COTTON MILL SALE.

Looks Now as if the Deal Would be Consummated on Monday--Wedding.

June 29.—It looks now as if the deal by which the Marysville cotton mill passed into the hands of the Canadian Colored Cotton Company will be consummated in time to allow the new owners to assume charge on Monday next. Negotiations are now so far advanced that Messrs. Bruce and Davis, representing the Canadian Colored Cotton Company, and J. B. Cudlip, manager of the York and Cornwall Cotton Mill of St. John, a former manager of the Marysville mill, are now engaged in stock taking. The mill closed down at 1.45 o'clock yesterday afternoon to give them an opportunity to work. Only a few details remain to be arranged, and if the report of the gentlemen engaged in stock taking is satisfactory, the transfer is certain to be made on Monday. A number of brick tenement houses will be sold with the mill. Since it has been rumored that the cotton mill was to change hands, property here has been in great demand. A large number of people from other places, including merchants from Gibson and Fredericton, are looking for building sites in order to open up stores of some description. Several good offers for property have been refused from people on both sides of the river. It is expected that in a short time the deal will go ahead with leaps and bounds. Already the Bank of Montreal has opened a branch and occupy a room in the brick building over the dry goods store, formerly occupied by Mr. Quartermain as barber shop. Mr. Quartermain has removed to part of the George Foster shop. It is understood that the new company will establish a fortnightly paying system instead of paying monthly as has been the rule for the past twenty years. Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Edith Gibson daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gibson to C. H. Hervey C. E., of Shelburne N. S., one of the engineers on the Grand Trunk Pacific survey. The ceremony will take place at the bride's home on July 4th. Mr. Bert Brown one of our well known and popular citizens, has lately established a line of busses between Marysville and Fredericton which run regular hours throughout the day, leaving Marysville on the first trip at 8 returning at 11. In the afternoon, the services are leaving at two and returning at 4.30. In the evening the hours will be going down at 7 and returning at 9.15 excepting Saturday when they will remain until 9.30.

HAS DONE GOOD WORK.

Special Fish Warden Savage Returns From First Trip Up River.

Mr. Lorenzo Savage, who was recently appointed a special warden by the New Brunswick Forest, Fish and game Protective Association to patrol the St. John River, arrived this morning from Andover, having made the run to this city in a canoe. This morning he met the executive of the Association at the Queen Hotel and submitted a most interesting report. Mr. Savage is an old time guide and canoe man as well as a man of intelligence and has exceptional qualifications for the work he has undertaken. He left Andover ten days ago in a canoe for this city, being accompanied by Mr. Thomas Wright of Tobique, a brother of Policeman Wright of this city. They came across quite a number of salmon nets in the vicinity of Bristol and Bath and induced the owners to take them up. One evening while out near Bath they discovered a young man attempting to spear salmon from a canoe and they promptly confiscated his canoe and spear. The fellow seemed to be a novice at the game and the wardens had no difficulty in capturing him. At Woodstock the wardens found two sets near the bridge and had both of them taken up. Mr. Savage reports that from Woodstock to Meductic they found a multiplicity of nets, and at times they could scarcely get along in their canoe for them. In cases where the meshes were over the regulation size, the nets were confiscated without ceremony, and in other cases, diplomacy was resorted to and the owners were induced to remove them. The owner of a net near the mouth of the Nackawick assured a legal adviser that he would shoot him if he disturbed his net. Mr. Savage's report was that he had taken a few lessons in the shooting game himself, and was fairly familiar with the business end of a gun. He advised the fishermen to make a good shot while he was about it, otherwise he might get more than he had bargained for. Mr. Savage says that the man who gets the drop on him with a gun has got to travel some. The members of the executive were very much pleased with the report submitted by Mr. Savage, and promised to procure for him printed copies of the fishery law for distribution on his next trip. Mr. Savage reports that he encountered quite a number of people on his trip, who honestly believe that their riparian ownership gives them the right to fish. It is difficult to make these people believe that they are violating the law. He thinks that in time the residents of a majority of them, will come to take a common sense view of the matter and will readily see that it is to their interests to cut out the illegal fishing.

THE "TRANS-CANADA LIMITED."

The business of this country is growing to such an enormous extent that the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run an additional train between Montreal and Vancouver, making three trips a week during the months of July and August first train to leave Montreal on July 2nd. This train will be known as the "Trans-Canada Limited" and will make the fastest time of any train across the American Continent. It will consist of one baggage car, one diner, and two sleepers of the very latest design and with the most modern appointments. Not more than two additional sleepers will be run when necessary and only first class sleeping car passengers will be carried. Passengers thinking of making a trip across Canada would do well to consider the superior advantages afforded by this most excellent service, and for further information and details should communicate with the Company's District Passenger Agent, Mr. W. B. Howard, at St. John N. B.

Miss Martha Osborne of Milltown, a graduate of the U. N. B., has been appointed principal of St. Asa's intermediate school.

HIGH SCHOOL VALEDICTORY

Excellent Address Delivered by Miss Lillian Corbett at Friday's Closing Exercises.

Following is the Valedictory delivered at the Fredericton High School closing exercises on Friday by Miss Lillian Corbett of the graduating class.

"PALMA NON SINE PULVERE."
Time! Time! in thy triumphal flight
How all life's phantoms fleet away!
The smile of hope and young delight
Fame's meteor beam, and fancy's ray
They fade, and on the heaving tide
Rolling its stormy waves afar,
Are born the wreck of human pride,
The broken wreck of Fortune's war!"

JAMES G. BROOKS.

Time in his everlasting march has sped along, day after day has dawned in its golden lining and gone down in its scarlet shroud, week has followed week since the day we entered the Fredericton High School, till now we stand ready to depart forever.

Three short years ago, we a large hopeful class of students entered the portals of the Fredericton High School to gather from its depths, that glorious gift, that priceless gem, one of the greatest of all gifts, that which is more valued than yellow gold, "knowledge."

Three years ago, fellow students we entered, and ah! how short those years have been. We have glided on in some peaceful water, where the sun ever shines, and where the clouds never darken the sunny summer sky, glided on over the peaceful blue expanse, where all was serenity and joy, unthinking we glided on over the glassy surface. Then suddenly we ceased, our fairy bark is moored, we alight, we find ourselves on a foreign strand—from which we can only gaze back with eager longing only to see that our ship has gone and left us stranded for evermore on a strange shore, which men call the "world."

But of all that large ambitious class who started out on that three years voyage to brave its tempests and partake of its pleasures of all who hopefully started in, they have fallen, one by one till now there are left but eleven. Eleven alone remain to bear its reputation into the world for the years to come.

Like leaves on some large sturdy oak, they started out as it were in the springtime, but as time rolled on they gradually began to fall.

One by one they have dropped, some but to fall at the foot of the parent trunk, while others were tossed far from its motherly care to brave the storms of the regions outside its far-spreading shade.

But there were those which the stormy winds could not shake, which stuck firmly to its lofty branches, even while all others had left it.

Scarcely had we entered when one of our number left to seek her fortune in the fast growing west. The ever hospitable B. class has received five of our number with open arms. One or two from among us finding household duties far more pleasant than the Law of Divagadro have taken up that path. Others finding themselves incapable of following out the work of the high school left for other institutions to follow up their studies there. One down-town clothing store has two of our original class, one of which measures out the cloth with remarkable dexterity, while the other, behind a noisy typewriter, which clicks on incessantly, sits day after day.

Another large clothing store across the St. John River furnished work for another one. The demand for shoe leather became so great that two of our class were compelled to leave and take up business with the Harritt Boot and Shoe Company. Sickened took several from us. The prosperous and fast-growing Marysville has provided employment for one and the banks have gathered in several of our class students.

Rumors of an engagement have reached our ears from a far distant thriving New England city and also another from a certain village not far distant. We all unite in wishing these classmates life-long happiness. One of our worthy teachers will be glad to hear that one of his pupils has taken up business among chemists, and that another has profited by his study in physics and become interested in electricity. Still another pledged her vows to Hymen's altar and went to take up the more difficult art of housekeeping.

The angel of death in its stealthy flight swooped down and laid its snowy finger on one bright young life and like a thief stole him from our midst and bore him far away to the Great Beyond, even before we could realize that he had departed. He had been a bright, intelligent student and would doubtless have grown into a bright and no intelligent man had he not been taken away so unexpectedly, carried away only to have us realize the sad, sad truth, that he who had but a few days since been in our midst, had fled, only to leave with us sad remembrance of his genial and cheery nature to remain with us forever.

And in this, our last year, to our much weeded class left us, compelled by sickness, left others remained with us for a few weeks ago, and then seek her fortune in the far west. It was a sorrowing crowd at our little depot to see depart. We, as we stood, hardly realize that she had grown to know so well, had grown to know so well, ed so dearly, was about to leave, perhaps for ever. Then there was a puff, and the train gone, beating away far from our beloved classmate, to the level prairies and snow-topped of the glorious fast growing there to live out a newer and different life among new faces, do not know whether she will or not, but we do know that ever she is her sweet winning ways will win for her the respect of all, whomsoever she come in contact with.

Thus we have seen they have wandered far and wide, east and west. Some even under Dakota's blue skies have found their way, some by sickness have fallen by the wayside and others, having found the work of the Fredericton High School too irksome for their delicate minds and bodies have been compelled to leave us and so on they have left until but eleven of us remain behind.

During our three years' stay here things have sped on with remarkable smoothness, and on the whole it has been an uneventful course.

It is, however, marked by a few events which might be worthy of mention.

The first year we came, debates were carried on to quite an extent. Those who partook of them became as much accomplished as could be expected from High School students. They proved this by their very successful debate with the Normal School students, in which they were easy victors.

An interesting paper called the "High School Echo" was also published that first year.

The next year, debates were carried on to quite an extent and with almost equal success. But the most important thing which marked that year was the Mock Trial which was held in the Assembly Hall and carried off with great success.

In this year the debates were entirely dropped out, much to our disappointment. But we hope in the succeeding year they may be carried on more vigorously than ever.

For the first time in the history of the school two basketball teams were formed by the girls in the senior class and the girls of the "C" class. In the three matched games played at the Y. M. C. A. the Seniors won two and the "C" class one. We hope that next year the girls will form teams again and we sincerely hope that our opponents may make up next year for the games lost by them in the last.

"Delenda est Carthago" said the orator of long ago. "Gymnasium must be built" we modern people demand.

Of all things which are of use to a school the gymnasium is one of the most important.

What is the use of strength of brain if strength of body does not go with it? And who likes to see a boy or girl, however clever he or she may be, bent and pale-faced from the effects of those studies?

Not only are physical exercises extremely beneficial but they also bring much pleasure with them.

We, who in the past winter have received instructions from the physical director at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, can ourselves assure you that we have derived not only pleasure, but the greatest benefit from the exercises. Then, if we cannot have a gymnasium, why cannot a small sum be paid by the trustees to the physical director of the Y. M. C. A. for the instruction of the pupils of the F. H. S. say, for at least three months in the year? This would prove to be a matter of great success and would in no way interfere with the regular work of the school as the exercises would be done after school and it would result in producing men and women of the highest intellectual and physical powers.

The former valedictorians have been agitating the music question in schools, and we are glad to hear that their agitations have helped at least in a measure to bring about that pleasant and very useful exercise, and it is our hope that our suggestions may at least leave an impression on the minds of those in whose power of action lies.

There is yet another thing which is worthy to be spoken about and that is our Assembly Hall.

One, on entering the doors of that room would hardly suspect, that it was, in a sense, the room in which
