NEW SENATORS.

Costigan and Gilmore Secure New Brunswick Seats--Ross and Beith for Ontario.

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—Four new senators were appointed at Saturday's cabinet meeting.

The two Ontario vacancies were filled by the appointment of Hon. Geo. W. Ross, ex-premier of the province, and Robert Beith, who represented West Durham in the house of commons for the greater part of three terms. He succeeded the Hon. Edward Blake in the representation of the constituency in 1891.

The two New Brunswick senatorships went to Hon. John Costigan and Daniel Gilmore. The latter was a candidate for parliament in Charlottetown at the last general election and was defeated. He is a son of the late A. H. Gilmore, who for five terms from 1874 represented Charlotte in the house of commons and was afterwards appointed to the senate.

There are two vacancies in the senate from Nova Scotia. They have not yet been filled. It is said that one of the positions will go to Hon. A. H. Comeau, a member of the Murray government without portfolio.

JOIN ROYAL CANADIANS.

One Hundred and Sixty Ex-Soldiers Sail for Halifax--Two Hundred More for Artillery Service in Dominion.

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—(Special)—One hundred and sixty disbanded soldiers of the Manchester Regiment sailed Saturday from Liverpool for Halifax to join the Royal Canadian Regiment.

They are accompanied by Colonel Gwatkin, Director of Staff Duties at Ottawa. That officer has displayed great energy and skill in conducting negotiations with the War Office for the enlistment of the English troops in Canada.

Colonel Gwatkin will return to England to arrange for the enlistment of two hundred men of the regular artillery for service in Canada.

The Dominion government are paying the expenses of transportation to this country, but the cost will not amount to very much more per man than if the recruits had been enlisted in Canada.

NEW DISCOVERY.

New York Scientists Claim to Have Made Important One to Reduce Cost of Incandescent Lights.

New York Jan. 14.—(Special)—Professor Herchel Clifford Parker and Walter G. Clarke, explained in the Columbia University laboratory yesterday, the workings of an incandescent light they have invented.

With helion filament they expect to have electric lighting down to one-third of the present cost.

Professor Parker and Professor of Physics Columbia Clarke, an electrical engineer, collaborated after several years effort and find better medium than carbon. The substance they named helion is the result.

Helion filament is composed largely of silicon. If immediate manufacture were commenced the helion lamp would cost more than the other but it is hoped to reduce the cost. Meanwhile the lamp expected will last twice as long as the other besides operating at so much less current.

MAY NOT COME.

Mr. Dr. Arnold Fox Pressed to Remain Organist of St. John Church.

Despite rumors to the contrary, says the Telegraph, it is now certain that Dr. Arnold Fox, the talented organist of the Stone Church, will not go to Fredericton to take the position of organist to the cathedral there.

At a meeting of the vestry of the Stone church on Friday evening a resolution expressing appreciation of the past services of Mr. Fox, coupled with the request that he would remain organist of the church, was unanimously passed. It is understood that the vestry also decided to give Mr. Fox a substantial increase in the salary attached to his position. A prominent member of the vestry in referring to the matter last evening said he was in a position to state that Mr. Fox would accede to the request contained in the resolution and would remain with the Stone church unless he returned to England.

Mr. S. Dow Simmons, court stenographer, left this morning for Hopewell Cape, to attend the Albert Circuit court.

MR. SMITH'S CAMPAIGN

Addressed Two Rousing Meetings at the Opera House on Sunday.

Mr. E. Tennyson Smith, the renowned temperance advocate, opened his campaign here on Sunday with two mass meetings at the opera house, one at 4 p. m. and the other at 8.15 p. m. At the afternoon meeting the opera house was comfortably filled but in the evening it proved inadequate to accommodate the vast crowd who wanted to hear the speaker. Scores of people were compelled to stand in the aisles, and many others were unable to secure admission at all.

Mr. C. A. Sampson, president of the local branch of the N. B. Temperance Federation, occupied the chair, and Revs. Dr. McLeod and A. A. Rideout occupied seats on the platform.

The meeting opened with a devotional exercises and music after which the chairman introduced Mr. Smith, who spoke for about an hour. He stated at the outset that those who came to the meeting expecting to hear a great orator would be disappointed, but they would hear a man who was filled with a burning hatred of the liquor traffic. At the speaker's request the choir at this stage sang several verses of "All Hail the Power of Jesus' name."

Continuing his address Mr. Smith, said that he was often criticized and called an extremist, but he expected to survive it. He would not apologize for being an extremist, but was proud of it. He could only speak in English therefore could not use extreme language. The Welsh or Swedish languages would be more suitable when dealing with the liquor traffic. He hated the traffic and God to give him strength to fight it.

The speaker then announced that he had declared war against the liquor traffic—relentless uncompromising war. It is a damnable business and will be shown no mercy. If there is anybody in the meeting who does not want war let him get out. He intended to hurt somebody's feelings before he was through. He was not going to use artillery but the bayonet, and he intended to get after individuals.

The speaker went on to say that he had read in the press a most impudent criticism by Magistrate Marsh in regard to his controversy with Magistrate Kay of Moncton. Magistrate Marsh was surprised that Kay should put himself on a level with the speaker. He also was surprised at such a thing. He understood that Magistrate Marsh was an elderly man; that is all the more reason why he should think before he speaks. He (Smith) thought when he read this interview that Magistrate Marsh was a man of about seventeen. He said he did not blame me so much as he did the committee that put the words in my mouth. Let me tell you that no committee can put words in my mouth. No committee has ever dictated to me what I shall say. I want Magistrate Marsh to know that I alone am responsible for what I say. Referring to his condition Mr. Smith said that he had not yet looked into matters here, but from what he had been told he would say that the way the Scott Act is enforced is a burning disgrace to the authorities. If they cannot stop the sale of liquor they ought to be kicked out of office. He was going to find out why the city did not have a Scott Act Inspector and also why the monies collected from Scott Act fines was used to support the police force. He wanted it understood that he had not yet finished with Magistrate Kay and proposed bringing his case to the notice of the attorney general.

Mr. Smith closed his powerful address with an appeal to the audience to come forward and sign the pledge, but his appeal did not meet with a very enthusiastic response.

THE MOUNT PROPERTY.

Mr. Pick Says He Has Discovered Heirs at Halifax.

Moncton Times.—The paragraph in yesterday's Times, taken from the Fredericton Herald, in reference to the Mount property, was somewhat misleading. The facts are that Geo. H. Pick, of this city, commenced a suit against John Edwards, of Fredericton, claiming that in 1880 he went into possession of the James Mount property, so-called, as his agent, and under a power of attorney from him. Edwards denied that he was acting as Mr. Pick's agent or that he held any power of attorney from him. Mr. Edwards denied that he decided that Mr. Pick's view of the matter was correct and that Mr. Edwards was his agent and that he went into possession of the property as such and he must account for the rents of the property received by him since 1880.

In addition to that it was always understood until quite lately that Sarah Mount, the immediate owner of the property, died without any heirs, and acting on this assumption the crown has given notice to all parties interested that it intends to take possession of the property and to take proceedings to escheat the same. It has lately transpired that Sarah Mount did not die without heirs, and Mr. Pick claims that she left heirs in the city of Halifax, and he has lately obtained from these persons a conveyance of their interest in the property.

The facts with respect to this claim have lately been submitted to the attorney-general, and he will report his decision thereon to the governor-in-council within a short time, and the governor-in-council will decide whether or not the crown will abandon its claim to the property, under the facts alleged by Mr. Pick. Mr. W. B. Chandler, K. C., of this city, is acting for Mr. Pick.

THE EVENING MEETING.

Rev. Dr. McLeod presided at the evening meeting and Revs. J. W. McConnell, J. H. MacDonald, Willard MacDonald, A. A. Rideout, and D. H. Simpson were among those seated on the platform.

Mr. W. A. McKee presided at the piano and the meeting opened with devotional exercises and music. Mr. Smith's subject was "A clarion call to a Holy cause," and he delivered a very vigorous address, moving his audience at times almost to tears, and a moment later convulsing everybody with laughter by a funny story. He declared that the liquor traffic was the devil's work, and went on to say that only those with few brains could drink liquor without suffering from its effects.

Some temperance people he said, wanted to close up the low dives and let the big hotels alone. He held that the more respectable the place where liquor was sold the more dangerous it was to a community. If he had not the pluck to send a big man to jail for selling liquor, he would have the grace to leave a little one alone. Every man who sells liquor here is a law breaker and a scoundrel and unfit to mingle in public society. He understood that there were some tony liquor sellers in Fredericton. He would give these tony before he got through with them. He would like to be police magistrate here for one year, and would be willing to work for nothing. In Moncton they would not send a Scott Act violator to jail because he was ill. He was amazed that such things could be done in a British colony. If he were to commit murder in Canada he would hasten to Moncton and pretend to be ill.

Continuing, Mr. Smith said that he intended to look around a little and find out something about affairs in Fredericton. When he had done that he would have something to say, and would spare nobody. He asked the audience if the church of God had power to suppress the liquor traffic, but the response was not a very hearty one. He repeated the question several times, and gave some boys in the gallery to understand that he was not addressing them. "Why even the clergymen are silent?" was the evangelist's significant remark. He believed that if the churches of the city banded together they could drive liquor out of the town. He commended Rev. Father Carney for the strong stand he had lately taken against the drink traffic and told of a priest in New York who had refused an offer of $7000 to withhold a temperance sermon until after a local option election. He did not know whether or not the low down fellows who sell liquor here attend church. The church which takes money from a liquor seller is deserving of condemnation.

Mr. Smith closed with an appeal to people in the audience to sign the pledge and quite a number responded. Scott Act Inspector Colter was among the late comers at both meetings, and was unable to obtain admission to the hall on either occasion.

EXCHANGE OF PULPITS.

In keeping with the usual custom for the Sunday following the week of prayer there was the usual exchange of pulpits in the evangelical churches of the city last evening. Rev. Willard MacDonald preached at the Brunswick street Baptist church, Rev. A. A. Rideout at the Methodist Rev. J. H. MacDonald at St. Paul's and Rev. J. W. McConnell at the George street Baptist.
