not a mad prescription.

On a family druggist's prescription file is an oft repeated prescription bearing number 37,111. The Latin of the twentieth century reads: "Recipe. Ticketor! theatrii numeri duo signo. Take this afternoon. Dr. —"

Obviously it is an order on the druggist written by a reputable physician for two theater tickets, and the patients, mother and daughter, are enabled to take needed treatment at a matinee while the busy husband and father remains at work. The reason for the scheme as told the druggist by the doctor was the absolute need of mother and daughter for recreation, and as the druggist has a theater ticket office it was readily and satisfactorily arranged.

Tallest High School Student.

Carl Fletcher, standing six feet seven and a half inches in his shoes, a member of the class of '09 of the Seattle High school, will hardly have his claim disputed to being the tallest high school student in the United States. Sophomore Fletcher is but eighteen years old, so that by the time he reaches "man's stature" he should have added at least three more inches to his height. The abnormal development of Carl Fletcher "upward" is not readily ascribed to heritage. Fletcher pers is but five feet five inches, and the school-boy's mother is four inches taller than her husband. All of the members of the family are of normal height, although an elder brother, manager of the Latona drug store, is six feet two inches. Seattle Times.

I. C. R. PENSION BILL

Mr. Emmerson Includes Canada Eastern Employees in Beneficiaries—Measure Passed Committee of Parliament.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 13.—The minister of railways, yesterday got his provident fund bill through committee, and it stands for third reading. Mr. Speaker announced he had issued his warrant for the government to issue the writ at any time. At the opening of the session, Mr. Porter was told by the minister of justice that the report of the insurance commission would be laid before the House within a week or ten days.

The House went into committee on Mr. Emmerson's bill to establish a provident fund for the benefit of the government railroad employees. Mr. Foster objected to the provision which would let the employees of the Intercolonial, who had begun with the Drummond County, Canada Eastern and other lines absorbed by the Intercolonial being given the benefit of the provident fund, and their service on the road under private management allowed to count toward earning their retiring allowances.

Mr. Emmerson said he did not take the same view as Mr. Foster, but was willing to take the full responsibility for the act. Mr. Fowler wanted to know if the provident fund provisions applied to females on the road.

Mr. Emmerson said he was not aware of females being in the service of the road, but Mr. Fowler might know more about that. Mr. Fowler and Mr. Crockett thought the government had done the right thing in making the employees of the Canada Eastern and the Drummond County and other railroads taken over by the government, share in the benefits of the provident provision.

Mr. Emmerson said that from the beginning he had intended to include all the employees of the road, no matter with what company they had previously served. He said the employees would have to contribute about $55,000 a year to the fund, and the government would contribute about a hundred men would be retired as soon as the act went into effect.

G. W. Fowler said that it seemed unfair to make the young men pay the retiring allowances of the men who would be retired as soon as the bill went into effect, or within a few years thereafter.

Mr. Emmerson said the men had asked to be allowed to contribute to the fund an amount equal to that contributed by the government. The men had asked this for a very good reason. They felt that the pension made larger. If the men had not contributed the government could hardly have made the retiring allowance.

The bill was reported and stands for third reading.

"A DECOLLETE AGE."

Miss Gertie Miller Loses An Action for Libel—Gaiety "Star" Objects to Nightdress Pictures.

London Daily Mail: Much amusing evidence was given in Mr. Justice Darling's court when the well known Gaiety Theatre actress Miss Gertie Miller (in private life Miss Lionel Monckton) brought an unsuccessful action against Ralph Dunn and Co., printers and publishers, of Barbican, London, for alleged libel.

Miss Miller claimed damages in respect of some faked photographs which had been published as picture postcards. The defendants had concocted a picture by putting Miss Miller's head on to another lady's body. The pictures complained of were:

1. Picture of a lady in her nightdress with a candle in her hand. Upon the body Mrs. Monckton's head and face were placed.

2. Picture of a young lady, which it was said was taken from the picture "La Source." The figure was draped in a peculiar way, and the lady appeared to be about to take the drapery off. The head of the lady was represented as Miss Miller's head.

3. The figure of a lady, with the plaintiff's face, crawling out of an eggshell.

Counsel asked the jury to say that such productions were libellous. They were calculated to earn for the lady disparagement and contempt, and to lower the opinion of her which was entertained by all who knew her.

"Why did you object to the photographs?" was the first question asked by Mr. Powell (who appeared for the defendants), when Miss Miller stepped into the witness-box.

NOT EVEN PRETTY.
I object to finding my head put on the body of a person insufficiently clad. I think they are horrible! dreadful! It is very annoying to have them sent to one for one's auto-

"Do you consider them becoming to you either as a married lady or as an actress?" asked counsel.
The lady laughed. "No," she said, "and they are not even pretty."
"Do ladies on the stage like to keep themselves before the public in shop windows and so forth?"
"Have you ever sat for a photographer who has offered you a fee for doing so?"

"I never sit without one."

Mr. Powell—"They can then sell your photograph and make something out of it."

"I suppose they do," Miss Miller replied.

Among the cards you complain of is one of you coming out of an egg—I don't so much object to that. What I object to is having my head put on someone else's body. (Laughter.)

It is a common thing for a body to be used and the heads changed?—Not that I am aware of.

I come to the nightgown photograph. What is your objection to it? Is it that it is not pretty? No.

What is your reason?—I don't wish the public to think that I would be photographed in such an attitude.

BEFORE MY TIME.

Some theatre managers, Mr. Powell reminded her, desire that Juliet should appear on the balcony in a nightdress—

Miss Miller (shaking her head deprecatingly): I don't think I could play Juliet. (Laughter.)

His Lordship (to Mr. Powell): Well—try Lady Macbeth. (Laughter.)

Mr. Powell, however, turned to the Tate Gallery, and asked if the witness knew the picture "Sowing Princess Victoria appearing in her nightgown before the Prime Minister and the Archbishop of Canterbury on the morning of her accession."

Miss Miller: That was before my time. (Laughter.)

You know it was historical. It was painted by a Royal Academician, and hung in a public gallery before an appreciative crowd—I was not there.

Mr. Powell—Have you ever seen "Othello?"—No.

"You know," said Mr. Powell, "that Othello is smothered to bed."

(Much Laughter.)

His Lordship: Try again, Mr. Powell. (Laughter.)

Mr. Powell: I will correct myself. You know that Desdemona is smothered in bed by Othello, and that in some celebrated representations (the lady is in her nightdress?)—Yes.

You don't suggest that ladies that played Desdemona and were photographed have been defamed thereby?

—Not at all.
Now, with regard to the picture "La Source," I may take it that in musical comedy if you had to sit upon the bank of a stream you would not mind?—Certainly not.
If you were adequately clothed—in a white garment—a white dress?—certainly not.

VERY DECOLLETE.

I do not understand that ladies, even at the present day, object to showing their shoulders, do they?—No.

They do it in evening dress constantly?—Yes.

You see a good many very décolleté, don't you?—Yes.

It is rather a delicate age, is it not? suggested Mr. Powell, amid laughter. The witness did not answer.

Mr. Foote, K. C., then asked Miss Miller several questions.

"Is it your habit," he asked, referring to the picture-postcard, "La Source," "to wear drapery which is slipping down, and can only be sustained by both hands?"

Miss Miller replied it was not.

Mr. Justice Darling, summing up, said that with regard to the picture of the girl beside a stream, no doubt if a vicar's wife were represented in "La Source," one could imagine the whole diocese being in uproar; but it was not quite the same thing when the subject of the picture was a lady who often appeared before the public in funny costumes.

The jury returned a verdict for the defendants, and judgment was entered accordingly.

LETTER OF CONDOLENCE.

At a special meeting of Court Marysville No. 79, Canadian Order of Foresters, it was resolved that a letter of condolence be sent to the wife and family of our late brother, Jas. Laurie, who was a faithful and valuable member of our court. Therefore, dear Madam, we as members of Court Marysville, extend to you our heart felt sympathy for the loss of a loving husband and devoted father, but in the midst of your sorrow and sadness remember that the supreme Ruler in His all-wise Providence has called to Himself, the soul of our dearly beloved brother and friend, whereas our dear departed who for so many years of faithfully and honorably discharged all the duties of the office, he so ably filled, in such a manner as to endear himself not only to his own Court, but to all Canadian Foresters in the town of Marysville. Therefore, be it resolved that we the members of Court Marysville while deeply mourning the death of a brother and while humbly bowing to the will of our Father in Heaven, who doeth all things well, and with every pulse of our hearts beating in unison with those who remain to survive, not only the family's loss but the order's loss as well. The Almighty above knoweth all things and has called the brother to a higher sphere.

Resolved.—That a copy of the letter be inscribed upon the minutes of this court also that a copy be published in the daily papers.
