Caps For Knitting Needles.

These are very useful and very easily made. Take two new corks, cut them down to about an inch in length and round off the tops. Cover them very neatly with flannel or any soft material, taking care not to have any join on the flat end of the cork.

Now take a fairly wide piece of elastic, about half an inch shorter than the knitting needles, and secure it firmly at each end to the corks, with the rounded end of these outward. Make an outside cover for each cap of any pretty material, joining the sides, turning in the raw edges at the bottom and stitching these down to the flannel.

Now gather the ends and finish off with a pretty gold or other fancy bead. The needles are stuck in the flat sides of the corks.

To Clean a Copper Kettle.

Copper kettles and indeed copper utensils of all sorts are often very hard to clean. A good method is to cut a lemon in half and rub over the kettle with it. After a thorough rubbing the kettle should be carefully rinsed in clear cold water and given a final polish with a soft cloth. Never attempt to polish copper cooking utensils with the preparations used for brasses, etc., but simply rub them well with a woolen cloth. Dry them thoroughly after washing, as they gather rust very easily, and it is almost impossible to eradicate it.

IT ACTUALLY DESTROYS THE CAUSE.

That's why catarrh is invariably cured by inhaling "Catarrhzone." The healing vapor spreads to every part of the breathing organs. Germs infecting the tissues of the nose, throat and lungs are killed. Nothing is left to cause inflammation. Spots that are sore are healed. Discharge is cleared away and catarrh becomes something of the past. Use "Catarrhzone" and your recovery is guaranteed. Two sizes, 25c. and $1.00 at all dealers.

Topsy's Last Name.

The story is told of how a little girl had been listening intently to her mother reading "Uncle Tom's Cabin" aloud, and finally when the story was finished the child raised her blue eyes questioningly and said:

"Why is it, mother, that the book never mentions Topsy's last name?"

"My child," replied the mother, "I guess she had no other name."

"Oh, yes, she had, and I know it!" returned the little girl.

"Well, what was it?"

"Why, Turvy—Topsy Turvy."—St. Louis Republic.

He Meant Well.

Not long ago a young Irishman was seeking work in western Illinois, and among those to whom he applied was a farmer near Cairo.

The farmer was attracted by the Celt's frank, cheery manner, and while he was not in need of help he asked after a pause:

"Can you cradle?"

"Cradle!" repeated the Irishman.

"Sure I can! But, sir," he added persuasively, "couldn't ye give me a job out of dures?"

Saved From a Drunkard's Grave.

Two farmers were standing on the roadside talking over town topics when Silas said:

"I hear Mrs. Jones saved her husband from a drunkard's grave."

Hiram inquired: "Don't say! Why, how did she do it?"

GOOD STYLE FOR TUB FABRICS OR WORSTEDS.

Now and then one sees a frock of real simplicity which at once appeals for its unquestioned style and smartness. Such a one is shown in the accompanying sketch, the tucks at the shoulder being wider and a pretty fullness for the front, and the simulated front closing with its rows of stitching being neat and effective. The skirt is a full pleated one, attached to the belt which join it to the waist. These sleeves are in three-quarter length and have natty little cuffs for finishing. The blouse is easily full all round at the waistline which assures its grace and becomingness. For a plaidingham or serge or a plain color pongee or mohair the style is excellent. 3 yards of 44-inch material are needed for the medium size.

HENPECKED.

A half a hundred hens one day—
At least the story goes—
Talked o'er their rights and wrongs
And then
In hot rebellion rose.

The rooster had been lord of all—
A cruel tyrant he.
They sought to take him down a peg
Or two or maybe three.

One squawk, then at him did they fly
And picked and scratched like mad.
They drove him here and dragged him there,
And used him very bad.

The wrath of months fell on his head;
The job was very clean.
He looked as though he'd filtered through
A harvesting machine.

And since that day the world has come
To this conclusion terse—
A henpecked man looks bad enough,
A henpecked rooster worse.

—Joe Cone in Judge.

Between Friends.

Mr. Hamfitt—I say, McBooth, here's an article about a fellow who walked around the world.

Mr. McBooth.—An actor, by Jove!—Washington Star.

Get Wise!

A New York business man was telling some friends not long ago of the disadvantages of having two telephones in his business office.

"A new office boy entered upon the discharge of his duties last week," said the merchant, "among which duties is that of answering the telephone calls. The very first call resulted in his coming to me with the statement:

"You're wanted at the phone by a lady, sir."

"Which one?" I asked, thinking of the two phones.

"Well, sir," said the boy, after an embarrassing pause, "I-I think it's your wife, sir!"—Herald's Weekly.

EVICTION IN IRELAND

FAMILIES OUSTED FROM COTTAGES OF FOREFATHERS.

Large Display of Armed Police—Tenants Offer Stubborn Resistance—Hurl Stones and Sticks at Their Enemies—Tussle on the Rocks—Camera Fiend Has Lively Time—Women Lead the Fray.

Evictions on the Leahy estate, at Kilmacowan and Gowlane, near Castletown, Berehaven, recently took place, when about a dozen holdings were visited.

A stubborn resistance was offered, notwithstanding the grotesquely large armed police force, to the number of close on 400 men.

This excessive army of constabulary, brought together at very considerable cost, for the purpose of ejecting about two dozen families of starving peasants, has been severely commented upon, and instead of being instrumental in the preservation of peace, had the effect of driving the very poorest of Irish peasantry to desperation.

Women Lose Their Heads.

At sight of the hated invaders the women of the village lost their heads completely. With shrill cries in Irish and English, they rushed down on their laggard menfolk and told them what they thought of them for hanging back from the fight.

At last the men made a rush on the police. But pelting rain and the sight of men with rifles are poor helps to valor. The rush was a half-hearted affair. They came splashing through the muddy street, but stopped irresolute when within a short distance of the police.

At this the women were terribly put out, and rushed on the policemen themselves, courageous as suffragettes, shouting, "English dogs," "English cowards." They were promptly arrested, whereupon they shrieked as they were in the arms of the policemen, "Dirty English cowards, would you hit a woman!" The policemen took it very well, used the women with as little roughness as possible, and released them later.

Photographers Victims.

Then occurred the most exciting incident. A party of villagers, about two dozen altogether, had climbed to the top of some rocks overhanging the houses where the evictions were taking place. From here they commenced to hurl down good-sized stones and heavy sticks. A party of police stormed the rocks and had quite an eventful time before they managed to reach the top. Here they fell upon the wild Irishmen, and, after a business-like tussle on top of the rocks, in view of the whole excited village, managed to arrest the men.

There were a few comic interludes. The army of police was followed by a rear-guard of amateur photographers, anxious to get snapshots. They were fair game to the infuriated villagers. What they could not do to the police they did to the cameras, and every amateur who tried to get a picture when the trouble was hottest had his instrument promptly taken from him and danced upon. Fragments of plates and cameras strewn the muddy road.

Explorer Enters Parliament.

The young Earl of Ronaldshay has been returned unopposed to the House of Commons for the borough of Hornsey. He stood in the Unionist interest, and the Liberals did not put forward a candidate.

Besides being a politician of no mean ability, he is also a sportsman and traveler of renown. He has explored the Himalayas thoroughly, and is quite at home in that majestic region of the eternal snows. On the fingers of one hand could be counted those Englishmen who know more about Persia than he does. He has, in fact, "a practical working knowledge" of all the northwest, north and northeast borders of India, extending from Persia to Tibet.

The results of his travels in these alluring lands are to be found in two books, "Sport and Politics Under an Eastern Sky" and "On the Outskirts of Empire in Asia." Lord Ronaldshay was for some time on Lord Curzon's staff in India, and somehow or other one cannot help seeing in him a future viceroy.

Workmen's Compensation.

The new Workmen's Compensation Act came into force on Monday, July 1st.

Roughly speaking, every person employed in manual labor, all domestic servants and persons employed otherwise than in manual labor whose remuneration does not exceed $1,250, come within the act. For all accidents to these employers are liable. The compensation for partial or total incapacity cannot exceed $5 a week. Subject to that limitation, the basis of compensation will be 50 per cent. of the average week earnings. So long as an employee is incapacitated the payment goes on though it may be renewed by the purchase of an annuity equal to 75 per cent. of the annual value of the weekly payment. When death results from an injury the maximum compensation is fixed at $1,500 and the minimum at $750.

Australia's Wine Crop.

The 1907 vintage must rank as one of the finest Australia has ever had. Abundant rains were the chief cause of this fortunate result.

In northeast Victoria the phylloxera is gradually getting a hold and is destroying the vine by slow degrees. They are being reconstructed on resistant stocks, however, and it is hoped that the output will in a few years be greater than ever.

In South Australia an excellent crop is reported from all the widely separated districts. Certain varieties have failed, but others have given a more than usually abundant crop, with the result that the quantity will be about the same as last year, while the quality will be infinitely better.
