, with Dillon under it in a jiffy. Dillon caught the ball nicely and advanced it several yards before it was downed. The beauty of the play was immediately apparent, as it gave the ball to the Tigers in the enemy's territory on the kick-off. Unfortunately Princeton could not take advantage of the play, as Yale held valiantly, and after an unsuccessful drop kick Eli got the ball, and from that time on the Blue was always in the ascendancy.

Six minutes from the time the second half started Yale forced it over the line of a touchdown. As soon as the goal was kicked the Blue went in with renewed vigor, and with six terrific onslaughts on the Tiger defense, coupled with one forward pass, worked the ball from its own five yard line down the entire length of the field for another touchdown.

Coy was the hero of this magnificent spurt, but a penalty for holding sent the ball back to Princeton's eighteen yard line. A quarterback run gained nothing while a forward pass failed to get the distance, so the Tigers got the ball inside their own 10-yard line on downs.

But Princeton did not hold it long. Failing to gain, Harlan was forced to punt, and then Yale resorted to trick plays to carry the ball back, two runs on fake kicks, together with a forward pass, bringing the ball close to the Princeton line again, whereupon Coy was forced over for the touchdown. The second goal was kicked and the game was won and lost.

Barring Booth's seventy yard run, the most sensational individual work was done by McCormick and Coy, the former excelling in the first half and the latter in the second. Coy, who is a former St. Paul's school football hero, was really the star. He was almost in every play when Yale had the ball, which was frequently during the latter end of the proceedings. It was he who carried the ball down the field for repeated gains during that spurt for the touchdown that did not count. He scored both touchdowns for Yale and also displayed great judgment when toward the close of the battle he regained a penalty of fifteen yards by punting over the Princeton line from the center of the field, thereby forcing the Tigers to kick from the twenty-five yard mark. The ball was then run back to the original spot.

CAME CLOSE TO A FIGHT.

It was right here that an incident occurred which added to the excitement. Coy punted, Biglow raced down the field and was blocked by Harlan. The latter held the Eli captain in chancery and apparently refused to release him as the whistle blew for a penalty for Yale. Biglow pushed Harlan forcibly away and it looked as if a one round boxing bout would be added to the game, but the referee was speedy on the scene and separated them. As the teams were about to line up again, the whistle sounded the end of the game.

Biglow was a big factor for Yale, as he kicked 14th goals, goals that were sorely needed.

When the margin of two points to the good Quarterback Jones uncovered for Yale many a false kick, a fake formation for goal from scrimmage and a deceptive lineup for a fake forward pass, which meant a run by either Coy or Jones, or the real article in a forward pass which brought much ground gained. Wister also did great work for Princeton. In the first half Princeton made 291 yards by rushing, against 113 by Yale. In the second half, however, Yale rushed the ball 223 yards, as against 35 by Princeton, evidence that Yale was well grounded in the old ideas.

Princeton rushed back kicks to a total of 153 yards, as against 135 for Yale. Harlan punted nine times for an average of 35 yards, as against Coy's seven times for an average of 39, the latter's showing in the second half offsetting his poorer punts in the early part of the game.

Yale made three successful forward passes for 52 yards, while Princeton worked only one for 10 yards. Each team failed on one forward pass. Princeton lost the ball once on an onside kick and gained 15 yards on another try, and Yale lost once on a similar play. Each team lost the ball once on a fumble. Yale was frequently penalized for holding, one of them costing her a touchdown.

ONLY THREE SUBSTITUTES USED.

During the entire game there were only three substitutes used. Welch
