AN ONTARIO TRAGEDY.

Boy May Lose His Life as Result of Drunken Farmer's Inhumanity.

Owen Sound, Feb. 13.—(Special)—John Campbell, aged 13 years, lies at a precarious condition, as a result of terrible exposure, which will cost him both feet, if not his life. His story as told to the police, is heartrending.

The little fellow has been working for a farmer in the township of Sydney, about eight miles from this place, and came home last week to spend a few days with his mother.

On Monday afternoon the farmer called for him and together the two started for home.

The boy alleges that the farmer was drunk at the time and when a short distance from town forced him to drink some liquor. As a result he became very sick and fell from the sleigh.

Wandering into a farmyard he lay down beside a barn, remaining there all night, exposed to a temperature of 10 degrees below zero.

At daylight the boy got up and started back the seven or eight miles travelled the night before for home and a farmer picked him up and brought him to the hospital here, where it was found his feet had been frozen solid to above the ankles.

enough to be fully dressed endured suffering and frost bites of such a serious nature that in many instances serious results are feared.

The steamer Larchmont was formerly the Cumberland of the Eastern Steamship Line, and for many years was on the St. John-Boston route.

Capt. Frank T. Haley of the schooner was a St. John man. His wife and family reside on Germain street, West End.

The Harry Knowlton, which is owned by Dunn Bros., of Holiton, Me., was built in Tottenville, New York, in 1890. She was registered at 277 tons. J. M. Driscoll is the agent at St. John. She left St. John on Jan. 8th for New York.

CRESCENTS' VICTORY.

Marysville's Crack Hockey Team, in League Game, Trimmed Sussex Boys 7 to 2.

About four hundred spectators saw Marysville trim Sussex last evening at the Marysville rink to the tune of 7 to 2.

The play was very exciting throughout, but the visitors seemed outclassed by the gallant Crescents, who put up an excellent game from start to finish.

Shortly after eight o'clock Referee Wilfrid Black blew his whistle, and the teams lined up as follows:

SUSSEX.	MARYSVILLE.
Chapman goal.	Fullerton point.
Geo. Goggin cover.	Brogan rover.
Gammlin rover.	Cain centre.
Goggin centre.	Robertson right wing.
O'Dell	Dennison

The officials were: Referee—Wilfrid Black. Judges—Messrs. McElmain and Goggin.

Timers—Edward Connelly and Fred Gibson.

Shortly after the referee blew his whistle away they went live a shot out of a run. Sussex took the puck first but soon lost it to Marysville, who kept it at the Sussex end of the rink almost continually, and how they did shoot at the net. The puck was popped at the Sussex net at the rate of ten shots a minute, but young Chapman kept kicking them out and was pretty busy for a while. The Marysville boys played good combination hockey, and all hands seemed to feed Robinson who shot at the net time and time again. Presently Robinson got the puck just where he wanted it, and scored number 1 for Marysville, which was the only one in the first half. From this out the game got faster, but there were a great many delays which interfered with the interest of the game. On two occasions the Sussex fellows had a skate broken. Goggin was hurt.

FELINE FISHERS.

All Cats Apparently Are Not Afraid of the Water.

Judging from my experience, cats, when living near water, are generally fond of fishing. I have personally known three feline fishers. One was a mere acquaintance and used to fish in a trout stream. The other two lived with us and during the summer months used to fish in the lake nearly every evening. They would crouch on the shore and suddenly jump into an advancing wavelet, very frequently bringing out a small fish. When they had kittens, I have sometimes seen them bring up to the house three fish in the space of an hour.

I know of a cat, whose home was in Westmorland, close to a stream, that was a regular and accomplished fisher. She was a half Persian. Her daughter belongs to friends of mine, and I have myself seen this latter watching the goldfish in the children's aquarium, which at that time was open at the top and on a broad window seat. Puss put in one paw and stirred the water violently, then sat down to watch with apparent satisfaction the terror of the fish, which she could not on that occasion reach. Once the family found she had caught one and killed a second, so the aquarium was afterward always covered by wire or net. One of this cat's kittens belonged to me and was for her short life of under a year very dependent on human companionship. She came up to my bedroom frequently the first thing in the morning and always took great interest in the wash-hand basin, from which she would fish out the sponge or soap, and liked to have her paw in the water. She had to be kept out of the bathroom, as more than once she deliberately jumped into the bath when it had in it a depth of two or three inches of water. If this daughter and granddaughter of the original fisher had lived near water, I think the fishing instinct would have developed, as the three generations all showed a fondness for this element, which cats, as a rule, are supposed to avoid.—London Spectator.

A FIRST NIGHT AUDIENCE.

The Crowd That Makes Up New York's Famous "Deathwatch."

It would be difficult in a line to say just what the character of the first night audience in New York city is. There are the critics, of course, a dozen or so of rather subdued and timorous looking little men who wander lonesomely about, not seeming to have the Gammlin, the cover point for Sussex, got hit on the knee cap, first with the puck, and then with a stick, which put him out of business, so Roy Robinson, the new centre, had to retire in order to even up matters.

The second half of the game was very interesting and rather rough. The Marysville team was too fast and heavy for Sussex but the King's county boys played well during this half. Robinson scored two more, Dennison two, Hovey one and Brogan one. The goal that Brogan shot was an excellent one especially as he carried the puck the full length of the rink, passing all the Sussex forwards and defence players.

Frank Robinson played hard last night and was very fast, shooting 3 of the 7 goals. Dennison and Hovey played well as usual, and Roy Robinson put up god hockey while he was on the ice.

The feature of the game was the rushes made by Brogan who took the puck down the ice twice and would have scored both times only in the first rush he made he fell at the net but he shot a goal in his second attempt. For Sussex Goggin and Wallace each shot a goal and outside of these two Fullerton had very little to do while Chapman must have shaped at least fifty shots.

Capt. McLeod who played goal last year for Sussex played in the forwards last night for awhile and then went to point.

Something that was never seen in the Marysville rink at a hockey game before occurred last night when Referee Black had six men on the ice at one time lined up on the platform for different offences.

The Sussex boys are a fine jolly gentlemanly lot of fellows and made a great many friends last night. Some were rather disappointed that Messrs. Doyle, Bradley and Doherty did not play with the visitors but their places were well filled and it was a fast and exciting game.

When the game was over the usual skating was enjoyed to the music by the Marysville Band after which the Sussex team was entertained by the Marysville boys at Forbes' hotel.

courage to speak to anybody outside of their own set and who are generally followed by the vengeful glances of some hurt actor.

Aside from the assortment of young millionaires who like the theatrical atmosphere, the main constituency of the first night audience is the "profession" and the allied arts, the criminal lawyers, managers, backers of shows, etc.

In the early part of the season there will always be a number of well known actors and actresses who have not yet gone to work and who are enjoying their vacations, much as the engineer does during his two weeks' rest in August, by spending it at the roundhouse—the theatre.

And this in general constitutes the aggregation that has become famous, or infamous, in theatrical circles as the "deathwatch." They are supposed to be a very difficult body of people to please, but, as a matter of personal experience, I have not seen a first night in ten years that has not been riotously and foolishly enthusiastic, no matter how worthless the offering was.

At some of the worst failures of the season I have seen the star called before the curtain a dozen times in the evening, the author and the manager obliged to make speeches of thanks for the "great reception," while the floral tributes gave the whole thing the atmosphere of a hospital on visiting day.—Delineator.

Origin of the Halo.

In the public places in Athens one or two thousand years ago the Greeks set up the statues of their gods and goddesses. To guard against the possibility of the rain staining the marble faces of their masterpieces they used to protect each with a large metal plate at the top of the head. These were mistaken by the praeaphaelite painters for emblems of divinity. Accordingly to this day we see around the pictured heads of our Christian saints the curious little ring which is known as the halo.

A Hint For Amateur Jugglers.

The amateur conjurer should, as far as possible, endeavor to juggle only with the ordinary commonplace articles that are invariably at hand. Cards are to be found in almost every home, hats, handkerchiefs, glasses, coins and paper are always handy, and the man who conjures with these with no apparent preparation will both please and mystify his audience much more than he who brings along a bagful of prepared tricks and spends half an hour behind a screen.—Strand Magazine.
