-FARRELL BROS-

OPP. POST OFFICE. QUEEN STREET.

It is safe enough to say that it was not through his own industry Mr. Harry McLeod discovered that the lands of the New Brunswick railway company are mortgaged. The credit is given to Mr. Titus Carter, who some day will be making the startling announcement that the Dutch have taken Holland, or that the earth revolves around the sun every twenty-four hours.

The Chatham World complains that the insurance commission cost the country $100,000, but has no condemnation for the Tory prohibition commission which cost Canada over $200,000, the money to unload the prohibition question. Mr. Foster was finance minister then, and over $5,000 of the commission's expenditure was paid to one of his kinsmen.

The Montreal Star (Tory) which has no use for Mr. George W. Fowler, refers to "the contemptible figure" which that distinguished land dealer presented in parliament last session.

YORK STREET

A TORY BLUNDER

Mr. Borden Put up Mr. Kemp to Draw the Minister of Public Works but the Game was a Failure

(Staff Correspondence of Montreal Herald.)

OTTAWA, Ontario, December 11.—For the first time since the opening of the session, the Opposition has given evidence of feeling the barb which the new Minister of Public Works planted when he declared that they had practised corruption during the last general election.

No one doubted that the sting was rankling in the body of the party, which has been protesting itself pure and undefiled, and the wonder has been that they have not voiced their anguish ere this.

To-day they were heard from, and an attempt was made to draw Dr. Pugsley and find out how much he knows about the money which the Conservatives used to corrupt the electorate four years ago in the interest of the political purity party.

The invitation to talk about the Conservative financial operations did not come from the leader of the Opposition, nor from his two spotless lieutenants, Mr. Fowler and Mr. Foster. But Mr. Kemp was put up to exasperate the New Brunswick minister into a premature revelation. The attack was a typical piece of Opposition tactics. The word had gone forth, and the Opposition presented a solid front when Mr. Kemp got the floor. He was cheered at his first word, and throughout his speech there was applause and groans from the Conservative side appropriate to his utterance. He had a Greek chorus from the first to the last word. When that had been uttered the Minister of Public Works sat and smiled at the Opposition calling upon him for a reply, and when a venturesome member to the left, in disgust, said that he did not believe Dr. Pugsley knew anything about the Conservative campaign fund, the minister said, "Oh, yes, I do; and so do others." That was all the satisfaction accorded them, but it was sufficient to produce a significant silence.

Later in the sitting Mr. Armand Lavergne wanted immediate information about the Conservative campaign fund, the La Presse deal, and anything else that Dr. Pugsley has up his sleeve. He was told not to be too impatient and the information would be forthcoming in due and proper time. The Opposition did not join in the government cheers.

Mr. Kemp said as many unpleasant things as he could devise in the most unpleasant way he knew how. Dr. Pugsley showed his political seasoning and his fighting capacity by smiling at him through the recital. The only result of the performance was that instead of tantalizing Dr. Pugsley into a tactical blunder, Mr. Kemp exasperated himself into silence.

When the House rose the Opposition filed out with the consciousness af the stroke still pending, and with the same uncomfortable feeling they had when Dr. Pugsley some months ago declared on the platform that he had evidence that the Conservatives had spent more money than they could dispose of without infringing upon the election act.

Tory editors and politicians attack Dr. Pugsley for once being a member of their party, as if it were a crime. Well, if so, he has purged himself of it.

LOST IN THE WOODS

The Trying Experience of a Milltown Man

St Stephen Courier: Jeremiah Deacon, employed by Allan McDonald of Milltown, cutting wood in the vicinity of Joel Hill's woods, left his home Tuesday morning taking his dinner with him, and as he had not returned Tuesday evening a searching party was organized. The fire bell was sounded and a general alarm given. Notwithstanding the downpour of rain, the search was continued for several hours through the night but without success. About thirty left Wednesday morning and reported at noon that their efforts had been in vain. Mr Deacon was subject to heart trouble and it was feared that he might not be found alive. The place where he had been working was located but his axe and dinner kettle were not there.

Soon after dinner on Wednesday, Will Harmon and some other searchers found the missing man in a barn owned by Hugh Balkam and situated some distance in the woods. He was alive but unable to speak and was carried to Dr. Deacon's private hospital. Mr. Deacon is subject to sinking spells and it is believed that feeling one approaching, he made his way to the barn and covered himself with hay. At present writing there are good hopes for his recovery.

Mr. Foster says it's a conundrum why he was not chosen leader of the Tory party instead of Mr. Borden. Nothing of the kind, the reason is known to every school boy in Canada, and if it was not sufficient, just cause was shown by the insurance commission revelations.
